On motion of Senator Farmer, seconded by Senator Ferguson, Senator Hart was chosen as temporary presiding officer.

The Clerk requested Senators Farmer and Ferguson to conduct the temporary presiding officer to the Chair.

The Chair requested Senators Lee and Brackett to escort the President to the Chair.

The President having assumed the Chair addressed the Senate as follows:

Senators:

In accepting the honor which you have conferred upon me by electing me as your presiding officer, I am deeply mindful of its responsibilities and very grateful for the confidence you have expressed in my ability to serve you and the State in this capacity.

We all have responsibilities imposed from our elections to represent our various districts as Senators. We were severally chosen to a position of trust and duty and our constituents have sent us here to promote their interests. Whether we are enacting laws or making appropriations, we should give serious thought and consideration to every bill or resolution that comes before us for action. If we do our best it will be the best for the welfare of the people of the entire state.

Let us be ever mindful that our acts here will advance or retard the progress of our state, according as we give or fail to give our best services, and it is my confident hope that we may do our work in a spirit of reason and good intention, without discord, if not always without disagreement, as the smaller body of our bicameral legislature, we are in a position to do our work more collectively and definitely, provided we do it with the mind that we will be influenced and guided only by the principles that representative government is successful to the measure that its representatives regard its welfare as their one and only concern.

I do not need to tell you that I shall endeavor at all times to preside fairly and impartially and to place public above personal considerations.

I wish to thank you for the great honor conferred upon me.

I await your pleasure.

On motion of Senator Martel, the following resolution was adopted.

Resolved, That Benjamin F. Greer as Clerk be elected by acclamation, that Frank M. Ayer as Assistant Clerk be elected by acclamation, that Raymond B. Lakeman as Sergeant-at-arms be elected by acclamation, that William W. Allen as Doorkeeper be elected by acclamation, that

AFTERNOON

The report of the State Police Commission was presented through its Chairman John P. Carleton.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

This Commission was appointed by His Excellency, Ex-Governor Tobey and his Honorable Council to make a study of a State system of police protection and render a report thereon to the present session of the Legislature. Pursuant to said authority, the Commission has investigated the question and hereby respectfully tenders its report.

The duty placed upon the Commission has been conceived by its members to comprise a study of the desirability, and of the form of organization of a co-ordinated State-wide police force under the direction and control of a central authority. In this connection it was felt that the inquiry primarily should relate to the necessity of further police protection in the rural communities. Your Commission is of the opinion that the cities of New Hampshire are adequately and efficiently policed by their local organizations.

THE NATURE OF PRESENT RURAL POLICE PROTECTION

Taking the State as a whole, the small towns and outlying districts are dependent for general police protection solely upon two groups of officials, the County Sheriff and the Town Constable. These are ancient offices, ante-dating even our present form of Republican Government, but they have shown surprising vitality in the face of the profound social and economic changes that have taken place, and although their existence has continued from before the reign of Henry the II until the present time, they have not proved adaptable to the problems which arise in present day society.

Formerly when crime was largely localized, these officials were able to cope with the situation effectively. The local officer was familiar with conditions in his district and with probable law-breakers. Transportation was slow and even after the coming of the railroad, the avenues of escape could fairly promptly be closed, but today with the development of a net-work of improved highways, and the universal use of the automobile, a problem of law enforcement and criminal apprehension has been created for which the established system of local protection has proved inadequate. A criminal may come from a distant Town or City, commit a depredation, and by the use of the automobile, be out of the jurisdiction before the local officer can even be notified.

The office of sheriff and constable, appear by their nature to be unfitted for the present problem. Both are elective offices. This means recurrent changes in personnel, possible political influences and not infrequently the selection of incumbents untrained for these special duties. The deputy, appointed by the sheriff, is unlikely to be better qualified than his superior.

The Constable receives no, or at most a nominal compensation; his attention to police duties is secondary to his trade or business and he cannot be expected to carry on regular patrols unless he is created a full-time officer. The sheriff in his turn, derives his greatest source of income from the service of process and the execution of the decrees of the Court. Co-operation between Town Officers and the County law officials, is difficult for there exists no centralized direction and control. Not only is there no administrative head but responsibility is divided, each officer being responsible to himself alone. Such expedients as have been devised to bring about prompt and co-ordinated effort, have behind them no statutory authority nor any permanent or uniform policy and without such authority and an administrative head, empowered to direct the efforts of local officials, the system has broken down.

There are at the present time certain State agencies to which are delegated the duty of enforcing specific laws, such as Motor Vehicle Department, Law Enforcement Department in charge of the state liquor law, the Department of Fish and Game, the Department of Weights and Measures, but the duties of these departments are limited and their agents act without authority outside their respective specialized fields. We have a group of officials, therefore, supposedly working toward the same end, law enforcement, but owing to the history behind the creation of their various duties, and the statutes limiting their power, effective co-operation is necessarily non-existent.

In 1925 the Crime Commission rendered a report to the Legislature in which was presented a careful study of the extent of police protection afforded the citizens of the State as a whole. The results of its study are presented concisely in tabular form. In the tables, the towns and cities having organized police are represented and those having less than four full-time officers are considered partially policed. The summary of their study is as follows:

Area	Population	Assessed Valuation
Police	242,708	$332,289,101
Partial Police	44,455	51,485,924
No Police	155,920	213,260,609
Entire State	443,082	597,035,634

This study reveals that over 35% of the population and assessed valuation in the State has no organized police protection. Further data contained in the Crime Commission Report support its general conclusions as to the need of the rural communities for greater police protection. They have not been reproduced in this report as the Crime Commission report is on file with the Secretary of State, but a study of the facts and statistics contained therein is recommended. The figures furnished by the Crime Commission are pertinent today, there having been no substantial change in the amount of unpoliced areas since the figures were compiled.

It is common knowledge that depredations on fruit-growers, cattle-raisers and poultry farms and on isolated filling stations and vacant summer homes are becoming increasingly frequent and that in practically every instance the automobile provides a convenient agent for the escape of the criminal. It seems unnecessary to argue the lack of sufficient and effective co-ordinated police protection in the rural districts.

EXPERIENCE OF OTHER STATES

This problem is not unique to New Hampshire. Other states have had it presented and those that have succeeded in solving it most satisfactorily have done so by means of the institution of some species of a State Police, that is, a centralized organization with full police powers, state-wide in scope. Some States, such as Massachusetts, have approached the problem first by organizing a State Detective Bureau, relatively small, designed primarily for criminal investigations. Maine, Maryland, and Connecticut have enlarged the authority of an existing force with limited powers, in each instance the motor vehicle patrol. Pennsylvania and New Jersey on the other hand have met the question squarely by instituting at the outset a State Police body of broad authority. In every instance, with the exception of Colorado, where the State Police became an issue in a political campaign, the State Police organizations have been retained, enlarged in scope, and eventually established as a separate and independent department of the State Government. In Maine, for example, an attempt was made to enlarge the powers of the road patrol under the Motor Vehicle Commissioner. The authority under which this action took place proved invalid but the public demand for the continuation of unified State police protection was so insistent that at the next session of the Legislature a separate Department was created for this purpose under the Secretary of State.

Experience has been that any adaption of the sheriff and constable system by reason of its elective feature, its lack of centralized control, its changing personnel, the secondary feature of criminal law enforcement, is doomed to failure. New conditions of society have demanded a radical change from accepted methods. Centralization of control, mobility, independence, constant availability, and active co-operation all demand a full-time force organized under a central authority. All police administrators recognize the quieting effect upon crime of a system of regular patrols, and only with an adequate full-time force can such patrol work be accomplished.

The experience of New Hampshire with its archaic system of local policing, its duplication of functions, its conflict of authority, and the resultant lack of co-operation between enforcement agencies, both state and local, illustrates the fundamental weaknesses of the old scheme. The time for a modernization of our local policing methods is long since due. New Hampshire can benefit by the work of experimentation conducted on this problem by many of its sister States, and the record of these States demonstrates that only by the formation of a State Police can the elements necessary to meet the present rural crime problem be furnished.

Your Commission, therefore, recommends that the present Legislature provide for the establishment of a State Force with full police powers, charged with the enforcement of all criminal laws.

ORGANIZATION

The State Police should constitute a separate and independent department in the State Government and under it should be concentrated all existing enforcement agencies that practicably can. Otherwise duplication of effort, increased overhead and conflict of authority result.

Those States which have had the greatest success in State Police administration have divorced the force from political influence so far as possible and centralized authority in the administrative head of the force, making him responsible only to the executive head of the State Government. We recommend the formation of a department of State Police under the direction and control of a superintendent, the latter to be appointed by the Governor and Council for the term of five years and removable by them only after notice and hearing. All appointments in the department, including those of deputies, should be made by the superintendent and subject to removal by him.

A consolidation of certain existing law enforcement agencies will, it is believed, result in economy and efficiency. There are at present under the supervision of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner twenty-two (22) motorcycle officers, exclusive of those inspectors whose duties are confined to inspection and investigation. The duties of these motorcycle officers are expressly limited to the enforcement of laws relating to motor vehicles and we have a ridiculous situation existing where a member of the road patrol has no authority, beyond that of a private citizen, to arrest when he observes a law-breaker violating some statute not directly connected with the motor vehicle law. The Motor Vehicle Department was organized originally as a licensing and registration department and its present activity as an enforcement agency was never contemplated by the Legislature which created the department. Under the provision of the statute, whereby examiners appointed by the Commissioner are given police power over the operation of motor vehicles, certain of these examiners have been delegated especially to enforcement work, and these form the present motorcycle corps. This broad application of the statute has furnished in the absence of other methods a control over the misuse of automobiles on our highways, but the existence of this situation is the work of necessity. It cannot be linked up with a consistent attempt to solve the general problem of law enforcement brought on by changing conditions.

The motor vehicle department is the largest licensing and registration bureau in the State Government and as a revenue collecting agency turned over to the State Treasurer during the fiscal year ending 1930, nearly $5,000,000. The imposition on this busy department of extensive police functions creates a task which the department is neither designed or equipped to handle.

We are not of the opinion that delegating of full police power to the present motor vehicle corps, will provide an answer to the problem for the evidence seems to indicate that at least the present number is required for the efficient enforcement of the motor vehicle law alone, though it is believed that certain allied police functions could be carried on without impairment of the effectiveness of the corps. The increase in authority and the consolidation under one head with other enforcement officers is a step toward uniform and co-ordinated State Police protection.

The Law Enforcement Department has the power to enforce all laws relating to intoxicating liquor and authority to make arrests for violations thereof, but beyond this limited field the department agents have no greater authority than the ordinary private citizen. If one of these agents is in pursuit of an automobile in which he believes intoxicating liquor is being illegally transported and finds that there is no liquor in the car, yet even though the car is unregistered and the driver operating the car recklessly or without a license, the liquor agent can only refer the matter to a motor vehicle officer. It would seem on principles of reason and economy that the enforcement of the liquor law should be combined with enforcement of other criminal statutes and that the present Law Enforcement Department could be abolished and its duties transferred to the Department of State Police. With this consolidation the duties of Law Enforcement Commissioner and State Liquor agent can be performed by the Superintendent of the State Police or by a deputy under his supervision.

The Department of Weights and Measures has general supervision over and regulation of all weighing and measuring devices in the State and three inspectors are appointed to enforce the law relating thereto. Here again we believe that the duties of these agents should be transferred to the central law enforcement department and the present duties of the Commissioner of Weights and Measures delegated to a deputy under the Superintendent of the State Police. Common sense and principles of economy both would seem to dictate this change. The elimination of a department means reduced overhead and the duties of the inspectors could be performed by the State Police in the course of their regular patrols and during the winter months when the supervision of traffic makes less demand upon their time.

The Fish and Game Department, the wardens and deputy wardens of which have the power to enforce the laws relating to fish and game and to make arrests for violations thereof, stands in a somewhat different light than the two departments discussed above.

The nature of the wardens' duties and the locality of their activities appear to require a special force assigned for this purpose. This commission fears that placing the entire responsibility for the enforcement of these laws on the State Police would constitute a serious drain on the effectiveness of the force. Such duties would lead them frequently to uninhabited sections of the State where there is small likelihood of other crimes being committed and where a trooper would be completely out of touch with the central office. Availability at all times is one of the most important advantages of a State Force and the responsibility of patrolling the woods and streams would mitigate against its efficiency. However, co-operation between fish and game officers and the State Police organization should exist at all times and there will unquestionably be cases in which the State Police organization will be of invaluable aid in the enforcement of the law and the apprehension of its violators.

The proposed consolidations will make available for state police purposes funds now being expended annually for limited police protection and which would be sufficient to provide a real nucleus in the organization of the state force. An increase above the number of troopers thus provided for would, however, be necessary to insure an adequate and effective force. This Commission is of the opinion that at its inception the State Police Department should consist of the Superintendent, a deputy appointed by him, a clerk of the bureau of criminal records and identification, sufficient clerical assistance and two troops of twenty-five men each, including the proper officers.

The necessity of absolute independence of the force from interference by other departments and agencies cannot be overemphasized. All responsibility for the administration of the department should reside in the superintendent and he should be responsible for its efficient and proper management to the Governor and Council alone. Division of responsibility and the influence of outside authorities would be fatal to the success of the force. We recommend that the Superintendent have charge of the appointment and dismissal of his deputy, assistants and troopers without confirmation by any authority and the right to determine their qualifications. Further he should have the authority to issue rules and regulations and to assign the various duties to those constituting his organization, including his deputy. Thus it will be seen that the selection of a competent and trained man as an administrative head of the department is vital. This fact the Legislature must take into account in fixing the compensation of the Superintendent.

STATE DETECTIVE BUREAU

With the establishment of a State Police force, the necessity for and the proper functions of a State Detective Bureau cannot be determined, for certain of the functions which such a bureau acting unassisted would perform will be done by the force. That there is need of some such organization is manifest. Here the Attorney General, the present head of all law enforcement, has at his command no one to make special investigations in criminal matters. It has thus become necessary to employ private detective agencies both by the State and by the Counties which are similarly handicapped, and the funds thus expended could better be devoted to the expenses of a State Bureau. In other jurisdictions the investigation of crimes has been successfully undertaken by the State Police. Certain men in the force will show a particular aptitude for work of this character. We believe that the organization of such a Bureau is a matter logically connected with the functions of the State Police and that a separate department is a duplication in part and needless. This plan has worked out well in the State of New Jersey.

We recommend that the Superintendent of the State Police be authorized, if in his opinion the detective work of the State Police so demands, to create a State Detective Bureau, which shall maintain facilities for the detection of crime in the State.

BUREAU OF RECORDS AND IDENTIFICATIONS

At the present time there exists no central bureau for the filing of criminal records and it is a practical impossibility to secure any statistics pertaining to crimes committed in the State outside the cities with organized police forces. Such records are essential to efficient police administration and comprise an important feature in criminal apprehension. Likewise there are no facilities for the taking, and filing of identification records and this also is well recognized as being essential in the thorough enforcement of criminal law.

This Commission, therefore, recommends that within the department of State Police there be set up a bureau of criminal records and identification under the supervision of a clerk of the bureau, who should be a man having special knowledge of criminal statistics and of taking, classifying and filing of fingerprints and other methods of identification. This Bureau and the State Detective office, if established, would naturally fall under one head, as the work is closely allied. The Bureau should receive duplicates of the records of all revolver purchases and revolver permits issued within the State. All police officers and officials having the custody of documents and records relating to criminal offences should be required to forward to the Superintendent of the State Police such copies thereof as he may require.

ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE POLICE IN LABOR DISPUTES

One phase of State Police work on which there exists much difference of opinion is the extent to which the force should intervene in strikes and riots. Due to the apprehension that the appearance of a uniformed force may inflame the strikers into provocative acts and precipitate a conflict, various checks have been devised although in each State reliance upon the State Police at some stage is considered desirable. Circumstances may arise when the local police are unable to handle a situation and the only assistance that can be obtained is by the appointment of special deputy sheriffs or by calling out the militia. In either case a force untrained for strike duty is placed in authority. The Massachusetts provision which requires that the State Police Force "shall not be used or called upon for service in any industrial dispute unless actual violence has occurred, and then only upon order of the Governor," furnishes in the opinion of this Commission an admirable preventive of hasty intervention. Thus instead of being compelled in an emergency to call upon the militia, which lacks training and experience for this work, the Governor and Council would have at their command a competent and adequate force upon which to rely in a crisis.

RELATIONS WITH OTHER ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

It should be clearly understood that the State Police Department would in no way perform the present functions of the County Sheriff in the service of process and the like in civil actions. Its concern would be criminal matters alone and its activity would not be a substitute for but an addition to that now carried on by present officials with police power. The State Police would not act within the limits of a city having a regular established force, except in hot pursuit of a criminal or upon request of the local chief.

Despite frequent apprehensions to the contrary it has been found in other States that no friction or jealousy has developed between the State Force and the local officers but ready co-operation on both sides. The effect of a centralized office has tended to co-ordinate and simplify the activities of all enforcement officers in the State.

PROBABLE COST

The consolidation of departments recommended holds a strong argument on grounds of economy as well as efficiency. Funds now expended for law enforcement of a limited character will thereby be made available for state police purposes.

The State Treasurer's report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930 discloses that the appropriations for the Department of Weights and Measures and the Law Enforcement Department were $15,775 and $19,250 respectively. This Commission has ascertained that the average annual cost of each patrolman in the Motor Vehicle Department is $3,000 and that it is proposed to add four men to the force making a total of $78,000. Thus the State would have $113,025 which could be devoted to the maintenance of a State Police force without any additional cost. By appropriating sufficient additional funds merely to take care of the Superintendent's salary, general office expense, and original capital outlay, a force of thirty-seven or thirty-eight men could be set up.

Your Commission feels, however, that in order to provide for efficient service at least fifty troopers should be provided. These on the same basis of figuring would require $150,000 per year. The salary of the Superintendent and the general office overhead should not exceed $10,000. In other States most of the clerical work is taken care of by its troopers. It has been estimated that the force would require forty motorcycles and cars, probably Fords and the initial cost of these has been assumed to be $15,000. Some allowance must be made for expense of training the members of the force. Considering that use be made of the state armories for this purpose, a figure of $10,000 should be sufficient and provide a surplus to take care of unanticipated capital outlay. The figure of $3,000 covers the compensation of the trooper, his gun, uniforms for the year, cost of maintenance and use of his motorcycle or car and depreciation on the same. On this basis the total expense of the department for the year of installation would be $185,000 and in view of the fact that the training expense would be largely eliminated the second year, and that the capital expenditure for motorcycles and cars would not reoccur, owing to depreciation being figured in the $3,000 item, the annual expense after the first year would be reduced $15,000 to $25,000.

As above stated the present amount expended is $113,025. Deducting this sum from the anticipated total expense of $185,000 makes an increased expenditure of $71,975. It should be borne in mind that the first year's cost is the heaviest and that a number of factors will enter to reduce this amount. Considerable sums are now expended by the state and county for private detective services, special investigations, finger print and gun experts and by the towns for special police protection. These will in part be dispensed with. A fair proportion of the fees and expenses of sheriffs and their deputies under the item of State vs. Payroll in the County Report will be eliminated. Based upon the experience of other States a large amount of stolen goods will be recovered by the State Police. The value of such recoveries in such States frequently has exceeded the total appropriation for the department.

It thus appears that a State Police Force of sufficient numbers to be effective can be organized at no great increase in expense to the State. We are of the opinion that its institution is the only satisfactory method of filling the unquestioned need of the rural communities for further police protection.

The Message further stated that the House of Representatives had passed the following concurrent resolution in the passage of which it asked the concurrence of the Honorable Senate.

Relative to the Importation of Lumber, Pulpwood and Pulp from Soviet Russia.

WHEREAS a condition of extraordinary economic depression exists in the country at the present time, and

WHEREAS such depression is seriously affecting lumbering, logging, pulpwood and pulp business in New Hampshire, and

WHEREAS such depression in said lines is due to a great extent to the immense importation of said products from Soviet Russia, entry thereof being free of duty, and

WHEREAS said lumber, pulpwood and pulp are being sold and delivered in and about New England at lower prices than the same kind of products can be produced by American labor, due to lack of duty thereon, and the forced conditions under which said products are alleged to be cut and manufactured, and said selling of goods under existing conditions amounts to unfair competition, and

WHEREAS in consequence of the lack of duty and the unfair competition, and cheap labor conditions existing in Soviet Russia, 350,000 cords were shipped into this country in 1930, and it is estimated that at least 600,000 cords will be shipped into this country during the year 1931 if present conditions are allowed to exist, and

WHEREAS in consequence thereof and thereby, lumber, logging, pulpwood and pulp operations have been practically discontinued in this state, resulting in the closing of mills, throwing thousands of American laborers out of employment, causing many to become public charges, and

WHEREAS in justice to the American manufacturers, workingmen, and others interested in said lines of business prompt action is necessary to save the above industry from ruin, and

WHEREAS it seems fitting and proper that the aid of our representatives in Congress be enlisted in saving said industries from what has become a serious situation.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives the Senate Concurring:

1. COMMITTEE REPORT

John R. McLane, Chairman of the Committee appointed to make a study and analysis of the Corporation Law submitted the following report:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

The undersigned duly appointed under the provisions of Chapter 278, Laws of 1929 to make a study and analysis of the Corporation Law submit herewith the following report and recommendations.

The general Corporation Law now on the statute books goes back to the revised statutes of 1842, and while it has been amended from time to time to bring it into harmony with present day economic views, it still contains in its restrictive sections not a few evidences of the early distrust of the corporate method of transacting business. In so far as these restrictions seem to have outlived their usefulness and tend to hinder legitimate corporate activity, we have recommended their repeal. These recommendations apply specifically to limitations upon the amount of property which may be held by a corporation and to the prohibition against soliciting proxies.

In Laws of 1919, Ch. 92, the Business Corporation Law was enacted, and this has provided for corporations organized since that date and for those older ones which have qualified under its provisions, a flexible system of corporate organization which has given in general satisfactory results. It was not designed for the purpose nor has it had the effect of attracting out-of-state enterprises to incorporate in this state, and this committee does not believe it dignified or wise for New Hampshire to attempt to enter into a competition of this nature. The proper object to be sought in our opinion is to provide our own business enterprises with an inexpensive flexible corporate method of doing business with due safeguards for the rights of creditors and stockholders.

Acting upon this principle we have not proposed any drastic changes in the present law. We do submit the following recommendations in order somewhat to clarify and simplify it. A short comment is made explanatory of each recommendation and bills are attached which would carry these recommendations into effect.

Amend Section 6, Chapter 223, Public Laws by adding after the words "may change its name" in line 3, the words "increase or decrease its capital stock," and by adding after the word "purpose" in line 5 the word "and."

Comment. This right is given in Sec. 7, Ch. 227 but it is not clear that it is necessary to record a certified copy of the vote in such cases in the office of the Secretary of State and in the office of the Town or City Clerk.

Repeal Sec. 7, Ch. 223, limiting amount of property to $500,000.

Comment. This seems an unnecessary restriction on legitimate corporate enterprise.

Amend Sec. 3, Ch. 225, by striking out the whole thereof and substituting the following:

"The corporate name must end with the abbreviation "Inc." or must include the word "corporation" or "incorporated" or may include the word "Company" or the abbreviation "Co." if that word or abbreviation is not immediately preceded by the word "and" or the abbreviation "&". The provisions of this section shall not affect the right of any corporation existing at the time this act takes effect to continue the use of its name. Subject to the above limitation any corporate name may be assumed which is not in use by any other New Hampshire corporation or any foreign corporation admitted to do business in this State, and which is not so similar thereto or to that of any partnership or association carrying on business in this State, as to be liable to be mistaken for it; provided that such name or similar name may be adopted with the consent in writing of such existing corporation, partnership or association filed with the articles of agreement."

Comment. This recommendation is made in order that persons having to do with business enterprises in corporate form may learn from the corporate name the nature of its organization.

Amend Ch. 225, Sec. 10 by adding after the words "of the "record" in line 5, the following "except the by-laws."

Comment. This recommendation is made for the sake of economy. By-laws are frequently voluminous and expensive to record and contain little except purely formal provisions. Sec. 14, Ch. 225, permits the Attorney-General in examining the record of organizations to call for such additional information as he may consider necessary. This discretion given to the Attorney-General is considered to be an adequate safeguard.

Amend Sec. 21, Ch. 225 by striking out the entire section after the words "less than ten" in line 5.

Comment. This recommendation is made to clarify the law. Sec-26, of the same Chapter gives adequate authority for classifying stock.

Amend Sec. 32, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 123 Laws of 1929 by adding the word "total" after the words "in like detail and the" in the 16th line of said section.

Comment. This recommendation is made to clarify the section and to give effect to the rulings and practice of the Office of the Attorney-General.

Amend Sec. 35, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 123 of the Laws of 1929 by striking out the words "within thirty days from the date of authorization of such additional stock."

Comment. This limitation upon the time for recording the affidavit gives rise to technical defects in increases of capital stock and seems unnecessary because of the provision at the end of the section which makes unlawful stock issued until the certificate shall have been filed.

Amend Sec. 42, Ch. 225 by striking out the words "within thirty days after such meeting" in line 2 of said section.

Comment. It is provided in Sec. 45 that no amendment shall take effect until the record shall have been deposited for record and the fee paid. This seems ample protection and will tend to eliminate technical defects.

Amend Sec. 49, Ch. 225, by striking out the same and substituting the following:

"Form. Each stockholder shall be entitled to a certificate of stock signed by the President and Treasurer or by such officers as the articles of incorporation or by-laws may provide, but when any such certificate is signed by a transfer agent or registrar the signature of any such corporate officer and the corporate seal, if any, upon such certificate, may be facsimiles engraved or printed."

Comment. This change conforms to the recommendation of the Uniform Corporation Law and gives greater flexibility in the form of certificates of stock without removing any necessary safeguards to their genuineness.

Amend Sec. 60, Ch. 225 by adding after the words "annual meeting" the following: "a special meeting in lieu of such annual meeting may be called upon such notice as may be provided in the by-laws for a special meeting."

Comment. This recommendation is made to obviate the expense and delay in curing a technical defect in the holding of an annual meeting.

Amend Sec. 87, Ch. 225, as amended by Ch. 84 of the Laws of 1927 by striking out the words "Between March 1 and 15 in each year," and inserting in place thereof the words "during the month of April."

Comment. This recommendation is made to save considerable expense attached to the present and inconsistent method of notifying corporations of a default in advance of any default.

Amend Sec. 88, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 84 of the Laws of 1927, by striking out the word "notification" in the 4th line of said section.

Comment. This amendment is made to give effect to the amendment in Sec. 87.

Amend Sec. 1, Ch. 226 by adding at the end thereof the following words "and also sections 15 to 20, inclusive."

Comment. This is to give effect to the next recommendation.

Amend: Ch. 226 by adding at the end thereof the following sections:

"Voting Trusts."

15. Two or more shareholders of any domestic corporation, may pursuant to an agreement in writing transfer their shares to any person or persons or to a corporation having authority to act as trustee for the purpose of vesting in such person or persons or corporation as trustee or trustees all voting or other rights pertaining to such shares for a period not exceeding ten years and upon the terms and conditions stated in the agreement.

16. A duplicate copy of such agreement shall be filed with the Clerk of the corporation and shall be open daily during business hours to the inspection of any shareholder or any depositor under said agreement or the attorney of any shareholder or depositor.

17. Every other shareholder may transfer his shares to the same trustee or trustees upon the terms and conditions stated in said agreement within the time stated in the agreement, or within the time fixed by the trustee or trustees, but in any event at any time within six months of filing the agreement with the Clerk of the corporation and thereupon shall be bound by all the provisions of said agreement.

18. The certificates of shares so transferred shall be surrendered and cancelled, and new certificates therefor issued to such person or persons, and such trustee or trustees, in which new certificates, it shall appear that they are issued pursuant to said agreement. In the entry of transfer on the books of the corporation it shall also be noted that the transfer is made pursuant to said agreement.

19. The trustee or trustees shall execute and deliver to the transferors, voting trust certificates. Such voting trust certificates shall be transferable in the same manner and with the same effect as certificates of stock under provisions of Ch. 225, Section 51, 52, 53.

20. The trustee or trustees shall possess all voting and other rights pertaining to the share so transferred and registered in his or their names subject to the terms and conditions of and for the period specified in said agreement.

Comment. The status of voting trusts, while approved under certain circumstances in an opinion of the Supreme Court, is not clear under the common law and there is no statutory authority for such voting trusts. The recommendation adopts in substance the provisions of the Uniform Corporation Act.

Repeal Sec. 28, Ch. 227, limiting proxy voting at railroad meetings.

Comment. This section reflects the early distrust of corporate enterprise, is repealed so far as it concerns the Boston & Maine Railroad by a special act of the Legislature and its repeal is recommended because it is believed to be an obsolete and unnecessary restriction.

Amend Sec. 29, Ch. 227 by striking out the words "or shall directly or indirectly solicit a proxy for any other person to vote upon" in line 4 of said section.

Comment. This section is probably unknown to the general public, is constantly violated and is an unnecessary restriction upon the exercise of a stockholder's rights.

Repeal Sec. 20, Ch. 309, relating to jurisdiction of probate courts in cases of trusts created by written instrument.

Comment. This section has given rise to doubts in the minds of corporation officers, particularly in its possible application to corporate mortgages. It does not seem desirable that trustees under such mortgages should be subject to the Probate Court. The jurisdiction of the Superior Court over all trusts seems to furnish all necessary safeguards.

SENATE

Opinion of the Supreme Court

The following opinion of the Supreme Court was laid before the Honorable Senate.

To the Honorable Senate:

The undersigned, justices of the supreme court, make this answer to the question submitted us under your resolution with reference to Senate Bill No. 3.

The bill is entitled "An act providing for assistance to the aged." A law making age the only test of relief would be void for a number of reasons.

It would violate the constitutional provision about pensions. (Constn., Pt. I, Art. 36). By the constitution, "Pensions are not to be granted except in consideration of actual service and never for more than one year at a time. A pension ordinarily suggests the idea of a bounty or reward for service rendered, but the term might include a grant which was a mere gratuity." Opinion of the Justices, 78 N. H. 617, 618. Clearly a grant of assistance to one merely because he had reached a certain age would be a pension as thus defined, and its constitutional invalidity cannot be doubted. Opinion of the Justices, supra.

Such a law would also be void under the prohibition of the constitution against taxation for private purposes. The provisions that "Every member of the community . . . is bound to contribute his share in the expense" of the public protection of the right to enjoy life, liberty and property (Constn., Pt. I, Art. 12), and that the "public charges of government" may be raised by taxation (Constn., Pt. II, Art. 6), have always been understood to deny power to the legislature to authorize the assignment of public funds to other than public purposes. Repeated construction to such effect is to be found. Perry v. Keene, 56 N. H. 514, 531; Morrison v. Manchester, 58 N. H. 538, 550; Bowles v. Landaff, 59 N. H. 164, 192; Gould v. Raymond, 59 N. H. 260, 275, 276; State v. Express Co., 60 N. H. 219, 252; Holt v. Antrim, 64 N. H. 284, 286; State v. Pennoyer, 65 N. H. 113, 115; Canaan v. District, 74 N. H. 517, 538; Opinion of the Justices, 76 N. H. 588, 591.

And the constitutional principle of equality of rights in other matters than taxation would be defined. "Under our institutions all men are viewed as equal, entitled to enjoy equal privileges, and to be governed by equal laws." Opinions of the Justices, 4 N. H. 565, 573. "The law cannot discriminate in favor of one person to the detriment of another." State v. Pennoyer, 65 N. H. 113, 114. Classification to be valid must reasonably promote some proper object of public welfare or interest and may not be sustained when the selection and grouping is so arbitrary as to serve no useful purpose of a public nature. State v. Pennoyer, supra; State v. Griffin, 69 N. H. 1.

But examination of the bill shows its title to be misleading. As its author says and as is clear on reading it: "No attempt is being made to create pensions in the proposed measure and the provisions of the bill do not provide that one shall be entitled to the benefits thereof based on age alone. On the contrary one is only eligible to the relief proposed when among other provisions he is unable to support himself, either in whole or in part, and has no relatives able to support him and responsible for his support under the laws . . . ; every applicant seeking relief in this form must be subject to all the provisions of Section 2 of said proposed act, thus clearly bringing him within the present pauper laws, and entitled to relief."

The validity of pauper acts has never been assailed. No bounty or reward is paid nor any gratuity given, in a constitutional sense which gives to public relief furnished under such acts any nature or characteristics of a pension. It is true that a view may be taken that public support of paupers is gratuitous. The agencies of the state have no express constitutional duty to that end. The legislature may or may not arrange for the support as it may please and any support furnished may be limited as it may see fit. But the support of paupers has long been an accepted exercise of valid authority under the police power in promotion of the general welfare. No one would think of it as condemned by the constitution because of some theory of gratuity involved. The same argument may be applied to practically all instances of support and aid furnished in carrying out a purpose of program justified in pursuance of the police power. The legislature may pass laws "for the benefit and welfare of this state," and may impose taxes "for the protection and preservation of the subjects thereof." Constn., Pt. II, Art. 5. In the avoidance and relief of pauperism the state acts for its own benefit and welfare.

Paupers may be reasonably classified. Different groups may receive varying treatment. And the establishment of such a class as the proposed act arranges does not appear necessarily unreasonable. The prescribed age of 65 may reasonably be regarded as one when earning capacity declines and the outlook for self support becomes doubtful. And age may fairly call for some special features of treatment. Especially is the proposed limit a proper one in view of the slight difference of treatment between those thus classified and paupers in general. The age set for admission to the classification is not so arbitrary and does not establish such an arbitrary discrimination as to make it an improper adjustment in the legislative scheme of dealing with pauperism. Special provisions for dependent children (P. L., c. 109), for the feeble minded (P. L., c. 112), and for the deaf, dumb and blind (P. L., c. 115), may be cited as comparable classifications.

The question is not presented whether the proposed act would be valid if it were the only legislation in relief of paupers. The discrimination of age as a boundary between support and no support at all of paupers might be regarded as an invasion of the doctrine of equality of rights. And classification upon the basis of age might upon this ground be held to be unreasonable.

The bill gives aged paupers no relief of substantial measure not already given paupers in general. As a pauper one may properly receive support not only in a limited way to make up for his own deficiency of support but for a limited time when temporarily deprived in part or in full of his earning capacity and ability to support himself. Relief is to be furnished a poor person in need of it while the need continues. "The policy of our law has not been such as to deprive a person of all property before he can avail himself of relief." Moultonboro v. Tuftonboro, 43 N. H. 316, 319. If property cannot be disposed of without the necessity of its immediate replacement to enable its owner to live, he may be entitled to relief. Poplin v. Hawkes, 8 N. H. 305.

The limit of $2,000 in value of property which the bill fixes as one test of relief is not so high that it necessarily means relief to others besides paupers. One may conceivably be worth that amount and yet be so in need of care and aid for himself and his family that he cannot dispose of his property or part of it and be able to live. And authority to legislate on the subject of pauperism is not confined to provisions of assistance. Pauperism may be suppressed and prevented as well as relieved. State v. Express Co., 60 N. H. 219, 257. With the safeguards in the bill of the claim for reimbursement of the support furnished and of authority to require the property to be given as security for the reimbursement, a practical arrangement in avoidance of any gratuitous or misdirected assistance is made. In some measure an avoidance of poverty in extreme degree is accomplished, and a public expense for a private purpose is not therein to be found. The principle of legislation to prevent pauperism is illustrated in the statute directing the appointment of a guardian over one against his consent when he so squanders his estate or is so idle as to make it likely he will in time become a public charge. P. L., c. 291, ss. 4, 5.

As one of its main purposes, the implication of the bill is to provide support for aged paupers outside of poor-farms. As to paupers in general, it is not required that town paupers shall be maintained at such institutions, and town poor-farms authorized by law (P. L., c. 106, s. 2) are now nearly if not entirely a thing of the past. County paupers may be removed to the county poor-farm or any other place designated by the county commissioners. P. L., c. 197, s. 2. It is thus left to local authority to say whether or not a pauper shall be supported at a poor-farm. The bill takes away such authority in respect to aged paupers and implies that they shall not be thus maintained. The exercise of authority by the legislature as to aged paupers and its delegation to local officers as to paupers in general in this respect appears to be a reasonable incident of the classification, adapted to secure one of its objects. That aged paupers shall not be, while others may be, removed to poor-farms, does not violate the mandate of equality. It is not a favor to one class over another, but it is of public concern that the distinction should be made. The distinction is therefore a valid incidental exercise of the general authority to deal with the subject.

Whether some of the details of the bill might in their operation "reveal difficulties which are not apparent upon a consideration" of it "in the abstract" (Opinion of the Justices, 84 N. H.) is to be understood as a reservation. We cannot be sure that all possible questions of doubt have been given attention. But except for its invalidity on a ground remaining to be stated, the consideration given leads to the opinion that the bill meets constitutional tests.

The constitution contains this article: "In the government of this state, the three essential powers thereof, to wit, the legislative, executive, and judicial, ought to be kept as separate from, and independent of, each other, as the nature of a free government will admit, or as is consistent with that chain of connection that binds the whole fabric in one indissoluble bond of union and amity." Constn., Pt. I, Art. 37.

The bill sets up the administration of the system it establishes in the probate courts. The judge is to decide upon all applications, investigating them when deemed necessary, giving hearings thereon, and making special inquiry when probable cause of improper assistance exists. He is to issue rules and regulations for the enforcement of the act and is to keep the public informed about the workings of the system. Orders for payment of assistance are to be given by him. He may seek the advice and assistance of the attorney-general or county solicitor. The register of probate, besides doing the recording work in the administration of the act, is made trustee of the property of paupers aided when the judge orders it thus transferred.

Nothing could be clearer to show the executive character of the authority the bill undertakes to assign. It transfers a part of the authority heretofore exercised by county commissioners and town and city overseers of the poor, whose status as executive officers is not open to question. It erects a structure in the well known form of a governmental agency usually designated as a commission.

Its functions are administrative. To be sure, many things to be done call for the exercise and passing of judgment, and the law ordinarily regards such things as judicial acts, but the judicial character of acts does not test the department of government to which they are assignable.

While the line of division between the departments may be difficult to draw with precision and accuracy, there is no difficulty here in assigning the bill as giving authority clearly belonging to the executive branch. Speaking broadly but definitely enough for present purposes, the judicial department is confined to courts of justice established to interpret laws and decide disputes. Judicial tribunals "decide upon the legality of claims and conduct." Merrill v. Sherburne, 1 N. H. 199, 204. The executive department is the active agency to carry laws into effect and enforce them.

The commission set up by the bill unquestionably belongs to it. Administration of a law is placed under its charge and committed to it. The bill proposes that a court of justice shall be a branch of the executive department of the state government, in respect to its subject-matter.

As the constitution implies, "the three essential powers" cannot be completely separated. In the nature of things there must be some overlapping. Courts may have some administrative powers and executive agencies may have some judicial powers. But such powers may be only attributes of an ancillary character to give efficiency to the activities of the department to which they are attached. The "chain of connection" is to be a chain of links and not a number of disassociated parts. It was recognized that complete rigidity of separation would impair efficiency. But no such situation is here presented. The judicial department can require no power to administer laws relating to pauperism to make its purposes effective, and such laws cannot require administration by the courts to give pauperism efficient treatment. The subject must be classed as one for executive dealing, and is not within any uncertainties of borderland boundaries.

It may be not successfully urged that the bill sets up a commission separate from a court, on the view that while the judge of a court is placed in charge of the commission, the court itself has no such charge. It is not a case of the same person having unrelated public duties, one as a judicial and one as an executive official. While a judge of probate may hold one other office of profit (Constn., Pt. II, Art. 94), the bill does not create a new office. It gives the probate courts additional functions and imposes on them new duties. The judge of the court is to administer the law as a part of his official duty in that capacity. His duty to enforce the law is imposed by force of his appointment and tenure as a judge, and the duty, being his as judge, belongs to the court of which he is judge. That the scheme of the bill places its execution in charge of the court rather than of individuals who happen to be its officers, is apparent. Its general frame as well as particular provisions show this. The undertaking planned by the bill is to be carried on by the organized establishment of the court. Not only are its officers to do the work by virtue of their official positions, but they are to do it in the exercise of them. Consistently throughout the bill reference is to the judge as the one to execute the law, and not to the person who is the incumbent of the office. Certain recording and other duties are assigned the register of probate in the same manner. And compensation for their service is by increase of their salaries as officers of the court. The conclusion is that they are to execute the proposed law as such officers and not because they hold their offices. To take any other view would be to disregard the spirit of the constitution and to countenance an evasion in respect to one of its most important principles.

Cases in which questions of this nature have arisen are not of frequent occurrence. There has been but little disposition to confer executive power on the judiciary. In two cases this court has declined to exercise legislative duties sought to be assigned to it. In re School Law Manual, 63 N. H. 574; In re Probate Blanks, 72 N. H. 621. But cases too numerous to warrant citation are to be found of legislative attempts to exercise the power of the judiciary. In all instances denial of such power has been determined or advised.

In 1818 the court in Merrill v. Sherburne, 1 N. H. 199, 208, 209, explained the reason for the constitutional separation of powers in this paragraph: "It was well known and considered, that 'in the distinct and separate existence of the judicial power consists one main preservative of the public liberty'; that, indeed 'there is no liberty, if the power of judging be not separated from the legislative and executive powers.' In other words that 'the union of these two powers is tyranny': or, as Mr. Madison observes, may justly be 'pronounced the very definition of tyranny'; or, in the language of Mr. Jefferson, 'is precisely the definition of despotick government.'"

Since then recognition of the separation of the three departments as a vital and underlying principle in our form and structure of government has been uniformly and consistently given, and the force of the principle remains to-day unimpaired.

Because the bill does not observe this principle, it is our opinion that it proposes an invalid law.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

Senator George, under a suspension of the rules, sixteen Senators having actually voted in favor thereof, introduced the following entitled bill which was read a first and second time, laid upon the table to be printed and referred to the Committee on Fisheries and Game.

Senate Bill No. 62, An act relating to the open season on salmon.

Senator Robinson, under a suspension of the rules, sixteen Senators having actually voted in favor thereof, introduced the following entitled bill which was read a first and second time, laid upon the table to be printed and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Senate Bill No. 63, An act to enable the town of Newport, New Hampshire to refund its indebtedness.

On motion of Senator Robinson, the rules were suspended, printing and reference to committee dispensed with, and the foregoing entitled bill was read a third time and passed.

SPECIAL ORDER

Senator Barry called for the special order it being,

Senate Bill No. 26, An act authorizing and ordering the State Highway Department to build and maintain by itself and its employees all state roads and highways.

The question being stated:

Shall the vote whereby the bill was ordered not to be read a third time, be reconsidered?

(Discussion ensued)

On a viva voce vote the negative prevailed.

Senator Barry demanded a roll call.

The Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The following named Senators voted in the affirmative. Senators Ryan, Colbath, Carroll, Robinson, Farmer, Barry, Lee, Sheehan, Martel, Fernald of District No. 22 and Little.

The following named Senators voted in the negative. Senators Eaton, Hart, Ferguson, Gerlach, Appleton, Blake, Freese, George, Emery, Hubbard, Fernald of District No. 21, Brackett and Pres. Jones.

Eleven Senators having voted in the affirmative and thirteen Senators having voted in the negative, the negative prevailed and the motion to reconsider was lost.

The Honorable Secretary of State appeared and submitted the following report.

REPORT OF COMMISSION ON COAST EROSION AND MARSH DEVELOPMENT

TO THE HONORABLE SENATE AND THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
N. H. LEGISLATURE SESSION 1931

In accordance with the authority of a joint resolution of the Legislative session of 1929 the following report of the work of the Commission on Coast Erosion and Marsh Development is respectfully submitted:

MEMBERSHIP

The membership of the commission was made up by Governor Spaulding as directed by an act of the Legislature, 1927 Session, as follows: Honorable George H. Moses, Chairman; George Ashworth, Hampton, Vice Chairman; Charles Francis Adams, Hampton, Secretary; William A. Grover, C. E., Engineer, Dover; Ernest G. Cole, Hampton, Fred L. Weare, Seabrook.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

An extended study of the project was made by the commission and a full report of its doings was made by the commission to the Legislature of 1929, and a concrete statement of its findings was summarized in a group of four recommendations as follows:

1. The acceptance and adoption of this report and the recommendations thereon, establishing thereby as the State's future policy the conservation and reclamation of coastal lands.

2. The continuance of the Commission with the addition thereto of the State Commissioner of Highways, with authority to employ the engineering staff of the highway department in making surveys, designs and estimates of construction, and such other work as the Commission requires.

3. That the Commission be empowered and directed to perform the following acts:

(a) To extend to the delegates of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association, when assembled in convention at Hampton Beach in June next, an official invitation to become the guests of the State, through the Commission, and to accept officially the co-operation of the Association's scientists' expert advice in the solving of a national problem.

(b) To obtain, in behalf of the State, federal co-operation and financial aid in carrying out the recommendations requiring federal approval.

(c) To cause a comprehensive survey to be made of the marshlands locating therein the situation, length, width and construction of canals and boulevards; the area properly assigned to a State reservation; the location and area to be assigned to an air-port; the location and area of a wild game preserve.

(d) To determine the method and approximate cost of taking title in the State's name to such area as the commission recommends proper and to determine the extent and terms of reimbursement to the State along lines as follows:

For the wild game preserves: from advocates of game preserves, sportsmen's clubs and interested parties. Reimbursement to the State for the full cost thereof. For the construction cost of canal and boulevards and land costs of reservation area; the revenue from concessions and rentals within the reservations.

For the air-port, the bonds of a county air-port association, the terms, condition, etc., to be determined by the next legislature if recommended by the commission.

The report was accepted.

For the purpose of adopting and the putting into effect the recommendations of the commission, the following joint resolution was enacted by the legislature and approved by Governor Tobey, April 18, 1929.

CHAPTER 273

Joint resolution relating to the investigation of marsh lands in Hampton, Hampton Falls and Seabrook.

Whereas, the report of the legislative commission appointed to investigate the feasibility of improving the marsh lands of Hampton, Hampton Falls and Seabrook, under the provisions of chapter 129, Laws of 1927, has been received and accepted; and

Whereas, said report carries several recommendations that are for the vast interests of the State, therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the recommendations of said commission be and hereby are adopted, and for the purpose of carrying out said recommendations said commission, with the addition of the state highway commissioner as a member thereof, is hereby continued.

That said commission shall make a report of its work at the next session of the legislature. The members of said commission shall serve without pay but legitimate expenses, including the entertainment of the American Shore and

Beach Preservation Association, may be incurred to an amount not exceeding the sum of five hundred dollars and the Governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant for said sum out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

WORK OF 1929-30

Believing that the approval of the state, through its legislative action, in adopting the first of the foregoing recommendations laid the foundation for a permanent policy of development, the commission has limited its work during the past two years very largely to section (a) and (b) of the third recommendation, leaving for the future the consummation of the authorized work on the remaining recommendations.

The invitation of the New Hampshire members of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association was accepted and the mid year meeting of that important national organization was held at Hampton Beach in June, 1929. That meeting produced results of the utmost value to New Hampshire, and a summary of the exercises is herewith given.

JUNE MEETING AMERICAN SHORE AND BEACH PRESERVATION ASSOCIATION

Monday's program opened with registration in headquarters at Hotel Ashworth, and the giving out of identifying badges. Then came the reception to Governor Tobey, with members of the association standing in line with him.

About one hundred guests shook the hands of the receiving party.

Following this, the regular morning session was opened. President Smith, who is the Chairman of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation, extended a greeting in a few, well-chosen words, and then introduced Gov. Charles W. Tobey, who was received with applause. Governor Tobey extended a warm and sincere welcome from the State of New Hampshire to these big men of science and industry, that made the guests feel that they were truly welcome.

Governor Tobey was followed by Mr. Frederic E. Everett, highway commissioner of New Hampshire, who is also a member of the Preservation Association and the New Hampshire Legislative Commission.

President Smith responded to both in a happy manner, and then appointed the committee on resolutions and adjourned the meeting that the intermission until serving of the clam bake could be devoted to an inspection of the shore.

The big clam bake was served to 200 people in a big tent on the sands in front of the Ashworth under supervision of Mr. George Ashworth, vice chairman of the commission and the officials of the Town of Hampton and the Hampton Beach Precinct. It was pronounced the best thing in open-air shore dinners ever held on the beach.

The afternoon session at 2:00 o'clock was much more largely attended, many local people interested in the Hampton Beach project, attending. Altogether there were sixteen states and the District of Columbia represented by members of the association, all of which were on the Atlantic seaboard. Ohio, with its river problems, sent a young geologist.

The first address of this session was made by President J. Spencer Smith of New Jersey. Briefly he said:

"Our purpose, as stated in our constitution, is 'to foster that sound, far-sighted and economical development and preservation of the lands which will aid in placing their benefits within the reach of the largest number of people in accordance with the ideals of a democratic nation.'"

PRES. SMITH'S REFERENCE TO STATE AGENCIES

Describing the practicable solution of laying claim to land titles for the purpose of protection from erosion, President Smith continued:

"Existing State agencies can be clothed with power to set up assessment districts upon the requests of a given number of property owners, or a number of communities. The cost of a comprehensive plan, which will be effective, covering the area in question can be ascertained and the proportion to be borne by the interested parties determined. The question can then be voted upon. The right of individuals and the communities can be equally protected under this arrangement. At the same time neither individuals nor communities will be permitted, for selfish reasons, to block the execution of a project which will conserve a natural asset."

Prof. Goldthwaite described the state historically and politically, stressing the natural apathy which most of the members of the Legislature show for the 18 miles of coast, since they represent hill and farming counties. The New Hampshire coast would go only a quarter of the distance around Lake Winnepesaukee, declared the speaker, "and is but a fraction of the length of the Connecticut river in this state. It is quite natural that you hear most about our rivers and lakes and because of the above fact it is difficult to face the representatives from the inland communities on legislation for protecting the coast line."

Professor Goldthwaite condemned the practice of permitting private individuals and building contractors to carry away truck loads of sand from the beaches which are state property.

A vivid picture of Hampton river as a navigable stream and ship haven, the marshlands as a state park, aviation base, residential, business area and the beach, itself, as a resort for thousands of vacationists annually, was painted, in words, by Mr. Victor Gelineau, chief engineer of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation.

ENGINEER GELINEAU'S CONCRETE PLAN

Mr. Gelineau, who made a survey of the situation at Hampton, suggested appointing a permanent commission or board to work out a program for the development of Hampton. He figured that it would take at least 20 years to complete the program.

"Whether or not it be conceded that Hampton's beach problem is unusual, it will not be disputed that Hampton's possibilities and opportunities are extraordinary."

This strip of land, according to the New Jersey expert, bounded on one side by the ocean and on the other side by uninhabitable salt marshes, offers no inducements for agriculture or manufacturing or any other gainful activity, except one, the resort business. And that, in his estimation, is the greatest and most rapidly advancing single industry in the state.

"Therefore," Mr. Gelineau told his audience, the conservation and development of this beach with a view to realizing its utmost possibilities is a subject for serious consideration. It is of much more than local concern, it is unthinkable that the future growth of this highly valuable asset, should be left to chance. "I would, for convenience, subdivide the Hampton problem into three parts, all of which are closely related and interdependent."

Mr. Gelineau placed in the first class the preservation of the ocean front, a coast protection project.

In the second, he recommended the improvement of Hampton river, a waterway, improvement project. In the third, he proposed the reclamation of the back marshes.

All of these three factors, the speaker declared, involve their peculiar elements of engineering public policy as to elimination and financing. The preservation and rebuilding of the ocean beach is the first element in urgency and difficulty of execution, he declared. The tendency toward depletion apparently remains in force and must ultimately be checked. This problem will never be less difficult in the future. Erosion is the natural tendency to expect on almost any ocean beach. Just south of Boar's Head, the beach is entirely denuded of sand and the roadway might be in danger during severe storms.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES

"Obviously protective measures should be considered and the choice and application of remedies should be made.

"The stabilization of Hampton River with the primary object of improving navigation and creating a harbor of refuge is the ordinary problem of dredging and training walls.

"Until this river, just as in the case of Shark river, is stabilized, it will be of little or no value to navigation and will render impossible the preservation of the beach near the river mouth. Obviously, sudden or periodic shifting of the inlet to delta must be arrested. The essential point is that it should be made to serve as key structure of a sandy beach.

RECLAMATION OF THE MARSHES

"The reclamation of the back marshes constitutes a very important element in the future growth of Hampton Beach. The time cannot be far distant when parts of this marsh are rendered habitable by the operation of raising the land levels. Presumably, the method of procedure would be the familiar one of hydraulic dredging. This would convert much of the existing marsh areas into water areas. A two-fold benefit is thus secured through the dredging operation, the low-value marshes being converted into valuable solid land or navigable waterways.

"Anyone can visualize the opportunity for large scale planning with this vast scope of marshland converted into home sites and parks, yachts and ship basins and airports. The possibilities are unlimited and apparently no serious difficulties exist. The suggested dredging of the marshland would extend the tidal flow area tributary to Hampton river. This, in turn, would profoundly influence the design of the training walls and other work required to stabilize and improve the river, for it is elementary that the cross-section of navigable channels of an ocean inlet depends upon the area of the tributary tidal lagoon or more accurately upon the volume of ebbing and flowing water which engineers call the tidal prism."

THREE PHASES OF DEVELOPMENT

The three major phases of development of beach, river and marsh are inseparable; according to Mr. Gelineau they combine to form one real problem.

"There are difficulties," he told the gathering, "but they can be solved. The only chance to reach satisfactory results is to create a properly constituted tribunal with continuity of its service and armed with real authority. Without this continuity of service and authority, conflict is certain to result. And that means possible failure.

"This public body, commission or board, whatever form it may take, would have to work out a plan providing as well as might be for at least 20 years in the future.

"Board-walk, park land, harbor, airport, residential and business areas, public utilities of every kind, all would be co-ordinated and harmonized into the general plan.

"That such planning would be entrusted to public-spirited men supported with adequate technical assistants is an unavoidable conclusion. The job would be a full time task for experts who would give their lives to it. This, in turn, implies freedom from local interference or political controversies. Freedom from politicians is absolutely indispensable to the public confidence."

Although the sheer realist, he said, cannot conceive of land owners controlling the vagaries of the plan of rivers, the united interest of erosion experts might. He told of the work accomplished in New Jersey with its 120-mile coast and urged the appointment of state commission with suitable appropriations.

STATE READY TO FINANCE

Atty. General Ralph W. Davis of Manchester, who was called upon by President Smith of the association, said that New Hampshire stood ready to finance propositions which would directly benefit the state. Failure of any organized group to properly recommend a solution to the Hampton problem was responsible for the lack of progress made. He said "there is nothing unique in the problem which now confronts Hampton, and what affects Hampton affects vitally the whole state of New Hampshire with its very limited beach front."

Major Somervell, United States Army engineer, brought

word of study and co-operation on the part of the government informing the convention that experts were studying sand movements along the coast.

General Richard K. Hale of the Massachusetts Public Works Commission related the historical and present importance of the Massachusetts coast, telling of what had been done north and south of Boston in checking erosion with conditions like those along the Atlantic generally.

GOV. TOBEY PRESENT

At the banquet in the evening Governor Tobey, Gov. William Tudor Gardiner of Maine, United States Senator George H. Moses, President Smith of the association and Colonel Barden of the United States Army Corps of Engineers were the chief speakers. Others at the head table included Former Governor Huntley N. Spaulding, Councilor Harry Merrill of Exeter, State Senators Swallow and Lee of Manchester, Senator Rolfe of Concord and Senator Munsey of Hampton, Senator Brackett of Greenland, Senator Wadleigh of Milford and Senator Peaslee of Weare, and more than thirty members of the House of Representatives.

Mayor Hartford of Portsmouth acted as toastmaster.

President Smith told the assembly that those interested in coast preservation and protection would have to organize themselves, form a board and give it power and support it financially.

Governor Gardiner was particularly interested in the subject of the control of pollution of waters in rivers and bays.

SENATOR MOSES ADDRESSES THE BANQUET

Senator Moses in his address said in part, "The problem of coast erosion is one which engages the interest of both the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard. The damage is done, not only to material problems, but to the scenic attractiveness of the coast line. The question is one of almost equal consequence with a problem, which arises in connection with our river and harbors department. Some of these states, notably New Jersey and New Hampshire, have already taken steps to avert the disaster which surely impends unless steps are presently taken to protect the integrity of our northern coast line. This is the section which is most exposed to the ravages of extreme storm perils, and the credit belongs to your own Representative from Hampton, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, for the State Commission and the important work it is doing.

"Massachusetts, too, has named a commission to deal with this subject and New Hampshire earnestly seeks the closest of co-operation with her elder and southern neighbor.

"If Massachusetts and New Hampshire together should move promptly and vigorously to secure a federal appropriation for the purposes which the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association has in mind, I feel sure that we cannot fail to have the ultimate approval of Congress.

"At the final session of the association President Smith took the opportunity to invite the New Hampshire commission to visit New Jersey where a problem similar to Hampton's has been successfully solved.

"You will find us ready and willing to serve you, to give you access to our records and our files and to assist you in developing this great beach," he declared.

"The association has endeavored, in its two-day session, to demonstrate what has been done in the few years of its organization. We have been glad to place this material in your hands. And I may say at this time that you have helped us also. I was greatly impressed by your parallel highways, one running a few miles back from the shore and the other following the winding coast line.

"You have worked out a very fine plan of having the view from your shore road unobstructed."

CONTINUING THE COMMISSION'S REPORT

The engineering features of the Hampton problem as presented in the study by Victor Gelineau, who is the chief engineer of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation, was along the lines on which your commission is working. This engineer's suggestion that the present Legislative Commission be made a permanent state agency, similar to those in New Jersey and several other states is unanimously approved by the members in this report, because the work devolving upon the state agency while in co-operation with this Government and later in working and the development of the harbor, river and marsh projects for the highest return to the state must necessarily cover an extended period of time.

The three stages through which, as Gelineau says, the best results can be obtained were early recognized and adopted by your commission and its work for the immediate future is in co-operation with the Federal Board created at the last session of Congress for the study of coast erosion problems and providing remedies therefor. This board is composed of four army engineers with Gen. Lytle Brown of Washington, Chairman and Chief engineer; and three civilians, Victor Gelineau, C.M., New Jersey; Prof. Thorn-dyke Seville of the University of North Carolina and Gen. Richard H. Hale of Massachusetts. These civilian members of the Board are all members of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association and are more or less familiar with the Hampton problems and are heartily in sympathy with the work which this commission has undertaken in behalf of the State of New Hampshire.

For a long time to come the State agency must be in close co-operation with the National Board, with consultations at Hampton Beach, Boston and Washington.

The larger share of the cost will be borne by the Federal government, but under the terms of the congressional act some share must be borne by the state of New Hampshire. However, if the results expected are realized the cost will be insignificant in comparison with the value of the service to New Hampshire. The conditions at Hampton Beach are desperate. Unless remedial work is undertaken at early date a very large section of New Hampshire's most valuable seacoast will be utterly destroyed.

CO-OPERATIVE NATIONAL AND STATE PROJECT

The very nature of the work as well as its magnitude makes it essentially a co-operative national and state project, but it is largely owing to the creation by our legislature in 1927 of this commission that there is now a Federal board to bring to New Hampshire financial and engineering assistance in this hour of need. The least that New Hampshire can do, then, in our belief, is to meet the government part way with a permanent commission and the small appropriation which is necessary to begin study and remedial work.

COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT

Following the construction work necessary to check erosion and reclaim the lost shore front, will be the commercial development of the Hampton river and the adjoining marsh lands and the first steps in the project have already been taken by your commissioners.

Through the efforts of the New Hampshire delegation in Congress under the leadership of Senators Moses and Keyes an item was inserted in the River and Harbor bill of 1930 authorizing a survey of the Hampton project. Under that authority we petitioned the District engineers of the War Department at Boston for a public hearing which was accorded us and Col. Cheney and Col. Park were assigned to the case.

ENGINEER GROVER PRESENTS CASE TO GOVERNMENT ENGINEER

Through our commission's engineer, Mr. W. A. Grover, our case was most ably presented and we are happy to state brought a favorable report to the chief engineer at Washington. The full board, however, has temporarily held up the commercial project yet leaving us in good standing to go forward with this phase when the erosion and harbor work is completed.

New Hampshire is the first state to seek federal aid under the recent act of Congress and the first step was taken on Monday, February 8, when a conference was held between Mr. W. A. Grover, the commission's engineer, and the engineers of the War Department in accordance with the requirements of the National Erosion Act. From now on the work will be of a co-operative nature and will be pushed as rapidly as possible that the real work of construction may begin.

Your commission therefore makes the following recommendations and urgently prays that they be granted by the 1931 Session of the Legislature:

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That New Hampshire legally may meet the requirements of a state agency under the terms of the National Erosion Act of 1930 and placed upon an equal footing with similar state agencies in the several states the legislative commission of coast erosion and marsh development be made a permanent state agency to be hereafter known as the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission. The membership of the Coast Erosion and Marsh Development Commission as now constituted shall be the membership of the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission and vacancies hereinafter occurring in said commission shall be filled by appointment of the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of his Council. The said members of the commission shall serve without pay; provided, however, the Secretary of the Commission, acting as an executive officer, may be entitled to compensation in a sum not exceeding $750 per annum, and members may be entitled to a per diem compensation for actual attendance at conferences and their legitimate expenses.

2. That the sum of $3000 be appropriated to cover the foregoing expenses and such share of the cost of erosion study as may be required by the national erosion board from the New Hampshire Commission.

3. That all the authority conferred upon the legislative commission by Joint Resolution, chapter 273 of the Laws of 1929, be conferred upon the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission, together with such other authority as will establish the said commission as the legal representative of the state of New Hampshire in all matters pertaining to coastal improvements.

Honorable Senators:

May I bring to your attention at this time a matter that I believe is of paramount importance to the people of New Hampshire. It has to do with the regulation of rates charged by Public Utility Corporations operating within New Hampshire.

The Public Service Commission of New Hampshire is charged with regulating Public Service Corporations under the law. Among other things the Public Statutes direct that "every public utility shall furnish such service and facilities as shall be reasonably safe and adequate and in all respects just and reasonable." The Statute further states that "Every charge that is unjust or unreasonable, or in excess of that allowed by law or by order of the Commission, is prohibited." In order to carry out specifically the statutory obligation of the Commission to regulate rates charged by utility companies the Commissioners were unanimous in stating to me the need of the power granted under Senate Bill No. 75. The only alternative to protect the users of light and power would be an additional appropriation which would be paid out of the pockets of the general taxpayers, whether or not they lived within the area served by the utility company under investigation, and regardless of whether they were consumers or nonconsumers of light and power elsewhere. I am convinced beyond any reasonable doubt that any rate investigation undertaken by the Public Service Commission without adequate means to get the facts is a mere formality and a farce. After a struggle that culminated in a series of political acrobatics that attracted attention throughout the United States and that contributed materially to smashing a one-term precedent for Executives that had held for more than half a century, the control of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission was placed in the hands of men whose sole interest is to faithfully perform the duties incumbent upon them as public servants. To do this it is necessary that they have tools to work with. The electorate was aware of this situation and the delegates to both major conventions pledged their respective parties to take effective action.

The Republican Platform reads, "We pledge the Republican Party to appropriate funds and delegate sufficient authority to the Public Service Commission to ensure protection of the public." The Democratic Platform on this issue is even more specific: "We believe in the preservation of the rights of the public in all of our natural resources, including water powers. We believe also in the strict supervision of the cost to the consumer of power developed by these water powers, whether to the householder, the merchant or the manufacturer, with sufficient authority in the Public Service Commission and the appropriation of adequate funds to carry out these principles."

My acquaintance with the members of this Legislature convinces me that those gathered here in this session of 1931 will not knowingly see these pledges reduced to mere scraps of paper after this issue has been brought to their attention.

Senate Bill No. 75, introduced by Senator Brackett and recommended by the Public Service Commission, gives the Commission authority to charge back the cost of a rate investigation to the public utility investigated. Today the cost of the defense against lowering rates by public utilities is borne by the consumers who pay the rates objected to as unreasonable. A statute exactly similar to the pending bill was adopted by the Federal Congress pertaining to regulation of rates within the District of Columbia.

The Public Service Commission, when sitting on a rate case, is compelled to find on the facts that are introduced as evidence. The Legislative appropriations in the past have not been sufficient to permit the Commission to engage experts to make a complete and thorough investigation. Therefore, as a practical matter they have been compelled to reach their decisions based largely on evidence introduced by the utility company, under investigation.

Any decision reached by the Commission in regard to reasonableness of rates is subject to appeal and review by the Supreme Court of the State.

There is one amendment to the bill which I would suggest. Under the present statute if a stated number of customers or subscribers request an investigation the Commission is directed to make such investigation. If under the authority granted in this bill a thorough investigation has been made I believe that the right to request another investigation within a five-year period be subject to the approval of the Commission unless otherwise directed by the Legislature. This would prevent small minorities subjecting an entire community to continuous investigation at the expense of the communities.

The activity of certain gentlemen since this legislation was introduced prompts me to restate my attitude toward the general practice of lobbying. "For your information, Chapter 4, Section 28, compels all paid lobbyists to register with the Secretary of State. The record is open for your inspection. It is proper that you give these gentlemen a courteous hearing; but may I remind you that the public retains no lobby. The people of New Hampshire depend on you to represent, defend and protect their interests in accordance with your oath of office."

To the Honorable Senate:

I am returning herewith, without my signature, Senate

Bill No. 60, entitled "An act relating to assignments for the benefit of creditors."

In my opinion the inconvenience arising from the proposed legislation will in many cases be greater than the inconvenience it seeks to remedy. Federal officials, in co-operation with the American Bar Association, are at present making a most exhaustive study of the bankruptcy laws, and I would suggest awaiting their findings before changing our law in this regard.

I am therefore withholding my approval of this bill.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

and Representatives:*

I am glad that my predecessors have established the custom of an outgoing governor appearing before the Legislature, and in what is known as an Ex-Augural Address giving to the new Legislative body an accounting of his stewardship and the benefit of the experiences gained in his administration. I am grateful, also, for the opportunity of voicing a hearty welcome to you, in behalf of the State, and express the hope that you may find your associations together both a present and lasting satisfaction. Having, myself, served in four sessions of the Legislature, covering both branches, I know whereof I speak, and bear testimony to the splendid associations that have come to me in this work and the resulting friendships. You, too, will find a common experience.

It is a great school, this New Hampshire Legislature. Some may laugh at it and speak of its unusual size, but despite these things it remains true that whoever serves a term in our Legislature receives a course of instruction in Parliamentary Law, a wider knowledge of the Institutions of our State, an understanding of the State's finances, and last, but not least, considerable knowledge of human nature. I doubt that these things can be gained through any other agency in a similar period of time.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Before we consider departmental or institutional matters in our Government, it is important to know our financial situation. Past administrations have expressed the State's financial situation in different formulae. The last fiscal year in the State's business affairs ended June 30, 1930. For that year the total income of the State was $15,353,-656.80. Adding to this cash and cash items on hand July 1, 1929, gives a total of $16,596,198.72. During the fiscal year the State paid out total disbursements of $15,237,-064.13, and striking this from the total receipts and cash on hand a year ago shows a balance of $1,359,134.59 in cash on hand July 1st, 1930.

The asset and liability position of the State was as follows:

Assets July 1, 1930	$1,915,383.03
Liabilities July 1, 1930	$5,389,465.32

The difference between these two, $3,474,082.29, is the net debt of the State on July 1st, 1930.

The major part of this debt is the Flood and Highway Bonds, and for your information, the longest maturity of any State bonds outstanding is 1948; but on the Permanent Highway Bonds, the longest maturity is 1943, and these Permanent Highway Bonds are all to be amortized by the application of the fourth cent of the gasoline tax, as you doubtless well know.

But this is not all. To get a complete picture of the State's financial position you should know that on June 30, 1930, the end of the last fiscal year, there were appropriation liabilities outstanding of $2,109,130.89. Now, what are these appropriation liabilities? They are partly the amount of money which the State is obliged to pay out for appropriations designated by the Legislature, and largely Highway income from Motor Vehicle Fees and Gasoline Tax, accumulated and unspent; in other words, different departments and units of our State Government have got a claim on the State for the amount of money that has been appropriated or accumulated to their credit. The question will naturally arise, with you as it did with me, if the State had outstanding $2,109,130.89 on June 30, as Appropriation Liabilities, and only had on hand at that time the cash and cash item amounts totaling $1,359,134.59, obviously the State has got to produce the difference between those two figures. And you will ask with me, where is this to come from and why is this so. I think I can enlighten you. Appropriation liabilities have been outstanding to a considerable amount at the end of every fiscal year, back to the year ending June 30, 1921:

On June 30, 1921, they were.....	$ 995,739.24
On June 30, 1922, they were.....	$1,239,752.40
On June 30, 1923, they were.....	$1,401,693.70
On June 30, 1924, they were.....	$1,848,531.14
On June 30, 1925, they were.....	$2,126,556.40
On June 30, 1926, they were.....	$1,961,038.26
On June 30, 1927, they were.....	$2,407,681.46
On June 30, 1928, they were.....	$2,386,032.86
On June 30, 1929, they were.....	$2,321,438.73
On June 30, 1930, they were.....	$2,109,130.89

So you will see, appropriation liabilities are no stranger to our various State administrations. Now, how has this matter, which in my administration amounts to $2,109,130.89 as of last June, accrued? I can tell you how a considerable part of it has come about. Down through the years it has been the custom to pay for some major expense items and constructions which had been authorized by the legislatures, out of current earnings, so-called, or cash on hand, and not by issuing the various bond issues that had been authorized to provide the funds for such improvements and construction. To illustrate: bonds were authorized for the Brown Building at the State Hospital, amounting to approximately $245,000. These were never issued and the money of course had to come from current revenue, so-called. At another time a legacy tax refund was to be made, having been illegally collected. This was approximately $900,000. Bonds were authorized but not issued and the payments were made from current revenue, so-called. At another time bonds were authorized to build the new bridge at Portsmouth, nearly $500,000. These bonds were not issued and the bridge was paid for out of so-called current earnings.

Again, bonds were authorized in the amount of $132,000 for a new building at Glencliff; these bonds were not issued and the cost of the building was paid for out of so-called current earnings. Please bear in mind that I cite these not in any spirit of criticism but merely to show how the present treasury position of the State has been affected by this policy, down through the years.

We want to be sure that we are not fooling ourselves. If we were all partners in a business concern and had a certain amount of money on hand in the Treasury, but had commitments in the form of bills for past construction of our factories aggregating twice the amount of cash on hand, we would certainly not consider our position strong unless we knew where the money was coming from to meet these liabilities. The same analogy holds in our State Government.

Had these four issues of bonds which I have mentioned, and which were authorized, been duly issued the State would obviously have had $1,732,000 more cash in its Treasury on June 30, last, than it did have, which added to the cash on hand then would have exceeded the appropriation liabilities by a substantial margin.

I am not criticizing this procedure. I am only illustrating cause and effect. It may be that the State benefited by virtue of the fact that interest rates might have been rather high if bond issues had been put out at that particular time. There may be other compensating factors that could be cited, but the fact remains that when this money was taken out of free cash, so-to-speak, or current income, as others call it, it had to come from somewhere, and in view of the fact that the Highway Department income is the largest factor in the State's income, and that the Highway Department had not used up the entire amount to which they were entitled under our law from the gasoline tax and motor vehicle fees, this money of theirs was in the Treasury, and it was spent in place of the money that would have come in if the bonds had been issued.

In this administration the Highway Department has had need of all its accrued revenue to carry out the increased program which they have undertaken. We felt that they should have what belonged to them, and they have largely used it up. Had they not done so we should obviously have more cash on hand at the present time. It will doubtless develop in the coming administration that the cash resources of the State will run low for the balance of the fiscal year, and you will doubtless be called upon to authorize some form of financing to strengthen the Treasury position.

My purpose in coming to you with this perhaps rather unusual explanation of State finances is that sooner or later we have to look facts in the face, and it might as well be now.

The credit of the State is very strong, and this is well evidenced by the sale of bonds during the last two years, in each case the bonds selling at a premium and finding a ready market.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

During my administration Attorney-General Waldron resigned and I appointed Ralph W. Davis of Manchester his successor. Mr. Carleton, Assistant Attorney-General, also resigned, and I appointed Winthrop Wadleigh to succeed him. Theirs has been an efficient administration and has been very active, prosecuting many criminal cases of importance. A number of outstanding matters have been taken up and I wish to briefly give you a summary thereof.

The Vermont Boundary Case. This dispute is of many years' standing. It has dragged on year after year at a continuous expense to both States. Real progress has been made the last year, and the work became so involved that it was found necessary to employ special counsel, and the Governor and Council authorized the appointment of Dewitt W. Howe of Manchester to assist in further preparation and trial of the case. The United States Supreme Court has appointed a master to hear the evidence, and he is now working on the case. It will be some time before any decision is reached. This whole matter has been expensive to both States, but the issue is of considerable importance. The decision of the U. S. Supreme Court will be necessary before the issue is finally determined.

Coal Rate Case. It was brought to the attention of the administration that freight rates on bituminous coal coming into New Hampshire entirely by rail were unjust to our manufacturers in comparison with rates to points of similar distances in other states. New Hampshire consumers pay each year for freight on soft coal approximately four million dollars. It is obvious that a moderate reduction in these rates would mean a very large saving to New Hampshire consumers each year. It was decided to start an independent action against the railroads before the Interstate Commerce Commission, seeking reduction in these rates. The case was filed in December, 1929, with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Governor and Council authorized the employment of an attorney in Washington to assist in prosecuting the case. Last September a hearing was held in our Senate Chamber by an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and final decision will probably be reached during the coming year. It is reasonable to expect a successful outcome from the standpoint of New Hampshire consumers, and if so it will have been very much worth while.

An investigation was made by the Public Service Commission as to the reasonableness of the toll rates effective on the Dover Point Toll Bridge, and the Attorney-General and the Assistant Attorney-General brought the matter before the Commission in behalf of the public. As a result of these hearings the Boston & Maine asked leave to file a new schedule of rates, which was accepted and the new rates became effective a year ago. The saving to the public amounts to about $36,000 per year.

For about five years the B. & M. Railroad shop case has been pending in the Courts, handled by Robert W. Upton of Concord, as special counsel for the State. Conferences were held looking towards an adjustment of this case by the administration and special counsel, the Attorney-General, and late President Hannauer. Since President Hannauer's death conferences have been resumed with President French of the Boston & Maine and after a series of meetings I am pleased to report the case has been settled out of Court, and settled to the manifest advantage of Concord and New Hampshire. Under the terms of the settlement the Railroad is spending about $300,000 in Concord shops. When the changes are complete, the Railroad will employ about 125 extra men with an annual payroll of about a quarter of a million dollars. All repair work on passenger cars has been removed from Massachusetts into New Hampshire. This settlement will come before you for your consideration. I recommend its approval.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

One of the most important departments of our State Government is that of the Public Service Commission. Created during the administration of Governor Bass, the value of its services is now generally recognized, both by Public Service Corporations and the public at large. Its duties are many; it must act often in a judicial capacity, hearing both sides of matters pertaining to public service affairs, to see that justice is done. The Legislature during this present administration, realizing the importance of this Department, passed several laws which have given the Commission increased power, and are manifestly in the interests of the people of our State.

One provides that, whenever any investigation is necessary to enable the Commission to pass upon petitions to issue securities, make extensions or discontinue service, to condemn property for flowage or dam construction, etc., the utility must pay to the Commission the expense involved. This Statute is very far reaching in its effect.

The important matter of exportation of energy generated by water power was safeguarded in the last Legislature by the establishment of the provision that required the exporting company to discontinue exportation in whole or in part to such an extent and under such conditions as the Commission may order, when, as, and if such electrical energy is reasonably required for use within the State.

Under Chapter 179 of the Laws of 1929, utilities were required to make, renew, or extend contracts for the delivery of energy to another utility upon such terms and conditions as the Commission shall find to be for the public good. Both of these added powers have been applied by the Commission during the last two years, for the public good.

Under Chapter 113 of the Laws of 1929 the law was changed with respect to taking of public lands by a public utility. As the law is now, no public lands can be taken by a utility until the Commission finds that the taking is for the public good, and determines the amount of compensation to be paid for said land.

The Commission has engaged a nationally known rate expert for a general survey and study of our rates, and the investigation is now in process. When received in final form it should be of material help.

No single factor will do more for our rural life than rural electrification. With this in mind, a survey is being conducted of the methods employed in securing rural extensions with the object of obtaining a uniform plan under which the majority of companies will operate. This investigation includes a study as to the reasonableness of charges to customers who are required to contribute towards the cost of construction of such lines.

A further change in the law has been to empower the Public Service Commission to call in the Attorney-General to prepare and present cases for the people, when, in the judgment of the Commission, the case is of sufficient importance to warrant its consideration.

An important investigation was initiated by the Commission of subsidiaries of the Associated Gas & Electric Co.—a holding company operating in this State, the New Hampshire Gas & Electric Co., and the Derry Electric Co. During 1930 the Public Service Commission learned that these local companies had entered into certain different long-term contracts under which various sums would be paid out to contractors. It also appeared that the outstanding mortgage on the property of the Derry Co. had been foreclosed, although apparently the actual net income of that Company had been sufficient to provide adequately for the payment of interest on that mortgage. Other points developed which the Commission felt they should have more light upon. As one result of this suit I am advised that the Portsmouth Co. has saved about $46,000 per year interest charges.

The State is represented in their investigation by the Attorney-General, and in addition special counsel has been employed with the approval of the Governor and Council. A large quantity of evidence has been taken and a considerable number of exhibits introduced, and from progress made to date the investigation has been thoroughly justified and should be carried on to completion. What our Public Service Commission is interested in is whether the consumers of our State who patronize these utilities are receiving the rate advantage to which they are entitled; or to put it another way, whether or not the methods employed and the entire relations of the operating company with the holding company constitute proper management and operation from the standpoint of the customers' welfare.

FISHERIES AND GAME DEPARTMENT

Probably no department of the State Government has more popular appeal than the Department of Fisheries and Game. Any one who has served in the Legislature will confirm this, and it is evidenced by the popular interest in all measures affecting this Department. In this administration certain irregularities developed in the conduct of the affairs of the Department, which made necessary some reorganization in the personnel. A new commissioner was appointed and other changes were made. Eleven wardens have been added to the force, making a total of twenty-eight, all of whom are on a year-around basis. Sanctuaries have been established in Washington and several others are being considered through the State. Strenuous efforts are being made to exterminate bobcats; three thousand jack-rabbits were planted during the last year; the Department has purchased twenty-seven automobiles at the approximate cost of sixteen thousand dollars, and every warden uses a State car in the performance of his duties. The capacity of the Game Farm for hatching and rearing pheasants has been materially increased; the Department planted over seven million fish of all kinds in 1930, against a total of five million two hundred and thirty-three thousand in 1929; one hundred thirty-two thousand brook trout ranging in length from five to seven inches have been planted throughout the State. This comprises the largest planting of fish of this size ever undertaken in the East. A new hatchery building was constructed in New Hampton and alterations to the different State hatcheries have increased the rearing capacity to two million fingerlings in natural rearing pools out-of-doors. Screens have been installed at the outlet of eleven different ponds and lakes including revolving type screens of metal construction at both Sunapee and Newfound.

The improvement in the financial position of the Department is worthy of comment. The balance on hand

On July 1st, 1928, was	$715.35
On July 1st, 1929, was	22,570.00
And On July 1st, 1930, was	40,788.00

I believe the Department as now organized has made a most creditable record. Naturally, there are so many sportsmen in our population that there will be many varieties of opinion on different phases of the Department's work, but I think no one will question that the Department has been operated in the interests of the State, and is in a sound and healthy condition, as reflected by the financial illustration herein set forth.

DEPARTMENT OF BANKING

The Merrimack River Savings Bank was closed last summer by order of the Bank Commissioner, because it was found that its condition was such that the public welfare demanded it. Subsequent investigations have confirmed that this was necessary. The savings of twenty thousand of our people in the amount of eleven million dollars were jeopardized by wretched management and dishonorable methods and practices. Civil and criminal actions are now pending and are being prosecuted with diligence. The Court ordered the bank liquidated and material progress has been made in this direction. An initial dividend in liquidation amounting to $33\frac{1}{3}\%$ was paid in November of last year, and more will be paid as rapidly as possible. But, with the tragic picture of the whole matter in our minds, with the depositing public's confidence outraged as it has been by the chicanery and crooked methods and irregularities practiced, the question before us is, what shall we do towards making impossible a repetition of such conditions?

Manifestly, everything that can be done to that end should be done. Matters of legislation affecting banking laws will come before you. Many suggestions may be made. In my judgment, the need is not so much for new laws as for a strict enforcement of the laws now on our Statute Books, as to bank examinations, and responsibility of Trustees. I believe that had the laws on our Statute Books now affecting Savings Banks been entirely lived up to and had the trustees of the failed Bank met their obligations as trustees in accordance with the law's requirements, this thing never would have happened.

There is one suggestion I would make to strengthen our banking laws. The law now allows 40% of deposits to be invested in real estate outside New Hampshire. It seems to me that at least as stringent requirements should be required on loans on real estate outside of New Hampshire as are required on loans within the State, there being now a disparity in favor of loans made on land outside the State.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

During this administration several important pieces of legislation were passed pertaining to construction, reconstruction, and maintenance of our highways, the outstanding being House Bill No. 4, which provides for the reconstruction of trunk line highways with higher type surfaces, which carried a bond issue of eight million dollars, one and one-half million payable in 1929, one and one-half million in 1930, and one million each year for the next five years.

Another House Bill, No. 310, carried a bond issue of $750,000 for a loan to cities and towns by the State to permit the completion of the previously laid out trunk line highways.

With the money raised by these two bills the State has made greater progress in highway construction during the past two years than during any similar period of its existence. And this has been accomplished with no increase in motor vehicle fees or in the gasoline tax.

The complete mileage of all roads constructed and reconstructed in 1929 was 198.27 miles, and during 1930 over 225 miles. All of the uncompleted portions of the laid out trunk line system have been closed and the system is now 100% complete.

With the help of this bond issue bill, we constructed in 1929 fifty-four miles of concrete, and in 1930 nearly fifty-nine miles of concrete. This concrete road was increased from the old width of eighteen feet to twenty feet in width. The state now has a total of reinforced concrete highways of 168.63 miles. Just to give you an idea of how much this is, the distance from Nashua to Colebrook is 182 miles.

The cost of the highways built in 1929 was about $5,800,000 and in 1930 about 7 million dollars. This covers everything in road construction and maintenance.

I think that he who rides will appreciate that progress has been very real and substantial. The highway construction has been prosecuted with more speed than heretofore, and while there must always be some discomfort and inconvenience to the travelling public in these major operations of highway construction, yet it has been reduced to a lesser degree than heretofore, and the public generally appreciates this result.

I have always believed that the State should take over the maintenance of all trunk lines. I recommended it in my Inaugural message, but it failed to pass the Legislature. However, we did make progress towards reducing the amounts which the cities and towns shall pay by passage of House Bill No. 105, which provides that the expense of such maintenance to cities and towns shall not be more than 30¢ on each $100 of value. This was a material reduction over the ratio prior to 1929.

Under House Bill No. 173, amending Chapter 85 of the Public Laws, we gave assistance to towns in the construction of State-aid bridges and increased the carrying capacity of the bridges constructed under the Law from ten to fifteen tons. This has been instrumental in increasing the efficiency of the State-aid system by the increase in the carrying capacity of the bridges.

One of the signs of progress in New Hampshire has been the results achieved under House Bill No. 309, which gave the Highway Commissioner the right to designate complete sections of State-aid highways that connected with trunk line highways for snow removal, and allows the State to assist the towns with their plowing of such sections by paying one-half of the cost. This aid to winter travel on the highways is a large factor in bettering community life and is much appreciated.

Recreational travel through the State was encouraged by the passage of House Bill No. 201, which gives to the summer visitors unlimited free use of our Highways, when travelling through our State for pleasure, provided their cars are properly registered in all States.

The breakage of a dam at Dixville Notch in May, 1929, inundated the valley south of Dixville and the town of Colebrook, and this disaster demanded quick action by the administration. The Highway Department gave splendid cooperation and were on the scene the next day, making a survey of conditions and conferring with the town authorities. The mythical red tape was cut, and temporary improvements made, followed by permanent improvements on bridge and highway construction that have left that district better served and equipped than ever before, and which are a great credit to the State.

The work begun in May was open to traffic in the early Fall. A splendid new highway is the result, with easy grades not exceeding 10%. Any one who has had the pleasure of riding over that road is impressed with the banking of the curves and with the scenic value of the route and the elimination of dangerous curves that had previously existed.

It is a fact that the income of the Highway Department has increased from year to year. When the peak will have been reached no one can say. The gasoline tax has produced more revenue each year than any administration has estimated, and motor vehicle fees also have increased to some extent. We hope for a continuance of this improvement.

At the special session in February, 1930, the Legislature authorized the appointment of a Commission of three to investigate and report to the next Legislature as to the advisability of laying out a system of secondary state highways. The report of the members appointed, State Highway Commissioner Frederick E. Everett, William H.

Tolles, Nashua, and George H. Duncan, Jaffrey, is before you.

They recommend that the present system of State Aid, or Class 2, highways be developed along present lines, but suggest that the work would be carried on more advantageously by an additional allotment of State Highway funds to the several communities; so that, instead of the present distribution of approximately $250,000 annually, there be made available for this work about $450,000 annually.

They also recommend that the amount allotted to the towns, under the law of 1925, to assist in maintaining Class 5 or country highways, be increased about $60,000, thus further equalizing the highway expense in towns having a large highway mileage but little taxable property.

The Class 1 highways, or Trunk Lines, having been completed in 1930, and their reconstruction being provided for by bond and other revenue, it seems a proper time to pay more attention to those highways which serve as "feeders" to the trunk lines. The proposals made by the Commission seem reasonable and feasible. I would also call your attention, and recommend your careful consideration, to other suggestions in the Committee's report, relating to the so-called "continuing application" and to "legislative specials."

I feel particularly pleased at their recommendation for additional aid to the Class 5 highways. Knowing rural life, as I do, and having been a part of it, I feel that no single factor will contribute more to the betterment of rural community life than improved rural roads.

FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

The report of the State Forester will be in your hands shortly, but I would not have this opportunity pass without paying tribute to the splendid work which our Forestry Department is doing. Their work is of fundamental value, and its benefits will accrue not only to us of our day, but to coming generations. I commend the fine cooperation that has been shown by our State Forestry Commission and Department, with the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, and our State Highway Department, resulting in many and manifest improvements in various parts of the State, particularly in the region of Franconia Notch. Most of you are familiar with the new and adequate parking areas there which were thrown open to the public this season; the doing away with unsightly and old buildings; the installation of adequate toilet facilities—all these are worthy of comment.

The growing interest in recreational facilities and the appeal of the out-of-doors, both natural assets in our State, have a very direct connection with the work of the Forestry Department, and in my judgment, justify their being given increasing assistance and support at your hands.

DEPARTMENT OF INSURANCE

There is no Department of the State that has received more general recognition of its efficiency than the Department of Insurance as developed in recent years under the leadership of Commissioner John E. Sullivan. In the interests of all the people of the State I called upon Mr. Sullivan to accept the position of Bank Commissioner, when that position became vacant, after the closing of the Merrimack River Savings Bank last summer in Manchester. He was appointed Bank Commissioner, but has given general oversight to the Insurance Department's workings up to the present time and its efficiency has been maintained. In the natural course of things I would have appointed his successor months ago, but having given considerable thought to the matter it is my opinion that there is now present an opportunity for our making a start on the consolidation of State Departments with the idea of bringing about increased efficiency and a financial saving. I believe that the Insurance Department and the Banking Department might well be consolidated as a Department of Banking and Insurance, as now obtains in many of our States, and such procedure has the endorsement of the National Board of Underwriters, and some of the leading insurance men of New Hampshire who have so expressed their opinion to me. There are two sides to this question, as to all others, and there are some who believe this to be unwise. I am not dogmatic about it, but I believe that if the two departments could be combined under the present Bank Commissioner's management, the result in financial savings would permit of greater efficiency of the supervision of insurance matters of the State by permitting of the employment of an actuary, the services of whom have been much needed for some time. Not only would the services of an actuary become a most helpful feature in the insurance affairs of our State, but such a technically trained person through such a merger as I have mentioned could be relied upon to strengthen the examination staff of the Banking Department.

The business of the Insurance Department is regulatory in its nature. It becomes the duty of the Department to determine that the premium rates and makeup of policy contracts are reasonable, just, and equitable. These problems are wholly scientific and demand the services of an actuary in order that policy holders of the State may efficiently be served. No less than fifty insurance coverages are offered by the different insurance companies doing business in the State. The drawing of policy contracts and the development of the companies' rates are done by their actuarial and legal staffs, made up of experts of high ability employed by these companies, who are naturally partial to the interests of the insurance company who employs them. Our State's vital interest is to protect and serve the interests of our people and in their interest the need of competent actuarial talent is indicated beyond question.

The Blue Sky Law, so-called, or law that regulates the sale of securities, ought not to be a part of the work of the Insurance Department. There is no connection between the two. It belongs more appropriately in the Bank Commissioner's Department, and such a consolidation as I have suggested would take care of this.

The crux of the whole matter is what effect and results may be anticipated from such a merger on the basis of rendering service to the Insurance public and better safeguarding the depositors of our savings institutions.

Of course, you will act in this matter as seems best to you. If you do not approve of this consolidation this will mean that my successor in the office of Governor will appoint an Insurance Commissioner, and I am glad to leave the matter that way.

EDUCATION

The work of the State Department of Education is one of the most vital and constructive of the State's undertakings, far-reaching in its influence. Mr. Butterfield, who was Commissioner for many years and under whose leadership the Department had a very material growth, accepted a position in Connecticut, and Mr. Pringle, a deputy under Mr. Butterfield, was made Commissioner by the Board of Education.

This administration caused to be instituted early in 1929 a survey of the teacher training facilities of the State, with particular reference to the relations between the Board of Education and the Trustees of the State University, and I believe that there is today a better spirit of cooperation between these two bodies than has obtained for some time, and that there exists a better understanding of the responsibilities of each.

I caused to be introduced legislation increasing the Board of Education from five to seven members, and when this was passed I appointed to the Board a second woman member, Mrs. Elkins of Concord, and also Mr. Wellman of Manchester, who had been for some time a Trustee of the State University. These appointments have materially strengthened the Board.

I believe that to a greater degree than has heretofore prevailed, New Hampshire should tie in the resources of our State University with the general interests of our State.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The activities of this Department have increased materially in the past few years. Eighteen different laws impose duties upon this Department. All of these are important, some of them vital to the progress of this basic industry. The work of controlling the spread of contagious and infectious diseases of farm livestock is of major importance; that of eradicating Bovine Tuberculosis taxing the Department's resources to a great extent.

There are a total of 139,070 cattle in the State. Of this number 97,940 had been tested November 1, 1930, leaving 41,130 untested. Coos, Carroll and Sullivan Counties are accredited free areas, while in Grafton, Belknap and Strafford Counties the tested cattle run from 80% to 95%, with all other sections well advanced.

It is costing the State approximately $150,000 per year to fight this dread disease in our cattle. I am advised that the greatest concern comes from the fact that this is transmissible through milk to humans and especially to young children. To meet this demand for pure, clean milk from accredited herds, the Commissioner is recommending an appropriation adequate to eradicate the disease within two years. Based on careful estimates this would require $500,000, but to relieve the burden of cost a recommendation is made to spread the amount over four years.

The work in the Division of the Bureau of Markets requires expansion. The establishment of grades and standards under the Act of 1929 has created a demand for inspection and certification in the past year which the Bureau was unable to meet fully. Foreign markets are demanding export form certificates if they are to purchase our apples, and this requires inspection and means increased personnel and cost. If this need is not met, New Hampshire will be handicapped and have to stand by and see the products of the other New England States, as well as from the West, take precedence in the market over her own goods.

The work of this Department should have most sympathetic consideration and hearty support.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

The subject of prohibition is much discussed today, but despite criticisms and comments claiming that it cannot be enforced, I take pleasure in citing that New Hampshire is doing a good job in its enforcement and that the record of New Hampshire as to enforcement of the liquor law ranks at the top of the list of states. Our State Department is honestly and efficiently administered, and I believe the sentiment of the State is against any weakening of the Department's powers, or of the Prohibitory Law.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

The world-wide financial and industrial depression which all of us have felt directly or indirectly during the past year has given rise to many problems, perhaps the most distressing being that of unemployment. I am pleased to report that based upon careful surveys made from many sources, the situation in New Hampshire is not as bad, probably, as in many of our sister states. From the most recent summaries made, about 80% of normal employment obtains in New Hampshire at the present time. But because this condition may change very quickly, and having in mind that winter is with us, steps were taken a month ago to organize the State to render assistance, should it become necessary. The New Hampshire Branch of the New England Council cooperated with the State Government and I appointed a State-wide Committee of twenty-two with a Chairman and Executive Secretary, the latter being on a full-time and paid basis, who are in touch with the situation and in a position to render assistance to the various communities as needed. At a conference of this Committee held in the Council Chamber a few weeks ago, a representative of each community present expressed the belief that they would be able to take care of their own needs as they may develop, and considerable progress has been made by each local community. Should it become necessary I am sure that you will find a splendid spirit of cooperation exists throughout the State, and no challenge could be more appealing than the challenge to provide food and sustenance and work to any needy citizen of New Hampshire, in a time of distress.

OF INTEREST AROUND AND WITHIN THE STATE HOUSE

Early in our term of office the Governor and Council felt that some attention should be paid to the large number of visitors who visited the State House and public buildings in its vicinity, many of them tourists from other States, to give them the courtesy and facilities of a guide. To that end an appointment was made of an official guide in the State House, with a desk in the Hall of Flags. This has worked out very well. In addition to acting as official guide the appointee does messenger work between the Departments and has saved considerable thereby on postage charges, and has contributed materially to the efficient conduct of State House work. I believe that the wisdom of this action on the part of the Governor and Council has been thoroughly demonstrated, and have had letters from a number of people from other States who have visited here, testifying to their appreciation of the courtesy and help which they have received through this service. I believe it should be continued and become a regular part of the State's budget.

More and better facilities are needed by some of the Departments, and this is especially true of the Highway Department. Their need for extra space is imperative and the Governor and Council recently executed a lease with the owners of the Patriot Building who will build an additional story thereon, and we have leased same for a term of years, giving the Highway Department extra room and providing additional space for the Public Service Commission as well.

The Governor and Council looked into the matter of the expense of privately-owned automobiles operated by employees of the State, mileage being charged to the State. After careful inquiry we believed that 10¢ per mile was excessive, and that no injustice would be done should 8¢ a mile be the authorized amount, and the reduction was made. The State has saved a material sum by this procedure, and I believe it to be fair.

STATE POLICE

There has been talk for years of the need of State Police. The increasing depredations of property and general lawlessness have indicated this need more and more. During this administration we have appointed a Commission to look into the matter, and their report will be before you in the near future. The need of State Police is endorsed by the Farm Bureau and the Grange, and the matter is one of considerable importance, at least to the rural sections of the State. I believe the time has come when we can no longer afford not to have such a protective agency.

NEW STATE BUILDINGS

In this administration a law was passed authorizing the erection of a New Hampshire building at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Massachusetts, the Statute providing for the appointment of a Commission charged with the construction of this building, and they have finished their work. We dedicated this building last September, and it is beyond question the most attractive State building on the Exposition grounds, and one in which every New Hampshire citizen can take real pride. Some changes were made in the original plans and granite was substituted for wood in the pillars and front of this building, and a larger exhibition space provided than the original appropriation would cover, but the cost of these has all been met. Some of this cost was contributed by the public, and the balance by the State, and the building is now entirely paid for and is a credit to New Hampshire.

A new Armory was completed at Dover, and dedicated last month, in accordance with Legislation of 1929.

The new building at the State Hospital for the care of the violently insane is now in use. This building represents the last word in accommodation for these unfortunates.

A new piggery was built at Laconia State School.

Splendid new library facilities were given to the Keene Normal School by remodeling and alterations.

NEW HAMPSHIRE BOARD OF PUBLICITY

Times have changed. Eleven years ago requests for State funds to advertise our many attractions were turned down without debate. Today we have learned that it is the part of wisdom to tell the world about our wonderful resources and invite them to come to see for themselves.

Our Publicity Department has been doing good work, and while it is difficult to measure the results in terms of actual dollars and cents, it has created a vast amount of goodwill for the State. It merits our continued support, and as a bit of evidence of its value to the State, I quote the following letter received by it recently, dated from Minneapolis, December 19th, 1930, from a member of a prominent firm there:—

“I have had in mind for some time writing you. It is late in the year to think of tourists in your State; but perhaps the Christmas season is a good time to say what I want to say,—that is, that, on the basis of two trips in your State in 1929 and 1930, I have concluded that New Hampshire does more for the tourist, and does it more intelligently, than any State I have visited. Your maps, booklets, information bureaus,—these and all your services seem to me excellent. Even the difficulties involved in road construction and repairs are minimized in New Hampshire, and I found every possible help given me in September last in that connection.”

The original of this letter can be seen at the offices of the Publicity Board, upon request.

YORKTOWN SESQUICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

In October next, in Yorktown, Virginia, will be held the Sesquicentennial observance of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. All students of history will remember that the victory of the Colonists under Washington's leadership, over the British Troops under Cornwallis, constituted the turning point of the Revolutionary War. Congress has authorized the appointment of a Commission to secure the proper celebration of this event and to cooperate with the thirteen original Colonies in forming a suitable program. The President of the United States will be present and make the principal address of the occasion, and New Hampshire has been invited to appoint a Commission for the purposes of the celebration and to appropriate a sum of money to properly represent our State at Yorktown next October. While we live in a material age I feel that we would be derelict in not taking our part in the celebration of such an historic event as the Yorktown Sesquicentennial, and I hope that New Hampshire will join with the other twelve original states and welcome the privilege of contributing its part to this great observance.

INSTITUTIONS OF THE STATE

I have visited all of the institutions of the State during my term of office, some several times. The work of these institutions has an appeal to each of us. In a large sense they are well managed and are doing good work.

The State Prison at Concord has the largest number of inmates for many years, at this writing there being 185 confined there, as against around 125 when I took office. The Governor and Council have cooperated with the present trustees and authorized changes in the physical equipment there, the removal of certain fire hazards, and the installation of a sprinkler system. The prison is well managed. In some respects it is less like a prison than many others.

New Hampshire has a very real problem coming before her in a few years, because of the passage by Congress of the Hawes-Cooper Act. This bill allows the 48 states to prohibit the sale of prison-made goods. If this act is constitutional, in 1934 it will probably become necessary for radical changes to be made in the disposal of the work, and in the employment of prison labor. Recently a conference was held at our State Prison, with representatives from other New England States, seeking light on the subject. In addition, manufacturers within our own State have complained about the competition from prison-made goods, which are manufactured at a lower overhead cost and a lower labor charge than outside manufacturers have to face. You will very likely be called upon to look into this situation.

Laconia State School. Here one looks upon some of the saddest sights in the world—children of impaired intellect; but the Institution is admirably managed under the head of one whose name is a household word to everyone familiar with this work.

New Hampshire State Hospital. This Institution, with a population as large as many of our good-sized towns, calls for the largest outlay of money in our Institutional budget. We increase it from time to time, but the need for added accommodations persists. A sobering thought is the fact that the population of our own State Hospital, like those in other States of the Union, is increasing at a more rapid ratio than the general population of the country. No one is competent to solve the problem; we must face it and make provision for it.

New Hampshire State Sanatorium. Here we care for those who are afflicted with tuberculosis. The plant is manifestly good, and the layout and natural surroundings are conducive to remedial effort. I believe that more comfortable furnishings should be incorporated in the men's ward and that there should be an extension of recreational facilities on the grounds.

New Hampshire Industrial School. Much comment was made in the press about the Industrial School at Manchester, during the last year. In view of the fact that many of the articles which have appeared have been erroneous and have not reflected the facts in the case, I welcome this opportunity to speak to you directly, and give you the true situation as I know it. Last March I visited this School unannounced, and this was followed by three other visits. In the course of these I discovered that it was the custom to inflict certain punishments upon girl inmates of the School which I then said, and say now, savored of barbarism and the dark ages, and which cannot be tolerated in this enlightened day and generation. Treatment had been given these girl pupils in our Industrial School that is not employed on the hardened criminals in our State Prison, or in any modern State Prison. These punishments on the girl inmates were stopped by Executive order and for months have been a thing of the past. I held no bitterness and no feeling towards any individual in this controversy. I acted solely in an impersonal way, and in line with what I believed to be my duty in the interests of humanity. Acting within the scope of the appointing power vested in the Governor and Council, changes were made in the Board of Trustees last summer. I have given much study to the problem of delinquent children in the past year. I have visited other States and there met those who are carrying on this work successfully, along advanced lines. I invited to the State in the last two months two of the best recognized experts on delinquents in the country. They met in conference with the State Board of Public Welfare, the Trustees of the Industrial School, and the Governor and Council, and much valuable information was secured. They visited the Institution and went over records and plant and met the personnel. Some changes are advisable and should be effected, and these the trustees will undertake to accomplish. Past administrations have all recognized the fact that the old administration building has long been obsolete and should be condemned and razed, but the financial cost of a new building has tended to delay this. It must come sometime and ought to come now, but entirely aside from the building question, more money must be spent at the Industrial School, because there is no greater problem before the State than the problem of the care and treatment of those delinquent children. We must remember that each of these children, under the law, must be discharged from the Institution at or before the age of 21. What the resulting man or woman, father or mother, will be, will to a considerable extent be determined by the treatment received while in the State's care. New Hampshire cannot afford to be parsimonious in its appropriation for this work in Manchester. Sufficient money should be appropriated for the operation of the School to insure the employment of a personnel that is trained and fitted to understand this problem of delinquent children. We may save a few thousand dollars a year by hiring employees who are secured on a low salary, but it is almost certain the net results will be to cost us many thousand dollars more in the future. If ever the saying was justified, "the best is the cheapest," it is in this matter of equipment for the handling of this great problem. It should always be borne in mind that the Industrial School is primarily for remedial treatment, and not a penal institution.

Recently there has been put into the hands of the Governor and Council a survey made of the various Institutions, with reference to the fire hazards, tending to eliminate same. These suggestions have been taken up with the heads of the various Institutions, and were returned to this Department too late for action in this administration. The replies received are being transmitted to the next administration. From our knowledge of conditions we believe that in some cases, at least, these suggestions should be carried out.

I have set before you these experiences that I have gained in the past two years and the resulting conclusions that I have herein expressed, in the hope that they may be helpful to you in your work.

I think I can truly say that no Governor ever enjoyed the work of the office more than I have. I count it a high privilege to have represented New Hampshire as Chief Executive. I acknowledge gratefully the courtesies and cooperation that have been extended to me from Department heads and employees. I shall miss the work of the Executive Department and the associations with each member of my Council. We began our labors together two years ago as officials. We complete our labors today as friends.

I commend to you him who tomorrow will succeed me as Governor. He has a background of previous service in the office that will be of great value to him and the State. He is worthy and well qualified.

In closing, having in mind the vicissitudes of Legislative sessions, it is perhaps too Utopian to invoke the words of the Psalmist and say to you: "May all your ways be pleasantness, and all your paths be peace."

But I do want to leave with you six lines, the spirit of which is so much needed as we do the day's work, whether as representatives of the Government of our State, or as private citizens:

"Four things a man must learn to do,
If he would make his record true;
To think without confusion clearly,
To love his fellow-man sincerely;
To act from honest motives purely,
To trust in God and Heaven securely."

Jones of District No. 10, President of the Senate, made proclamation as follows:

Winant Governor of the State of New Hampshire, to hold the office during the period prescribed by the Constitution and Laws of the State, and I present Your Excellency with a copy of the Constitution of the State as a guide in the discharge of your official duties.

His Excellency then read the following message:

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Honorable Senators and Representatives:

In compliance with a custom that is as old as the constitutional requirement to subscribe to the oath of office, I appear before you to state briefly my views on matters that affect the public welfare. It has seemed to me that at this time and on this occasion I might be of more service in suggesting a point of view rather than attempting at the beginning of our common task to prejudge needs and fix objectives without having joined with you in collecting evidence and studying state wants.

In the present situation which confronts us I feel very strongly that certain essential spiritual qualities are needed in order to restore confidence. We have come to recognize that neither over-optimism nor fear are safe guides as controlling factors in maintaining economic stability. We can do more to restore normal conditions by undramatic and unselfish effort combined with hard work and a quiet faith than through legislative panaceas.

A memorandum prepared in October, 1921, for the White House conference on unemployment, by Mary E. Richmond, and recently published by the Russell Sage Foundation, makes many constructive suggestions and sums up the experience of similar periods. First we are told that "insofar as industry has not already perfected plans and the government has not yet completed arrangements for increasing the amount of real work, neither the one nor the other can carry the situation this winter"; therefore, the already established social and relief agencies must be supported.

There has been an effort to establish local committees in the communities affected in this state. Decentralization is essential in handling this problem, but the first step toward this is co-operation among all agencies in local communities with centralized planning and a single confidential master list of all applicants for help placed in the proper hands. All requesting assistance should receive individual attention and their particular needs understood. Wholesaling of misery only leads to more misery. So called "made" work should be avoided. This form of well-intentioned help is an expensive method of expending relief money and does not save the self-respect of the recipient. Wherever possible trained social workers should be put in charge of investigating cases, and where necessary volunteers could work under their direction. Some of the effects of unemployment are "homes lost in the buying; money borrowed on disastrous terms; household effects gathered slowly will be scattered, occupants of separate homes will move into furnished rooms, dwellers in decent neighborhoods will be driven into meaner streets, a lower moral tone will follow upon loss of privacy, lodgers will be taken in who are unfit companions for children; large families will be insufficiently fed on the part-time earnings of one member; children will be taken from school prematurely." These things should be understood by the people and prevented, and this can only be accomplished by each individual citizen doing his best to help. Generous gestures and noisy publicity are not helpful. In similar crises immigration has relieved the situation; migration within the country may be good or bad. Here chain employment agencies could save men from wandering long distances to places where there is no work for them. Temporary changes of occupation, part-time work, savings, credit by landlords, tradesmen, friends, relatives and neighbors are major avenues of relief. Churches, fraternal organizations and relief societies help complete the circle of mitigating agencies. These are ways in which we might be helpful.

An investigation of usurious rates charged on personal character loans by persons, firms or companies would in my opinion bring relief to resident borrowers.

A rehabilitation act was placed on the statute books in 1925. It provided for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry or otherwise and their return to civil employment. This law should be put into immediate operation by the appropriation of $5,000 to meet an equal sum donated by the federal government.

The state today gives aid to dependent mothers. The funds appropriated were administered by the Department of Education until the last session of the legislature when they were transferred to the Department of Public Welfare. The reason for the transfer, as I understand it, was due to a change in public policy in regard to the character of the aid given. The policy originally laid down permitted the use of these funds on a temporary basis to meet an emergency, payments being withdrawn as soon as the family had been assisted to a position of self-support. No one accepting aid under the poor laws was permitted to receive benefits given under this act.

A later conception of the proper functioning of this humane measure disregarded the earlier rehabilitation features in an effort to keep such families together regardless of their acceptance of other public monies. These cases had previously been cared for by town or county funds. In my judgment both objectives sought had merit. The most critical months of distress this year will be January, February and March. I would suggest an immediate emergency appropriation under this act and request that the administration of the funds so granted be handled jointly by the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Education, and the Governor and Council. Children and dependent mothers deserve our first consideration.

If, in letting contracts for both private and public work during this calendar year, we make an effort to properly protect New Hampshire workmen, it will materially help the unemployment situation. The advantages of doing necessary building and construction work when costs are low are obvious. We are a small state; we are a poor state, but we intend to take care of our own.

In a similar address five years ago, I pointed out that our "so called state budget is merely a listing of requests of the departments and institutions. Budgeting requires a searching analysis of the requirements of each department and institution for which the present executive machinery does not provide the necessary personnel. Permanent economy requires the preparation of accurate budgets." In order to prepare an effective budget law, I shall ask the co-operation of the Judiciary Committee of the House and Senate. In order to construct a correct budget bill to meet the necessary expenditures for 1931 and 1932, I shall ask for the co-operation of the Appropriations Committee of the House and the Finance Committee of the Senate. In order to assay the revenue and equitably proportion the tax burden, I shall ask for the co-operation of those committees of the House and Senate that are designated to consider such measures.

I further pointed out to the incoming legislature of 1927 that "among the recommendations of the accountants employed by the state is the inclusion of appropriation liabilities in the state debt. The state is a going concern and the failure to include appropriation liabilities in statements of its financial position is analogous to an individual who claims to be worth the money he has without regard to the obligations he owes."

In order to show the exact condition of the treasury, I insisted that the books during my administration be placed upon an accrual rather than on a cash basis which set up all outstanding liabilities. This practice together with the financial control which was centered in the state treasury was abolished by my successor. I was glad to see it reinstated by the present treasurer.

Insofar as I have been able to forecast the condition of the treasury as of June 30, 1931, the end of the state fiscal year, there will be a cash deficit of approximately a million dollars. The authority to make temporary loans given the Governor and Council is limited to six hundred thousand dollars.

The credit of the state is ample to meet this situation either through temporary borrowing or by a bond issue, but both methods of handling require legislative action.

In finding a way to fund this debt means should be provided for paying it. The need of working capital to carry on the state's business and a more definite method of retiring other bonded indebtedness should receive your attention. The financial policy of the state has been handled with conscience and intelligence by succeeding administrations, and while we are blessed with a small indebtedness we still enjoy most of the advantages of a modern state and excellent credit.

Passages in the annual message of the President of the American Farm Bureau delivered this Fall in Boston, stimulate thought. The heavy tax burden resting on agriculture and the problems of distribution are the major themes of this address. In dealing with the first problem, President Thompson states that "there are obviously two remedies: First, economy in government, and second, a change in the method of taxation." I personally know of no other way of meeting this problem. His theories on distribution are prefaced by the following statement:

"We are repeatedly told that the present economic distress is the result of over-production—over-production of farm produce, over-production of manufactured goods. Careful study indicates this statement is not supported by facts. I recognize that there is a very genuine market surplus—goods that cannot be sold with adequate return to producer. But in terms of human needs there is no surplus. In our great cities today there are hundreds of thousands of men and women walking the streets idle. Factory doors are dark and multitudes are hungry. There are today, too, millions of farm people in need of every product of these factories, and there are millions of dollars worth of farm products rotting in the ground because there is no market for that produce. The fault cannot be explained by the word 'surplus'; on one hand millions needing and desiring food and the wherewithal to buy food—on the other hand millions desiring the product of the hungry workers of the city.

"The breakdown is in the distribution. Somewhere between the farm and the factory, between the factory and the farm, the system fails to function and the result is the conditions of today."

He ascribes the primary cause of our economic distress to a breakdown somewhere in the chain of distribution which he supports with the following statistics:

"An investigation of the baking industry by the Federal Trade Commission determined that the consumer is paying $8\frac{1}{2}$ cents for a loaf of bread, and the producer is receiving 1 cent for the wheat that goes into that loaf. In other words, the wheat grower is receiving $13\frac{4}{10}$ percent of the dollar paid by the consumer for bread; $86\frac{6}{10}$ cents out of the dollar went to pay for costs and profits taken between the farmer and the consumer.

"The situation in the cotton industry is almost as bad. The United States Department of Agriculture found in the study made in ten eastern cities that from every dollar spent by the consumer for cotton goods the producer was receiving from 15 to 20 cents for the raw material.

"In the wool clothing industry the Federal Trade Commission found that the farmer was receiving about 18 cents out of the dollar spent by the consumer for men's suits, excluding trimmings.

"Nor is this wide margin between the prices received by the farmer and the consumer confined to articles which are manufactured before reaching the consumer. The producers of Connecticut Valley onions receive only 26 to 28 cents of the dollar paid by the consumer for these onions. The other 72 to 74 cents is absorbed by agencies between the farmer and the consumer—this according to a study published by the Departments of Agriculture of the United States and of Massachusetts.”

In 1925 we put on the statute books of New Hampshire the most progressive farm marketing bill in the northeast for the purpose of encouraging the orderly marketing of agricultural products through co-operation. This might be utilized to correct excessive distribution charges on products produced in this area.

There is another agricultural problem which confronts us. It is possible within the next two years to eradicate all tubercular cattle from the state at the cost of approximately half a million dollars. Aside from any benefit that might be derived from this action as a health measure, it should place a premium on the price of the out-of-state consumption of New Hampshire milk, and it should further make New Hampshire a more ready market for tested cattle. This is a business proposition involving the balancing of the advantages to New Hampshire cattlemen and milk producers against the cost of lending State credit to permit accomplishment within the two year period rather than through smaller annual appropriations over a longer period of time. If the legislature decides to act on the recommendation of the Department of Agriculture, I would urge a more complete protection against border invasion by untested animals.

The rural sections of New Hampshire provide good farming land and should continue to return income to the industrious and intelligent farmer. The winters, however, are long and rigorous. If some inventive mind could establish winter industries which would provide the people on our hills and in our valleys with small craft industries during the winter, it would add appreciably to the happiness of their lives and to the total yearly income.

A Gold Star Mother living on the shores of Lake Asquam has developed the Sandwich Industries which has gained a reputation for fine craftwork which is already established beyond the borders of the state.

The Agricultural Extension Service of the State University now does effective work in agriculture and in home economics. An additional sum providing for a specialist along industrial art lines in two or three of the counties might be of great service to certain sections of the state.

The recommendation of the Highway Commission to increase its appropriations to rural roads from gasoline road tolls, I hope will meet your favorable consideration.

The Report of the Recess Tax Commission shows that "New Hampshire has relied almost wholly upon the general property tax for its revenue, and this tax still produces more than 80 per centum of the total."

For the last tax year of the towns and cities out of every dollar paid to the collectors by the tax payers only six and six-tenth cents went for the support of the state government under the so called state tax. Although it must be understood that this does not include fees, franchise, license and other sources of revenue accruing to the state, the preponderance of the tax burden still rests on general property.

The Constitutional Convention recognized the need of decreasing outgo and provided for additional revenue without added cost to New Hampshire taxpayers in the passage of an amendment that would have given the Executive the right to scrutinize and veto or decrease individual items in appropriation bills, and in a further amendment which would have legally permitted the state to collect its Federal credits under the Federal Inheritance Tax law.

It has been my understanding that the second of these amendments which failed to receive the necessary two-thirds majority on November fourth would have done no more than empower the Legislature to pass an Enabling Act permitting New Hampshire to collect back from the Federal government an 80% rebate on all Federal Inheritance Taxes collected from New Hampshire decedents. I urged the passage of this amendment. In my opinion, if all the people had understood this issue it would have been overwhelmingly endorsed. The opposition had their way and it is only justice to the people to test the validity of their statements to the public.

In an editorial in the Manchester Union on November 1st under the heading "What need of an Amendment?" there appeared the following statement from which I quote: "Mr. Carr contends that New Hampshire can participate in the estates tax collected by the Federal government without adopting an amendment to the Constitution. He is supported in this view by other prominent men, among whom is Senator Moses, according to friends of the Senator who have heard him express that belief." The money to be derived from this rebate is urgently needed. I ask you to follow the advice given and to petition the Supreme Court for an opinion on this matter, and in the light of that decision to take such action as will insure a method of collection. My only interest in this matter is to obtain for the state money that is rightly due it.

Today we have in New Hampshire an excellent public school system supported by two efficiently managed Normal Schools and supplemented by the State University. May I suggest as did a great Scotchman talking to the students of St. Andrews that "the greatest university of the land was the poor proud homes from which they had come and which said so long ago, 'There shall be education in this land.' She, not St. Andrews, is the oldest university in Scotland, and all the others are her whelps." And so it is in New Hampshire. Honorable as are these institutions of learning they are but the finer instruments of progress, the doors of opportunity, that open from the homes of New Hampshire and the burden of their maintenance rests upon the shoulders of the common weal.

When addressing the legislature on January 5, 1927, I dealt at length on the utility situation as it affected New Hampshire. May I quote briefly from that address:

"The public as investors in the securities of public utility holding corporations need protection. The difference between the holding corporation and the operating company is very great and not clearly appreciated. The legislature should be alert to the danger of the New Hampshire public buying securities in public utility holding corporations which are outside the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission and over which security issues the Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction, even though the interest on these securities may be derived from New Hampshire public utility operating companies. This might well result in promoters having taken their profit and gone from the state, leaving New Hampshire investors with watered stock in an outside holding company the interest on which was paid from local operating companies and maintained only by charging unwarranted rates for light and power. We cannot tolerate any policy that will leave the New Hampshire investor pitted against the New Hampshire user of light and power with the third party in fact the guilty profiteer." What I said then I believe now.

I wish here to pay tribute to the unselfish, and effective service rendered by the Honorable Fred H. Brown as a member of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission. His acceptance of the position at my request meant a serious financial sacrifice. In a critical period when hydro-electrical development and consolidation were radically changing the aspects of the industry in its relation to the public, he has fearlessly and impartially protected the rights of the people of New Hampshire.

The recent announcement involving understandings and consolidations of four great eastern railroad trunk lines necessarily affects the transportation systems of New England. I hope that the New England Railroad Committee appointed by the governors of the New England states will review its findings and continue its studies in the light of recent developments, and that the several New England governors will continue to give their support to a continued investigation of the facts. This problem is not political but economic in character. It affects not only the transportation system of the several New England states but also industry, agriculture and the entire community interest.

In 1925 we organized the New Hampshire Publicity Bureau. Since tourist service stations have been established in many sections of the state, this has stimulated travel in New Hampshire. I believe that at small additional cost we could set up an industrial research service which might call attention to industrial opportunities that are not now appreciated. Both the railroads and the power companies would probably be willing to supplement this type of research in order to develop industry that would utilize electrical energy and increase freight movements.

This might be supplemented by laboratory research, utilizing facilities at the State University that are available for state use.

We have already begun a survey of the coastal erosion problem to protect our beach and seacoast, and we have recently made a careful survey of the mineral resources of the state, and it may be possible by building narrow but firm roadbeds into sections that now have no railroad outlet to make available non-metallics that today have a market value. This has been successfully done in North Carolina.

There should be uniform traffic regulations throughout the United States. The heavy toll of life and the serious personal and property damage resulting from motor vehicle accidents could well occupy the entire time of a legislative committee.

I have agreed to call together a convention of sportsmen with representation from all groups and all sections of New Hampshire. This will give us an opportunity to work out with them a common program of progress.

There has been a thorough survey and an exhaustive report prepared on the general subject of probation. In dealing with adults and juvenile delinquents, it presents a program that deserves serious consideration and constructive action.

The care of state dependents presents an institutional problem. I believe that a policy that looks forward to investing more money in supervision and prevention will better solve our social needs and diminish costs in state expense and human suffering. The decreased cost of commodities should lessen the expenditure for maintenance. It would also permit the substitution of higher standards of foodstuffs which would benefit patients. Greater standardization in buying and a closer co-operation between the Purchasing Department and the state laboratories would be helpful in my judgment.

The State Purchasing Agent is clothed with the power of the Governor and Council. Since this is so it would seem to me to be a more businesslike arrangement to have the Purchasing Agent appointed at the pleasure of the Governor and Council rather than for a fixed term of three years. This office is underpaid.

The question of consolidation of at least two major departments is before you. I feel that in dealing with the Department of Banking and the Insurance Department efficiency of service is more important to the public than effecting economies.

The Board of Health laboratories should be re-organized and made a more useful health agency.

The decrease in infant mortality is largely due to the excellent work accomplished by the State Maternity Division of the Board of Health.

The great National Child Conference called by the President of the United States plans to supplement the Washington meeting with state action. This I hope will have your interested support. We must never forget Mr. Hoover's statement that "Human progress marches only when children excel parents."

The office force of the Governor is limited by statute to a secretary, one stenographer and a messenger to serve during the legislative session. This is inadequate to permit efficient service. I shall ask for authority to employ sufficient assistance to enable me to properly administer the state's business.

In reviewing the need for necessary legislation, it may be of interest to those who took an active part in the recent election to know that under Article 95 of the Constitution of the State of New Hampshire, no "members of congress, or any person holding any office under the United States, shall at the same time hold the office of governor."

Those sections of previous messages which I forwarded to the legislature of 1925 which are pertinent to the work at hand or might be useful to you in this legislative session will be printed and distributed.

There was written not long ago a thoughtful book entitled "Mankind at the Crossroads." There comes in the life of a state, as with individuals, the necessity and the opportunity to reconsider its course and to re-establish its way of life, and to again give answer to the question that was asked of Peter at the gates of Rome, "Whither goest thou?"

It may be that we are in such a crisis and that the light of experience will carry us back to the hopes and aspirations and accomplishments of an earlier day. Perhaps the wisest interpreter of the last generation to state America's contributions to civilization was Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University. In singling out those attributes in our public life which justly deserved the respect and admiration of the world he states that "The first and principal contribution is the advance made in the United States, not in theory but only in practice, toward the abandonment of war as a means of settling disputes between nations, the substitution of discussion and arbitration and the avoidance of armaments." This was written 35 years ago but in spite of our early leadership toward world peace through arbitration we have not yet followed the executive recommendations of four successive presidents to subscribe to the World Court.

"The second eminent contribution which the United States made to civilization," said Eliot, "is their thorough acceptance, in theory and in practice, of the widest religious toleration." We might think that over in the light of recent elections. I mean all of us. We must mend our ways if we expect to be a kindly tolerant people.

A third characteristic that is claimed for us is the successful development of universal suffrage. Anyone reading the constructive criticisms of local government made by the Governor of New York in his recent inaugural address will give sober consideration to the lack of intelligent continuous interest by the electorate in our town and municipal governments.

A fourth contribution which Mr. Eliot listed is that "property has never been safer under any form of government." This tribute may have been deserved at the time, but we are forced to admit today that neither life nor property enjoys equal protection here as compared with other less fortunate countries.

One other comment may be pertinent to the times. It is a statement that Mr. Eliot makes that "No people have ever welcomed so ardently new machinery and new inventions generally." In this period of difficult economic adjustment we must continue to recognize that two important factors contributing materially to national prosperity have been the willingness of our outstanding industrial leaders to pay high wages and the co-operation of workers with management to accept labor saving devices. The continued acceptance of the advances of science by labor and a wage scale which permits American standards of living are both essential to progressive industry.

We approach the duties of office with serious purpose, but let us also be happy minded. Anger, cynicism, criticism cloud the picture. It is so easy to be swept by righteous indignation and so difficult to be of any lasting help to mankind.

What we say here is of little moment, but what we do here will affect for good or evil the constituency who placed in our hands a public trust and the people whom we have sworn to "represent, protect and defend."

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The State Police Commission through its chairman John P. Carlton presented the following report.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

This Commission was appointed by His Excellency, Ex-Governor Tobey and his Honorable Council to make a study of a State system of police protection and render a report thereon to the present session of the Legislature. Pursuant to said authority, the Commission has investigated the question and hereby respectfully tenders its report.

The duty placed upon the Commission has been conceived by its members to comprise a study of the desirability, and of the form of organization of a co-ordinated State-wide police force under the direction and control of a central authority. In this connection it was felt that the inquiry primarily should relate to the necessity of further police protection in the rural communities. Your Commission is of the opinion that the cities of New Hampshire are adequately and efficiently policed by their local organizations.

The Nature of Present Rural Police Protection

Taking the State as a whole, the small towns and outlying districts are dependent for general police protection solely upon two groups of officials, the County Sheriff and the Town Constable. These are ancient offices, ante-dating even our present form of Republican Government, but they have shown surprising vitality in the face of the profound social and economic changes that have taken place, and although their existence has continued from before the reign of Henry the II until the present time, they have not proved adaptable to the problems which arise in present day society.

Formerly when crime was largely localized, these officials were able to cope with the situation effectively. The local officer was familiar with conditions in his district and with probable law-breakers. Transportation was slow and even after the coming of the railroad, the avenues of escape could fairly promptly be closed, but today with the development of a net-work of improved highways, and the universal use of the automobile, a problem of law enforcement and criminal apprehension has been created for which the established system of local protection has proved inadequate. A criminal may come from a distant Town or City, commit a depredation, and by the use of the automobile, be out of the jurisdiction before the local officer can even be notified.

The office of sheriff and constable, appear by their nature to be unfitted for the present problem. Both are elective offices. This means recurrent changes in personnel, possible political influences and not infrequently the selection of incumbents untrained for these special duties. The deputy, appointed by the sheriff, is unlikely to be better qualified than his superior.

The Constable receives no, or at most a nominal compensation; his attention to police duties is secondary to his trade or business and he cannot be expected to carry on regular patrols unless he is created a full time officer. The sheriff in his turn, derives his greatest source of income from the service of process and the execution of the decrees of the Court. Co-operation between Town Officers and the County law officials is difficult for there exists no centralized direction and control. Not only is there no administrative head but responsibility is divided, each officer being responsible to himself alone. Such expedients as have been devised to bring about prompt and co-ordinated effort, have behind them no statutory authority nor any permanent or uniform policy and without such authority and an administrative head, empowered to direct the efforts of local officials, the system has broken down.

There are at the present time certain State agencies to which are delegated the duty of enforcing specific laws, such as Motor Vehicle Department, Law Enforcement Department in charge of the state liquor law, the Department of Fish and Game, the Department of Weights and Measures, but the duties of these departments are limited and their agents act without authority outside their respective specialized fields. We have a group of officials, therefore, supposedly working toward the same end, law enforcement, but owing to the history behind the creation of their various duties, and the statutes limiting their power, effective co-operation is necessarily non-existent.

In 1925 the Crime Commission rendered a report to the Legislature in which was presented a careful study of the extent of police protection afforded the citizens of the State as a whole. The results of its study are presented concisely in tabular form. In the tables, the towns and cities having organized police are represented and those having less than four full-time officers are considered partially policed. The summary of their study, is as follows:

Area	Population	Assessed Valuation
Police	242,708	$332,289,101
Partial Police	44,455	51,485,924
No Police	155,920	213,260,609
Entire State	443,082	597,035,634

This study reveals that over 35% of the population and assessed valuation in the State has no organized police protection. Further data contained in the Crime Commission Report support its general conclusions as to the need of the rural communities for greater police protection. They have not been reproduced in this report as the Crime Commission report is on file with the Secretary of State, but a study of the facts and statistics contained therein is recommended. The figures furnished by the Crime Commission are pertinent today, there having been no substantial change in the amount of unpoliced areas since the figures were compiled.

It is common knowledge that depredations on fruit-growers, cattle-raisers and poultry farms and on isolated filling stations and vacant summer homes are becoming increasingly frequent and that in practically every instance the automobile provides a convenient agent for the escape of the criminal. It seems unnecessary to argue the lack of sufficient and effective co-ordinated police protection in the rural districts.

EXPERIENCE OF OTHER STATES

This problem is not unique to New Hampshire. Other states have had it presented and those that have succeeded in solving it most satisfactorily have done so by means of the institution of some species of a State Police, that is a centralized organization with full police powers, State-wide in scope. Some States, such as Massachusetts, have approached the problem first by organizing a State Detective Bureau, relatively small, designed primarily for criminal investigations. Maine, Maryland, and Connecticut have enlarged the authority of an existing force with limited powers, in each instance the motor vehicle patrol. Pennsylvania and New Jersey on the other hand have met the question squarely by instituting at the outset a State Police body of broad authority. In every instance, with the exception of Colorado, where the State Police became an issue in a political campaign, the State Police organizations have been retained, enlarged in scope, and eventually established as a separate and independent department of the State Government. In Maine, for example, an attempt was made to enlarge the powers of the road patrol under the Motor Vehicle Commissioner. The authority under which this action took place proved invalid but the public demand for the continuation of unified State police protection was so insistent that at the next session of the Legislature a separate Department was created for this purpose under the Secretary of State.

Experience has been that any adaption of the sheriff and constable system by reason of its elective feature, its lack of centralized control, its changing personnel, the secondary feature of criminal law enforcement, is doomed to failure. New conditions of society have demanded a radical change from accepted methods. Centralization of control, mobility, independence, constant availability, and active co-operation all demand a full-time force organized under a central authority. All police administrators recognize the quieting effect upon crime of a system of regular patrols, and only with an adequate full-time force can such patrol work be accomplished.

The experience of New Hampshire with its archaic system of local policing, its duplication of functions, its conflict of authority, and the resultant lack of coöperation between enforcement agencies, both state and local, illustrates the fundamental weaknesses of the old scheme. The time for a modernization of our local policing methods is long since due. New Hampshire can benefit by the work of experimentation conducted on this problem by many of its sister States, and the record of these States demonstrates that only by the formation of a State Police can the elements necessary to meet the present rural crime problem be furnished.

Your Commission, therefore, recommends that the present Legislature provide for the establishment of a State Force with full police powers, charged with the enforcement of all criminal laws.

ORGANIZATION

The State Police should constitute a separate and independent department in the State Government and under it should be concentrated all existing enforcement agencies that practicably can. Otherwise duplication of effort, increased overhead and conflict of authority result.

Those States which have had the greatest success in State Police administration have divorced the force from political influence so far as possible and centralized authority in the administrative head of the force, making him responsible only to the executive head of the State Government. We recommend the formation of a department of State Police under the direction and control of a superintendent, the latter to be appointed by the Governor and Council for the term of five years and removable by them only after notice and hearing. All appointments in the department, including those of deputies, should be made by the superintendent and subject to removal by him.

A consolidation of certain existing law enforcement agencies will, it is believed, result in economy and efficiency. There are at present under the supervision of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner twenty-two (22) motorcycle officers, exclusive of those inspectors whose duties are confined to inspection and investigation. The duties of these motorcycle officers are expressly limited to the enforcement of laws relating to motor vehicles and we have a ridiculous situation existing where a member of the road patrol has no authority, beyond that of a private citizen, to arrest when he observes a law-breaker violating some statute not directly connected with the motor vehicle law. The Motor Vehicle Department was organized originally as a licensing and registration department and its present activity as an enforcement agency was never contemplated by the Legislature which created the department. Under the provision of the statute, whereby examiners appointed by the Commissioner are given police power over the operation of motor vehicles, certain of these examiners have been delegated especially to enforcement work, and these form the present motorcycle corps. This broad application of the statute has furnished in the absence of other methods a control over the misuse of automobiles on our highways, but the existence of this situation is the work of necessity. It cannot be linked up with a consistent attempt to solve the general problem of law enforcement brought on by changing conditions.

The motor vehicle department is the largest licensing and registration bureau in the state government and as a revenue collecting agency turned over to the State Treasurer during the fiscal year ending 1930, nearly $3,000,000. The imposition on this busy department of extensive police functions creates a task which the department is neither designed or equipped to handle.

We are not of the opinion that delegating of full police power to the present motor vehicle corps, will provide an answer to the problem for the evidence seems to indicate that at least the present number is required for the efficient enforcement of the motor vehicle law alone, though it is believed that certain allied police functions could be carried on without impairment of the effectiveness of the corps. The increase in authority and the consolidation under one head with other enforcement officers is a step toward uniform and co-ordinated State Police protection.

The Law Enforcement Department has the power to enforce all laws relating to intoxicating liquor and authority to make arrests for violations thereof, but beyond this limited field the department agents have no greater authority than the ordinary private citizen. If one of these agents is in pursuit of an automobile in which he believes intoxicating liquor is being illegally transported and finds that there is no liquor in the car, yet even though the car is unregistered and the driver operating the car recklessly or without a license, the liquor agent can only refer the matter to a motor vehicle officer. It would seem on principles of reason and economy that the enforcement of the liquor law should be combined with enforcement of other criminal statutes and that the present Law Enforcement Department could be abolished and its duties transferred to the Department of State Police. With this consolidation the duties of Law Enforcement Commissioner and State Liquor agent can be performed by the Superintendent of the State Police or by a deputy under his supervision.

The Department of Weights and Measures has general supervision over and regulation of all weighing and measuring devices in the State and three inspectors are appointed to enforce the law relating thereto. Here again we believe that the duties of these agents should be transferred to the central law enforcement department and the present duties of the Commissioner of Weights and Measures delegated to a deputy under the Superintendent of the State Police. Commonsense and principles of economy both would seem to dictate this change. The elimination of a department means reduced overhead and the duties of the inspectors could be performed by the State Police in the course of their regular patrols and during the winter months when the supervision of traffic makes less demand upon their time.

The Fish and Game Department, the wardens and deputy wardens of which have the power to enforce the laws relating to fish and game and to make arrests for violations thereof, stands in a somewhat different light than the two departments discussed above.

The nature of the wardens' duties and the locality of their activities appear to require a special force assigned for this purpose. This commission fears that placing the entire responsibility for the enforcement of these laws on the State Police would constitute a serious drain on the effectiveness of the force. Such duties would lead them frequently to uninhabited sections of the State where there is small likelihood of other crimes being committed and where a trooper would be completely out of touch with the central office. Availability at all times is one of the most important advantages of a State Force and the responsibility of patrolling the woods and streams would mitigate against its efficiency. However, co-operation between fish and game officers and the State Police organization should exist at all times and there will unquestionably be cases in which the State Police organization will be of invaluable aid in the enforcement of the law and the apprehension of its violators.

The proposed consolidations will make available for state police purposes funds now being expended annually for limited police protection and which would be sufficient to provide a real nucleus in the organization of the state force. An increase above the number of troopers thus provided for would, however, be necessary to insure an adequate and effective force. This Commission is of the opinion that at its inception the State Police Department should consist of the Superintendent, a deputy appointed by him, a clerk of the bureau of criminal records and identification, sufficient clerical assistance and two troops of twenty-five men each, including the proper officers.

The necessity of absolute independence of the force from interference by other departments and agencies cannot be overemphasized. All responsibility for the administration of the department should reside in the superintendent and he should be responsible for its efficient and proper management to the Governor and Council alone. Division of responsibility and the influence of outside authorities would be fatal to the success of the force. We recommend that the Superintendent have charge of the appointment and dismissal of his deputy, assistants and troopers without confirmation by any authority and the right to determine their qualifications. Further he should have the authority to issue rules and regulations and to assign the various duties to those constituting his organization, including his deputy. Thus it will be seen that the selection of a competent and trained man as an administrative head of the department is vital. This fact the Legislature must take into account in fixing the compensation of the Superintendent.

STATE DETECTIVE BUREAU

With the establishment of a State Police force, the necessity for and the proper functions of a State Detective Bureau cannot be determined for certain of the functions which such a bureau acting unassisted would perform will be done by the force. That there is need of some such organization is manifest. Here the Attorney General, the present head of all law enforcement has at his command no one to make special investigations in criminal matters. It has thus become necessary to employ private detective agencies both by the State and by the Counties which are similarly handicapped, and the funds thus expended could better be devoted to the expenses of a State Bureau. In other jurisdictions the investigation of crimes has been successfully undertaken by the State Police. Certain men in the force will show a particular aptitude for work of this character. We believe that the organization of such a Bureau is a matter logically connected with the functions of the State Police and that a separate department is a duplication in part and needless. This plan has worked out well in the State of New Jersey.

We recommend that the Superintendent of the State

Police be authorized, if in his opinion the detective work of the State Police so demands, to create a State Detective Bureau, which shall maintain facilities for the detection of crime in the State.

BUREAU OF RECORDS AND IDENTIFICATIONS

At the present time there exists no central bureau for the filing of criminal records and it is a practical impossibility to secure any statistics pertaining to crimes committed in the State outside the cities with organized police forces. Such records are essential to efficient police administration and comprise an important feature in criminal apprehension. Likewise there are no facilities for the taking, and filing of identification records and this also is well recognized as being essential in the thorough enforcement of criminal law.

This Commission, therefore, recommends that within the department of State Police there be set up a bureau of criminal records and identification under the supervision of a clerk of the bureau, who should be a man having special knowledge of criminal statistics and of taking, classifying and filing of fingerprints and other methods of identification. This Bureau and the State Detective office, if established, would naturally fall under one head, as the work is closely allied. The Bureau should receive duplicates of the records of all revolver purchases and revolver permits issued within the State. All police officers and officials having the custody of documents and records relating to criminal offences should be required to forward to the Superintendent of the State Police such copies thereof as he may require.

ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE POLICE IN LABOR DISPUTES

One phase of State Police work on which there exists much difference of opinion is the extent to which the force should intervene in strikes and riots. Due to the apprehension that the appearance of a uniformed force may inflame the strikers into provocative acts and precipitate a conflict, various checks have been devised although in each State reliance upon the State Police at some stage is considered desirable. Circumstances may arise when the local police are unable to handle a situation and the only assistance that can be obtained is by the appointment of special deputy sheriffs or by calling out the militia. In either case a force untrained for strike duty is placed in authority. The Massachusetts provision which requires that the State Police Force "shall not be used or called upon for service in any industrial dispute unless actual violence has occurred, and then only upon order of the Governor," furnishes in the opinion of this Commission an admirable preventive of hasty intervention. Thus instead of being compelled in an emergency to call upon the militia which lacks training and experience for this work, the Governor and Council would have at their command a competent and adequate force upon which to rely in a crisis.

RELATIONS WITH OTHER ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

It should be clearly understood that the State Police Department would in no way perform the present functions of the County Sheriff in the service of process and the like in civil actions. Its concern would be criminal matters alone and its activity would not be a substitute for but an addition to that now carried on by present officials with police power. The State Police would not act within the limits of a city having a regular established force, except in hot pursuit of a criminal or upon request of the local chief.

Despite frequent apprehensions to the contrary it has been found in other States that no friction or jealousy has developed between the State Force and the local officers but ready co-operation on both sides. The effect of a centralized office has tended to co-ordinate and simplify the activities of all enforcement officers in the State.

PROBABLE COST

The consolidation of departments recommended holds a strong argument on grounds of economy as well as efficiency. Funds now expended for law enforcement of a limited character will thereby be made available for State Police purposes.

The State Treasurer's report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930 discloses that the appropriations for the Department of Weights and Measures and the Law Enforcement Department were $15,775 and $19,250 respectively. This Commission has ascertained that the average annual cost of each patrolman in the Motor Vehicle Department is $3,000 and that it is proposed to add four men to the force making a total of $78,000. Thus the State would have $113,025 which could be devoted to the maintenance of a State Police force without any additional cost. By appropriating sufficient additional funds merely to take care of the Superintendent's salary, general office expense, and original capital outlay, a force of thirty-seven or thirty-eight men could be set up.

Your Commission feels, however, that in order to provide for efficient service at least fifty troopers should be provided. These on the same basis of figuring would require $150,000 per year. The salary of the Superintendent and the general office overhead should not exceed $10,000. In other States most of the clerical work is taken care of by its troopers. It has been estimated that the force would require forty motorcycles and cars, probably Fords and the initial cost of these has been assumed to be $15,000. Some allowance must be made for expense of training the members of the force. Considering that use be made of the state armories for this purpose, a figure of $10,000 should be sufficient and provide a surplus to take care of unanticipated capital outlay. The figure of $3000 covers the compensation of the trooper, his gun, uniforms for the year, cost of maintenance and use of his motorcycle or car and depreciation on the same. On this basis the total expense of the department for the year of installation would be $185,000 and in view of the fact that the training expense would be largely eliminated the second year, and that the capital expenditure for motorcycles and cars would not reoccur, owing to depreciation being figured in the $3,000 item, the annual expense after the first year would be reduced from $15,000 to $25,000.

As above stated the present amount expended is $113,025.

Deducting this sum from the anticipated total expense of $185,000 makes an increased expenditure of $71,975. It should be borne in mind that the first year's cost is the heaviest and that a number of factors will enter to reduce this amount. Considerable sums are now expended by the state and county for private detective services, special investigations, finger print and gun experts and by the towns for special police protection. These will in part be dispensed with. A fair proportion of the fees and expenses of sheriffs and their deputies under the item of State vs. Payroll in the County Report will be eliminated. Based upon the experience of other states a large amount of stolen goods will be recovered by the State Police. The value of such recoveries in such states frequently has exceeded the total appropriation for the department.

It thus appears that a State Police Force of sufficient numbers to be effective can be organized at no great increase in expense to the State. We are of the opinion that its institution is the only satisfactory method of filling the unquestioned need of the rural communities for further police protection.

The report was accepted and the bill ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Small of Rochester for the special committee appointed at the 1929 session to investigate all possible means of securing more constant attendance in the future presented the following report:

To the House of Representatives of the General Court of 1931:

On the 18th day of April, at the close of the January Session of the General Court of 1929, the House of Representatives adopted the following resolution, offered by Mr. Duncan of Jaffrey:

“WHEREAS the work of the House not only in this but in past sessions has been seriously inconvenienced by the consistent unexcused absences of many members of the House;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That the Speaker appoint a committee of five to investigate all possible means of securing more constant attendance in the future and that said committee serve without pay, and report their findings to the next Legislature.”

The Speaker appointed the undersigned as members of such committee.

The committee has made diligent inquiry of the corresponding legislative body of each State in the Union, has met and considered all suggested means of securing a more constant attendance, and respectfully begs leave to submit the following report of its findings:

1. We are unanimously of opinion that the first essential of any effort to secure a more constant attendance is an accurate daily record of the attendance of each member, and the daily publication in the journal of the names of those absent, separating the names of those whose absence is unexcused from the names of those who have duly requested and received license to depart. We are fortified in this opinion by the fact that out of the forty-four legislative bodies regarding which we received information, all but nine have a daily roll-call, four states reporting both morning and afternoon roll-calls. One fourth of the states volunteered the information that the attendance record is spread upon the journal.

Several methods of securing a daily attendance record were considered by the committee. Although a daily call of the roll by the clerk is in use in the legislatures of thirty states, this method seems impracticable in New Hampshire. No other state legislative body approaches the New Hampshire House in size, and even in legislatures of half the size daily roll-calls are not generally attempted. Of the nine state legislatures which have no daily roll-calls, six are legislative bodies of 150 or more members. In fact only two legislative bodies of over 150 members use the daily roll-call,—Connecticut (262 members, the next largest after New Hampshire,) and Illinois (153 members).

A possible alternative is a daily check of the attendance by monitors. Members might be willing to serve as monitors to check and report to the clerk daily the attendance of members sitting in certain specified divisions or parts of divisions in the House. Or the House might prefer to assign the six pages to this function, their presence during the entire day and their customary elevated stations facing the House facilitating their performance of such a duty.

Another alternative might be the daily operation of a time clock by each member, and delivery by him to the clerk, of a card properly stamped by the clock. This method, however, would be cumbersome and annoying to members, and its performance likely to be overlooked or neglected. It would also be a serious burden on the Clerk's office, which would have daily to check the entire roll against the cards received.

The committee finds that the most effective alternative to a daily call of the roll by the clerk is a mechanical device known as "the electric roll-call system" manufactured by the American Signal Corporation of 307 Thirteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Five State legislatures have installed this system,—those of Texas (147 members), Iowa (108 members), Wisconsin (100 members), Virginia (100 members), and Louisiana (100 members). The legislature of Ohio (130 members) has appointed a committee to examine into the subject and report, and that of Washington (96 members) tried out a system last session, but has not yet purchased.

The essentials of this electrical system are three electric buttons at each legislator's seat wired to a diagram, in full view of the House over the Speaker's desk and bearing the name of every member of the House. Opposite each name on the diagram are three different colored electric bulbs operated by the corresponding buttons at the legislator's seat. One bulb indicates a vote in the affirmative, one a vote in the negative, and the third simply "present and not-voting." When the roll-call or vote has been taken the whole system is locked by closing a circuit at the clerk's desk, and the machine automatically makes a permanent and unalterable record of the roll or vote by perforations in a sheet bearing the name of each legislator, which is automatically totalled by the device.

This electric roll-call is, it will be seen, more than a mere device for securing a roll of those present. It is also a method of taking the yeas and nays upon any question, and permits this to be done without confusion and with perfect accuracy in the fraction of a minute. Members can see from the indicator board how others are voting and can change their votes if they desire to, before the record is made. It would enable the taking of a roll-call at both morning and afternoon sessions and could be left open for this purpose for so long a time as desired. It would also make for more accurate voting, and save practically all the time now consumed by divisions of the House and calls of the yeas and nays.

The Secretary of State of Texas reports that the machine saves the State thousands of dollars each legislative session. From Iowa it is reported that there are more roll calls under this system and that members believe this makes for better legislation. "Not one of our members who has ever used our system would consider its abandonment." The Clerk of the House of Delegates of Virginia reports that they have found the system most satisfactory. The Clerk of the House of Representatives of Louisiana reports that the machine was a success, "but outlived its usefulness and cannot be moved into new capitol which is being built."

The Clerk of the House in Washington reports that they tried a system last session which was "very satisfactory" but that it has not as yet been purchased.

The only objection to the system suggested to the Committee is the cost of installation for so large a legislative body as this House. Appended to this report is a prospectus of the manufacturers, and a letter from them making a proposition for its installation in New Hampshire. The offer of the Company is to install the system for $50,000, subject to an annual rental of $3,600, or for $85,000 for an outright sale. As an annual rental of $3,600 would mean an overhead charge of $7,200 per biennial session, it is obvious that the latter proposition is the more economical. Against this cost should be set the saving to the State each session in the time of the Legislature and in the consequent cost of its operation. The State Treasurer advises the Committee that the expense of the Legislature to the State of New Hampshire which is dependent on the length of the session, including salaries of employees, and personal transportation and railroad mileage of members, totalled during the session of 1929, the sum of $58,096.41 for a session of fifteen weeks, or approximately $4,000 per week.

It can be concluded, therefore, with reasonable certainty, that if the system could save the Legislature two weeks' time every session it would earn the State better than $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ interest on the investment of \$85,000. With a greater saving of time the system might ultimately pay for itself, in addition to whatever benefits might be derived in the matter of better attendance and more certain voting in the House.

2. With an accurate and permanent record of all absentees in the daily journal, the Committee are of opinion that a more constant attendance in the House might readily be secured. The mere knowledge that future opponents at the polls, or the local press, would have ready access to the attendance record of a member in the House, would have a tendency to induce attention to his duty. With this information on its Journal the House could more readily enforce Rule No. 33: "Each member shall seasonably and punctually attend to his duty in the House, and no one shall absent himself from the service of the House unless he have leave, or be sick and unable to attend." The rule is practically ineffective under the present system.

If daily publication of his absence from duty proved ineffective, the House could resort to the more drastic remedy of withholding salary. The Constitution of New Hampshire, Part Second, Article 15, provides that members of the legislature seasonally attending and not departing without license, shall receive as compensation in full for their services for the term elected, the sum of two hundred dollars. Under this provision it would seem that the legislature might constitutionally provide for proportional deductions from the salaries of those who fail to attend or depart without license.

In this connection it is interesting to note, however, that the Legislative bodies of other States do not generally find penalties for absence practicable. In Maine the statute provides for a deduction for each day's absence of two dollars from the salary of $600 per term, but as the Clerk of the House keeps no attendance record the statute is obviously not enforced. In Ohio the Constitution provides for a penalty for non-attendance, but leaves the amount to be provided by law. Again as there is no daily record of attendance, there is no attempt to enforce the provision. In Maryland deduction is supposed to be made for unexcused absence, but no real check is made of this. In Montana a member forfeits his per diem for unexcused absence, and in Rhode Island the salary is five dollars for each day's actual attendance. In Tennessee absent members lose their salary. In West Virginia up to 1921 the rules of the House attempted to withhold the per diem of four dollars unless proper excuse was given, but the rule was not enforced. In Utah the House may stop the per diem if the member is absent for three days without excuse. All the other states report no fines or penalties for absence.

The Committee submits the foregoing report of its findings without recommendation other than (1) that the House consider the adoption of some system of securing an accurate record for the Journal of each member's attendance, and (2) investigate further the cost and probable savings of the "electric roll-call system."

RESOLUTION

Mr. Friend of Belmont offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, there is before the House of Representatives a bill imposing a tax upon personal and corporate incomes, on which the Supreme Court of the State has heretofore advised the legislature in part, but on which there is doubt of the constitutionality of other parts;

WHEREAS, it is important that the constitutionality of the whole should be settled in advance of enactment to protect the interests of the state and its people; Now therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that the Speaker of the House of Representatives be and hereby is directed to obtain from the Justices of the Supreme Court their opinion upon the following questions:

1. Would any constitutional provision be violated in ascertaining taxable net income by the deduction of all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid during the income year in carrying on income producing activities as provided in paragraph a, section 10, of House Bill No. 28?

2. Would any constitutional provision be violated in ascertaining taxable net income by allowing the deduction of all the ordinary and necessary living expenses of the tax payer required to keep him and his family in life as an income producing and tax paying entity, as provided in paragraph b, section 10, of House Bill No. 28, and avoiding the necessity of requiring the keeping of accurate accounts of income and expenses in a great majority of cases by setting up an arbitrary minimum of income as equalling the ordinary and necessary living expenses?

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Mr. Duncan of Jaffrey offered the following concurrent resolution:

Relative to the Importation of Lumber, Pulpwood and Pulp from Soviet Russia.

WHEREAS a condition of extraordinary economic depression exists in the country at the present time, and

WHEREAS such depression is seriously affecting lumbering, logging, pulpwood and pulp business in New Hampshire, and

WHEREAS such depression in said lines is due to a great extent to the immense importation of said products from Soviet Russia, entry thereof being free of duty, and

WHEREAS said lumber, pulpwood and pulp are being sold and delivered in and about New England at lower prices than the same kind of products can be produced by American labor, due to lack of duty thereon, and the forced conditions under which said products are alleged to be cut and manufactured, and said selling of goods under existing conditions amounts to unfair competition, and

WHEREAS in consequence of the lack of duty and the unfair competition, and cheap labor conditions existing in Soviet Russia, 350,000 cords were shipped into this country in 1930, and it is estimated that at least 600,000 cords will be shipped into this country during the year 1931 if present conditions are allowed to exist, and

WHEREAS in consequence thereof and thereby, lumber, logging, pulpwood and pulp operations have been practically discontinued in this state, resulting in the closing of mills, throwing thousands of American laborers out of employment, causing many to become public charges, and

WHEREAS in justice to the American manufacturers, workingmen, and others interested in said lines of business prompt action is necessary to save the above industry from ruin, and

WHEREAS it seems fitting and proper that the aid of our representatives in Congress be enlisted in saving said industries from what has become a serious situation.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives the Senate Concurring:

1. That the Honorable Senators and Members of the House of Representatives, representing the State of New Hampshire in Congress, be and hereby are requested to make every possible effort to bring about an embargo, or have a substantial duty placed against the goods above described now being imported in immense quantities from Soviet Russia, so that the farmers, lumbermen, logging operators, and pulp manufacturers may be placed in a position where they can continue to do business, and thus enable the thousands now out of employment, owing to the serious situation, to again have an opportunity to work.

2. Resolved Further, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded immediately upon its passage to the Honorable George H. Moses, and Honorable Henry W. Keyes, United States Senators at Washington, D. C., and to the Honorable Edward H. Wason, and Honorable Fletcher Hale, members of the House of Representatives at Washington, D. C.

REPORT SUBMITTED •

John R. McLane for the committee appointed to make a study and analysis of the Corporation Law submitted the following report and recommendations.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

The undersigned duly appointed under the provisions of Chapter 278, Laws of 1929 to make a study and analysis of the Corporation Law submit herewith the following report and recommendations.

The general Corporation Law now on the statute books goes back to the revised statutes of 1842, and while it has been amended from time to time to bring it into harmony with present day economic views, it still contains in its restrictive sections not a few evidences of the early distrust of the corporate method of transacting business. In so far as these restrictions seem to have outlived their usefulness and tend to hinder legitimate corporate activity, we have recommended their repeal. These recommendations apply specifically to limitations upon the amount of property which may be held by a corporation and to the prohibition against soliciting proxies.

In Laws of 1919, Ch. 92, the Business Corporation Law was enacted, and this has provided for corporations organized since that date and for those older ones which have qualified under its provisions, a flexible system of corporate organization which has given in general satisfactory results.

It was not designed for the purpose nor has it had the effect of attracting out-of-state enterprises to incorporate in this state, and this committee does not believe it dignified or wise for New Hampshire to attempt to enter into a competition of this nature. The proper object to be sought in our opinion is to provide our own business enterprises with an inexpensive flexible corporate method of doing business with due safeguards for the rights of creditors and stockholders.

Acting upon this principle we have not proposed any drastic changes in the present law. We do submit the following recommendations in order somewhat to clarify and simplify it. A short comment is made explanatory of each recommendation and bills are attached which would carry these recommendations into effect.

Amend Section 6, Chapter 223, Public Laws by adding after the words "may change its name" in line 3, the words "increase or decrease its capital stock," and by adding after the word "purpose" in line 5 the word "and."

Comment. This right is given in Sec. 7, Ch. 227 but it is not clear that it is necessary to record a certified copy of the vote in such cases in the office of the Secretary of State and in the office of the Town or City Clerk.

Repeal Sec. 7, Ch. 223, limiting amount of property to $500,000.

Comment. This seems an unnecessary restriction on legitimate corporate enterprise.

Amend Sec. 3, Ch. 225, by striking out the whole thereof and substituting the following:

"The corporate name must end with the abbreviation "Inc." or must include the word "corporation" or "incorporated" or may include the word "Company" or the abbreviation "Co." if that word or abbreviation is not immediately preceded by the word "and" or the abbreviation "&". The provisions of this section shall not affect the right of any corporation existing at the time this act takes effect to continue the use of its name. Subject to the above limitation any corporate name may be assumed which is not in use by any other New Hampshire corporation or any foreign corporation admitted to do business in this State, and which is not so similar thereto or to that of any partnership or association carrying on business in this State, as to be liable to be mistaken for it; provided that such name or similar name may be adopted with the consent in writing of such existing corporation, partnership or association filed with the articles of agreement."

Comment. This recommendation is made in order that persons having to do with business enterprises in corporate form may learn from the corporate name the nature of its organization.

Amend Ch. 225, Sec. 10, by adding after the words "of the record" in line 5, the following "except the by-laws."

Comment. This recommendation is made for the sake of economy. By-laws are frequently voluminous and expensive to record and contain little except purely formal provisions. Sec. 14, Ch. 225, permits the Attorney-General in examining the record of organizations to call for such additional information as he may consider necessary. This discretion given to the Attorney-General is considered to be an adequate safeguard.

Amend Sec. 21, Ch. 225 by striking out the entire section after the words "less than ten" in line 5.

Comment. This recommendation is made to clarify the law. Sec. 26, of the same Chapter gives adequate authority for classifying stock.

Amend Sec. 32, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 123 Laws of 1929 by adding the word "total" after the words "in like detail and the" in the 16th line of said section.

Comment. This recommendation is made to clarify the section and to give effect to the rulings and practice of the Office of the Attorney-General.

Amend Sec. 35, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 123 of the Laws of 1929 by striking out the words "within thirty days from the date of authorization of such additional stock."

Comment. This limitation upon the time for recording the affidavit gives rise to technical defects in increases of capital stock and seems unnecessary because of the provision at the end of the section which makes unlawful stock issued until the certificate shall have been filed.

Amend Sec. 42, Ch. 225 by striking out the words "within thirty days after such meeting" in line 2 of said section.

Comment. It is provided in Sec. 45 that no amendment shall take effect until the record shall have been deposited for record and the fee paid. This seems ample protection and will tend to eliminate technical defects.

Amend Sec. 49, Ch. 225, by striking out the same and substituting the following:

Form. Each stockholder shall be entitled to a certificate of stock signed by the President and Treasurer or by such officers as the articles of incorporation or by-laws may provide, but when any such certificate is signed by a transfer agent or registrar the signature of any such corporate officer and the corporate seal, if any, upon such certificate, may be facsimiles engraved or printed."

Comment. This change conforms to the recommendation of the Uniform Corporation Law and gives greater flexibility in the form of certificates of stock without removing any necessary safeguards to their genuineness.

Amend Sec. 60, Ch. 225 by adding after the words "annual meeting" the following: "a special meeting in lieu of such annual meeting may be called upon such notice as may be provided in the by-laws for a special meeting."

Comment. This recommendation is made to obviate the expense and delay in curing a technical defect in the holding of an annual meeting.

Amend Sec. 87, Ch. 225, as amended by Ch. 84 of the Laws of 1927 by striking out the words "Between March 1 and 15 in each year," and inserting in place thereof the words "during the month of April."

Comment. This recommendation is made to save considerable expense attached to the present and inconsistent method of notifying corporations of a default in advance of any default.

Amend Sec. 88, Ch. 225 as amended by Ch. 84 of the Laws of 1927, by striking out the word "notification" in the 4th line of said section.

Comment. This amendment is made to give effect to the amendment in Sec. 87.

Amend Sec. 1, Ch. 226 by adding at the end thereof the following words "and also sections 15 to 20 inclusive."

Comment. This is to give effect to the next recommendation.

Amend: Ch. 226 by adding at the end thereof the following sections

"Voting Trusts."

15. Two or more shareholders of any domestic corporation may, pursuant to an agreement in writing, transfer their shares to any person or persons or to a corporation having authority to act as trustee for the purpose of vesting in such person or persons or corporation as trustee or trustees all voting or other rights pertaining to such shares for a period not exceeding ten years and upon the terms and conditions stated in the agreement.

16. A duplicate copy of such agreement shall be filed with the Clerk of the corporation and shall be open daily during business hours to the inspection of any shareholder or any depositor under said agreement or the attorney of any shareholder or depositor.

17. Every other shareholder may transfer his shares to the same trustee or trustees upon the terms and conditions stated in said agreement within the time stated in the agreement, or within the time fixed by the trustee or trustees, but in any event at any time within six months of filing the agreement with the Clerk of the corporation and thereupon shall be bound by all the provisions of said agreement.

18. The certificates of shares so transferred shall be surrendered and cancelled, and new certificates therefor issued to such person or persons, and such trustee or trustees, in which new certificates it shall appear that they are issued pursuant to said agreement. In the entry of transfer on the books of the corporation it shall also be noted that the transfer is made pursuant to said agreement.

19. The trustee or trustees shall execute and deliver to the transferors, voting trust certificates. Such voting trust certificates shall be transferable in the same manner and with the same effect as certificates of stock under provisions of Ch. 225, Sections 51, 52, 53.

20. The trustee or trustees shall possess all voting and other rights pertaining to the shares so transferred and registered in his or their names subject to the terms and conditions of and for the period specified in said agreement.

Comment. The status of voting trusts, while approved under certain circumstances in an opinion of the Supreme Court, is not clear under the common law and there is no statutory authority for such voting trusts. The recommendation adopts in substance the provisions of the Uniform Corporation Act.

Repeal Sec. 28, Ch. 227, limiting proxy voting at railroad meetings.

Comment. This section reflects the early distrust of corporate enterprise, is repealed so far as it concerns the Boston & Maine Railroad by a special act of the Legislature and its repeal is recommended because it is believed to be an obsolete and unnecessary restriction.

Amend Sec. 29, Ch. 227 by striking out the words "or shall directly or indirectly solicit a proxy for any other person to vote upon" in line 4 of said section.

Comment. This section is probably unknown to the general public, is constantly violated and is an unnecessary restriction upon the exercise of a stockholder's rights.

Repeal Sec. 20, Ch. 309, relating to jurisdiction of probate courts in cases of trusts created by written instrument.

Comment. This section has given rise to doubts in the minds of corporation officers, particularly in its possible application to corporate mortgages. It does not seem desirable that trustees under such mortgages should be subject to the Probate Court. The jurisdiction of the Superior Court over all trusts seems to furnish all necessary safeguards.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE GOVERNOR

His Excellency the Governor made the following announcement:

Yesterday death came to George W. Wilder as it must come to all men. We knew him, in the colloquial language of parliamentary procedure, as "the Member from Rindge." In these legislative halls, against his own interests, he fought for a more equitable distribution of the tax burden. No cause that carried a challenge to protect the weak ever failed to win his sympathy and his support. Always he worked for a greater equality of opportunity, a square deal for the other fellow, and through it all he respected the opinions of others as he did his own.

Even when his body was torn with pain his thoughts were here in the Assembly of the people.

We shall miss his brave spirit and kindly understanding. If we would pay him tribute it could only be through rising above ourselves and writing human progress into the statutes of this session.

Always he wore the red badge of courage over a warm heart.

It was he who as a student at Amherst College asked Professor Garman "If a man lived the truth as he sees the truth shall he enter the Kingdom of Heaven?" And Garman answered "He is in the Kingdom of Heaven for the Kingdom of Heaven is truth."

Your committee having done its duty, after due consideration decided that a practical demonstration of a system of this description was the proper way to make known to the House of Representatives the merits of the system.

As a result of our efforts we have, with the consent and approval of the Speaker of the House and the Governor of the State, Honorable John G. Winant, arranged for an installation of the system which we have here today, which is called a Public Address System.

This system is installed temporarily at no cost to the state subject to the approval of the members of the House.

Your committee recommends that steps be taken for a permanent installation of a suitable public address system.

OPINION OF SUPREME COURT

The Speaker presented the following opinions handed down by the Supreme Court.

To the House of Representatives:

The undersigned, the justices of the Supreme Court, having received your resolution requiring their opinions as to the constitutionality of House Bill Number 227, make the following answer.

The bill provides for the imposition of a tax upon property passing by will or inheritance in such an amount as will make the total of such taxes laid by states etc., equal to the amount deductible from the federal estate tax, because so laid.

It makes the imposition of the proposed tax dependent upon the right to deduct the same from the amount of the federal estate tax, which would otherwise be payable in full to the federal government. We are unable to perceive wherein such a provision would violate any constitutional right of the taxpayer. The amount he is called upon to contribute for the support of government is not increased because he has to pay this state tax.

The nation lays a valid tax and makes valid provision for its partial distribution to the several states, through the process of local assessments and the deduction thereof from the federal tax. Substance, not form, governs in these matters; and this is the substance of the whole transaction.

It is our opinion that if the bill is enacted it will be a valid law.

To the House of Representatives:

The undersigned, the justices of the Supreme Court being in receipt of your resolution requiring their opinions as to the constitutionality of section 10 of House Bill No. 28, relating to the taxation of incomes, make answer as follows.

I. Deductions of business expenditures from gross income, as set forth in section 10, paragraph (a) of the bill, are clearly allowable. One would hardly think of computing income from business, or earned income, on a basis which ignored such charges against it.

II. By paragraph (b) of the same section it is proposed to enact that there shall also be deducted from income received "The ordinary and necessary living expenses of the taxpayer required to keep him and his family in life as an income-producing and tax-paying entity, which in the case of a single man shall be deemed to be one thousand five hundred dollars annually, and in the case of a married man, shall be deemed to be three thousand dollars annually." We do not think that this differs (except in the amounts stated) from the exemptions proposed in Section 5 of the bill concerning which our opinions were required two years ago. The conclusions reached as to that provision, and the reasons therefor, are set out in the opinion filed January 7, 1930, to which you are respectfully referred. In so far as the proposed deductions exceed $1200. for a single man and $2000. for a married man, they go beyond what is permitted under the constitution.

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE

The Honorable Secretary of State appeared and laid before the House the following report.

TO THE HONORABLE SENATE AND THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES N. H. LEGISLATURE SESSION 1931

In accordance with the authority of a joint resolution of the Legislative session of 1929 the following report of the work of the Commission on Coast Erosion and Marsh Development is respectfully submitted:

MEMBERSHIP

The membership of the commission was made up by Governor Spaulding as directed by an act of the Legislature, 1927 Session, as follows: Honorable George H. Moses, Chairman; George Ashworth, Hampton, Vice Chairman; Charles Francis Adams, Hampton, Secretary; William A. Grover, C. E., Engineer, Dover; Ernest G. Cole, Hampton; Fred L. Weare, Seabrook.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

An extended study of the project was made by the commission and a full report of its doings was made by the commission to the Legislature of 1929, and a concrete statement of its findings was summarized in a group of four recommendations as follows:

1. The acceptance and adoption of this report and the recommendations thereon, establishing thereby as the State's future policy the conservation and reclamation of coastal lands.

2. The continuance of the Commission with the addition thereto of the State Commissioner of Highways, with authority to employ the engineering staff of the highway department in making surveys, designs and estimates of construction, and such other work as the Commission requires.

3. That the Commission be empowered and directed to perform the following acts:

(a) To extend to the delegates of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association, when assembled in convention at Hampton Beach in June next, an official invitation to become the guests of the State, through the Commission, and to accept officially the co-operation of the Association's scientists' expert advice in the solving of a national problem.

(b) To obtain, in behalf of the State, federal co-operation and financial aid in carrying out the recommendations requiring federal approval.

(c) To cause a comprehensive survey to be made of the marshlands locating therein the situation, length, width and construction of canals and boulevards; the area properly assigned to a State reservation; the location and area to be assigned to an air-port; the location and area of a wild game preserve.

(d) To determine the method and approximate cost of taking title in the State's name to such area as the commission recommends proper and to determine the extent and terms of reimbursement to the State along lines as follows:

For the wild game preserves: from advocates of game preserves, sportsmens' clubs and interested parties. Reimbursement to the State for the full cost thereof. For the construction cost of canal and boulevards and land costs of reservation area; the revenue from concessions and rentals within the reservations.

For the air-port; the bonds of a county air-port association, the terms, condition, etc., to be determined by the next legislature if recommended by the commission.

The report was accepted.

For the purpose of adopting and the putting into effect the recommendations of the commission, the following joint resolution was enacted by the legislature and approved by Governor Tobey, April 18, 1929.

CHAPTER 273

Joint resolution relating to the investigation of marsh lands in Hampton, Hampton Falls and Seabrook.

Whereas, the report of the legislative commission appointed to investigate the feasibility of improving the marsh lands of Hampton, Hampton Falls and Seabrook, under the provisions of chapter 129, Laws of 1927, has been received and accepted; and

Whereas, said report carries several recommendations that are for the best interests of the State, therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the recommendations of said commission be and hereby are adopted, and for the purpose of carrying out said recommendations said commission, with the addition of the state highway commissioner as a member thereof, is hereby continued.

That said commission shall make a report of its work at the next session of the legislature. The members of said commission shall serve without pay but legitimate expenses, including the entertainment of the American Shore and

Beach Preservation Association, may be incurred to an amount not exceeding the sum of five hundred dollars and the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant for said sum out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Believing that the approval of the State, through its legislative action, in adopting the first of the foregoing recommendations laid the foundation for a permanent policy of development, the commission has limited its work during the past two years very largely to section (a) and (b) of the third recommendation, leaving for the future the consummation of the authorized work on the remaining recommendations.

The invitation of the New Hampshire members of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association was accepted and the mid year meeting of that important national organization was held at Hampton Beach in June, 1929. That meeting produced results of the utmost value to New Hampshire, and a summary of the exercises is herewith given.

JUNE MEETING AMERICAN SHORE AND BEACH PRESERVATION ASSOCIATION

Monday's program opened with registration at Hotel Ashworth and the giving out of identifying badges. Then came the reception to Governor Tobey, with members of the association standing in line with him.

About one hundred guests shook the hands of the receiving party.

Following this, the regular morning session was opened. President Smith, who is the Chairman of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation, extended a greeting in a few, well-chosen words, and then introduced Gov. Charles W. Tobey, who was received with applause. Governor Tobey extended a warm and sincere welcome from the State of New Hampshire to these big men of science and industry, that made the guests feel that they were truly welcome.

Governor Tobey was followed by Mr. Frederic E. Everett, highway commissioner of New Hampshire, who is also a member of the Preservation Association and the New Hampshire Legislative Commission.

President Smith responded to both in a happy manner, and then appointed the committee on resolutions and adjourned the meeting that the intermission until serving of the clam bake could be devoted to an inspection of the shore.

The big clam bake was served to 200 people in a big tent on the sands in front of the Ashworth under supervision of Mr. George Ashworth, Vice Chairman of the Commission and the officials of the town of Hampton and the Hampton Beach Precinct. It was pronounced the best thing in open-air shore dinners ever held on the beach.

The afternoon session at 2:00 o'clock was much more largely attended, many local people interested in the Hampton Beach project, attending. Altogether there were sixteen states and the District of Columbia represented by members of the association, all of which were on the Atlantic seaboard. Ohio, with its river problems, sent a young geologist.

The first address of this session was made by President J. Spencer Smith of New Jersey. Briefly he said:

"Our purpose, as stated in our constitution, is 'to foster that sound, far-sighted and economical development and preservation of the lands which will aid in placing their benefits within the reach of the largest number of people in accordance with the ideals of a democratic nation.'"

PRES. SMITH'S REFERENCE TO STATE AGENCIES

Describing the practicable solution of laying claim to land titles for the purpose of protection from erosion, President Smith continued:

"Existing State agencies can be clothed with power to set up assessment districts upon the requests of a given number of property owners, or a number of communities. The cost of a comprehensive plan, which will be effective, covering the area in question can be ascertained and the proportion to be borne by the interested parties determined. The question can then be voted upon. The right of individuals and the communities can be equally protected under this arrangement. At the same time neither individuals nor communities will be permitted, for selfish reasons, to block the execution of a project which will conserve a natural asset."

Prof. Goldthwaite described the state historically and politically, stressing the natural apathy which most of the members of the Legislature show for the 18 miles of coast, since they represent hill and farming counties. The New Hampshire coast would go only a quarter of the distance around Lake Winnepesaukee, declared the speaker, "and is but a fraction of the length of the Connecticut river in this state. It is quite natural that you hear most about our rivers and lakes and because of the above fact it is difficult to face the representatives from the inland communities on legislation for protecting the coast line."

Professor Goldthwaite condemned the practice of permitting private individuals and building contractors to carry away truck loads of sand from the beaches which are State property.

A vivid picture of Hampton river as a navigable stream and ship haven, the marshlands as a State park, aviation base, residential, business area and the beach, itself, as a resort for thousands of vacationists annually, was painted, in words, by Mr. Victor Gelineau, chief engineer of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation.

ENGINEER GELINEAU'S CONCRETE PLAN

Mr. Gelineau, who made a survey of the situation at Hampton, suggested appointing a permanent commission or board to work out a program for the development of Hampton. He figured that it would take at least 20 years to complete the program.

"Whether or not it be conceded that Hampton's beach problem is unusual, it will not be disputed that Hampton's possibilities and opportunities are extraordinary."

This strip of land, according to the New Jersey expert, bounded on one side by the ocean and on the other side by uninhabitable salt marshes, offers no inducements for agriculture or manufacturing or any other gainful activity, except one, the resort business. And that, in his estimation, is the greatest and most rapidly advancing single industry in the state.

"Therefore," Mr. Gelineau told his audience, the conservation and development of this beach with a view to realizing its utmost possibilities is a subject for serious consideration. It is of much more than local concern, it is unthinkable that the future growth of this highly valuable asset, should be left to chance. "I would, for convenience, subdivide the Hampton problem into three parts, all of which are closely related and interdependent."

Mr. Gelineau placed in the first class the preservation of the ocean front, a coast protection project.

In the second, he recommended the improvement of Hampton river, a waterway, improvement project. In the third, he proposed the reclamation of the back marshes.

All of these three factors, the speaker declared, involve their peculiar elements of engineering public policy as to elimination and financing. The preservation and rebuilding of the ocean beach is the first element in urgency and difficulty of execution, he declared. The tendency toward depletion apparently remains in force and must ultimately be checked. This problem will never be less difficult in the future. Erosion is the natural tendency to expect on almost any ocean beach. Just south of Boar's Head, the beach is entirely denuded of sand and the roadway might be in danger during severe storms.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES

"Obviously protective measures should be considered and the choice and application of remedies should be made.

"The stabilization of Hampton River with the primary object of improving navigation and creating a harbor of refuge is the ordinary problem of dredging and training walls.

"Until this river, just as in the case of Shark river, is stabilized, it will be of little or no value to navigation and will render impossible the preservation of the beach near the river mouth. Obviously, sudden or periodic shifting of the inlet to delta must be arrested. The essential point is that it should be made to serve as key structure of a sandy beach.

RECLAMATION OF THE MARSHES

"The reclamation of the back marshes constitutes a very important element in the future growth of Hampton Beach. The time cannot be far distant when parts of this marsh are rendered habitable by the operation of raising the land levels. Presumably, the method of procedure would be the familiar one of hydraulic dredging. This would convert much of the existing marsh areas into water areas. A two-fold benefit is thus secured through the dredging operation, the low-value marshes being converted into valuable solid land or navigable waterways.

"Anyone can visualize the opportunity for large scale planning with this vast scope of marshland converted into home sites and parks, yachts and ship basins and airports. The possibilities are unlimited and apparently no serious difficulties exist. The suggested dredging of the marshland would extend the tidal flow area tributary to Hampton river. This, in turn, would profoundly influence the design of the training walls and other work required to stabilize and improve the river, for it is elementary that the cross-section of navigable channels of an ocean inlet depends upon the area of the tributary tidal lagoon or more accurately upon the volume of ebbing and flowing water which engineers call the tidal prism."

THREE PHASES OF DEVELOPMENT

The three major phases of development of beach, river and marsh are inseparable; according to Mr. Gelineau they combine to form one real problem.

"There are difficulties," he told the gathering, "but they can be solved. The only chance to reach satisfactory results is to create a properly constituted tribunal with continuity of its service and armed with real authority. Without this continuity of service and authority, conflict is certain to result. And that means possible failure.

"This public body, commission or board, whatever form it may take, would have to work out a plan providing as well as might be for at least 20 years in the future.

"Board-walk, park land, harbor, airport, residential and business areas, public utilities of every kind, all would be coordinated and harmonized into the general plan.

"That such planning would be entrusted to public-spirited men supported with adequate technical assistants is an unavoidable conclusion. The job would be a full time task for experts who would give their lives to it. This, in turn, implies freedom from local interference or political controversies. Freedom from politicians is absolutely indispensable to the public confidence."

Although the sheer realist, he said, cannot conceive of land owners controlling the vagaries of the plan of rivers, the united interest of erosion experts might. He told of the work accomplished in New Jersey with its 120-mile coast and urged the appointment of state commission with suitable appropriations.

STATE READY TO FINANCE

Atty. General Ralph W. Davis of Manchester, who was called upon by President Smith of the association, said that New Hampshire stood ready to finance propositions which would directly benefit the state. Failure of any organized group to properly recommend a solution to the Hampton problem was responsible for the lack of progress made. He said "there is nothing unique in the problem which now confronts Hampton, and what affects Hampton affects vitally the whole state of New Hampshire with its very limited beach front."

Major Somervell, United States Army engineer, brought

word of study and co-operation on the part of the government informing the convention that experts were studying sand movements along the coast.

General Richard K. Hale of the Massachusetts Public Works Commission related the historical and present importance of the Massachusetts coast, telling of what had been done north and south of Boston in checking erosion with conditions like those along the Atlantic generally.

GOV. TOBEY PRESENT

At the banquet in the evening Governor Tobey, Gov. William Tudor Gardiner of Maine, United States Senator George H. Moses, President Smith of the Association and Colonel Barden of the United States Army Corps of Engineers were the chief speakers. Others at the head table included Former Governor Huntley N. Spaulding, Councilor Harry Merrill of Exeter, State Senators Swallow and Lee of Manchester, Senator Rolfe of Concord and Senator Munsey of Hampton, Senator Brackett of Greenland, Senator Wadleigh of Milford and Senator Peaslee of Weare, and more than thirty members of the House of Representatives.

Mayor Hartford of Portsmouth acted as toastmaster.

President Smith told the assembly that those interested in coast preservation and protection would have to organize themselves, form a board and give it power and support it financially.

Governor Gardiner was particularly interested in the subject of the control of pollution of waters in rivers and bays.

SENATOR MOSES ADDRESSES THE BANQUET

Senator Moses in his address said in part, "The problem of coast erosion is one which engages the interest of both the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard. The cause of the damage is done, not only to material problems, but to the scenic attractiveness of the coast line. The question is one of almost equal consequence with a problem, which arises in connection with our river and harbors department. Some of these states, notably New Jersey and New Hampshire, have already taken steps to avert the disaster which surely impends unless steps are presently taken to protect the integrity of our northern coast line. This is the section which is most exposed to the ravages of extreme storm perils, and the credit belongs to your own Representative from Hampton, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, for the State Commission and the important work it is doing.

"Massachusetts, too, has named a commission to deal with this subject and New Hampshire earnestly seeks the closest of co-operation with her elder and southern neighbor.

"If Massachusetts and New Hampshire together should move promptly and vigorously to secure a federal appropriation for the purposes which the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association has in mind, I feel sure that we cannot fail to have the ultimate approval of Congress."

At the final session of the association President Smith took the opportunity to invite the New Hampshire commission to visit New Jersey where a problem similar to Hampton's has been successfully solved.

"You will find us ready and willing to serve you, to give you access to our records and our files and to assist you in developing this great beach," he declared.

"The association has endeavored, in its two-day session, to demonstrate what has been done in the few years of its organization. We have been glad to place this material in your hands. And I may say at this time that you have helped us also. I was greatly impressed by your parallel highways, one running a few miles back from the shore and the other following the winding coast line.

"You have worked out a very fine plan of having the view from your shore road unobstructed."

CONTINUING THE COMMISSION'S REPORT

The engineering features of the Hampton problem as presented in the study by Victor Gelineau, who is the chief engineer of the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation, was along the lines on which your commission is working. This engineer's suggestion that the present Legislative Commission be made a permanent state agency, similar to those in New Jersey and several other states is unanimously approved by the members in this report, because the work devolving upon the state agency while in co-operation with this Government and later in working and the development of the harbor, river and marsh projects for the highest return to the State must necessarily cover an extended period of time.

The three stages through which, as Gelineau says, the best results can be obtained were early recognized and adopted by your commission and its work for the immediate future is in co-operation with the Federal Board created at the last session of Congress for the study of coast erosion problems and providing remedies therefor. This board is composed of four army engineers with Gen. Lytle Brown of Washington, Chairman and Chief Engineer; and three civilians, Victor Gelineau, C. E., New Jersey; Prof. Thorndyke Seville of the University of North Carolina and Gen. Richard H. Hale of Massachusetts. These civilian members of the Board are all members of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association and are more or less familiar with the Hampton problem and are heartily in sympathy with the work which this commission has undertaken in behalf of the state of New Hampshire.

For a long time to come the state agency must be in close co-operation with the National Board, with consultations at Hampton Beach, Boston and Washington.

The larger share of the cost will be borne by the Federal government, but under the terms of the congressional act some share must be borne by the state of New Hampshire. However, if the results expected are realized the cost will be insignificant in comparison with the value of the service to New Hampshire. The conditions at Hampton Beach are desperate. Unless remedial work is undertaken at early date a very large section of New Hampshire's most valuable seacoast will be utterly destroyed.

CO-OPERATIVE NATIONAL AND STATE PROJECT

The very nature of the work as well as its magnitude makes it essentially a co-operative national and state project, but it is largely owing to the creation by our legislature in 1927 of this commission that there is now a Federal board to bring to New Hampshire financial and engineering assistance in this hour of need. The least that New Hampshire can do, then, in our belief, is to meet the government part way with a permanent commission and the small appropriation which is necessary to begin study and remedial work.

COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT

Following the construction work necessary to check erosion and reclaim the lost shore front, will be the commercial development of the Hampton river and the adjoining marsh lands and the first steps in the project have already been taken by your commissioners.

Through the efforts of the New Hampshire delegation in Congress under leadership of Senators Moses and Keyes an item was inserted in the River and Harbor bill of 1930 authorizing a survey of the Hampton project. Under that authority we petitioned the District Engineers of the War Department at Boston for a public hearing which was accorded us and Col. Cheney and Col. Park were assigned to the case.

ENGINEER GROVER PRESENTS CASE TO GOVERNMENT ENGINEERS

Through our commission's engineer, Mr. W. A. Grover, our case was most ably presented and we are happy to state brought a favorable report to the chief engineer at Washington. The full board, however, has temporarily held up the commercial project yet leaving us in good standing to go forward with this phase when the erosion and harbor work is completed.

New Hampshire is the first state to seek federal aid under the recent act of Congress and the first step was taken on Monday, February 8, when a conference was held between Mr. W. A. Grover, the commission's engineer, and the engineers of the War Department in accordance with the requirements of the National Erosion Act. From now on the work will be of a co-operative nature and will be pushed as rapidly as possible that the real work of construction may begin.

Your commission therefore makes the following recommendations and urgently prays that they be granted by the 1931 Session of the Legislature:

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That New Hampshire legally may meet the requirements of a state agency under the terms of the National Erosion Act of 1930 and placed upon an equal footing with similar state agencies in the several states the legislative commission of coast erosion and marsh development be made a permanent state agency to be hereafter known as the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission. The membership of the Coast Erosion and Marsh Development Commission as now constituted shall be the membership of the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission and vacancies hereinafter occurring in said commission shall be filled by appointment of the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of his Council. The said members of the commission shall serve without pay; provided, however, the Secretary of the Commission, acting as an executive officer, may be entitled to compensation in a sum not exceeding $750 per annum, and members may be entitled to a per diem compensation for actual attendance at conferences and their legitimate expenses.

2. That the sum of $3000 be appropriated to cover the foregoing expenses and such share of the cost of erosion study as may be required by the national erosion board from the New Hampshire Commission.

3. That all the authority conferred upon the legislative commission by Joint Resolution, chapter 273 of the Laws of 1929, be conferred upon the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation and Development Commission, together with such other authority as will establish the said commission as the legal representative of the state of New Hampshire in all matters pertaining to coastal improvements.

WM. A. GROVER,
FRED L. WEARE,
ERNEST G. COLE,

The report was accepted.

On motion of Mr. Price of Lisbon the reading of the report was dispensed with.

On motion of the same gentleman the clerk was instructed to procure 500 copies of the report in pamphlet form.

THE NEED FOR A STUDY OF THE EROSION AND ACCRETION AT HAMPTON BEACH

By James W. Goldthwaite, Ph.D.

Prepared for the N. H. Commission for Submission to the National Erosion Board

INTRODUCTION

This statement seeks to show why a study of erosion and accretion at Hampton Beach is needed. Facts already on record are briefly reviewed; an analysis of the natural processes at work is attempted; and on the basis of these facts and theories suggestions are made regarding the scope and methods of such a study.

THE SITUATION OF HAMPTON BEACH

Hampton Beach lies in the extreme southeast corner of New Hampshire, within two miles of the Massachusetts line.

Long, nearly straight beaches stretch both north and south from a central headland, known as Great Boar's Head, where the sea has cut back the end of a glacial drumlin. At the southern end of the south beach, about a mile and a half south of Boar's Head, is Hampton harbor, where tides ebb and flow across the sands, making an unstable entrance to Hampton river and other large tidal creeks that flood and drain several square miles of salt marsh. Salisbury beach (with its northern end in Seabrook, N. H.) lies on the south side of this entrance or "river," and stretches far down the coast to the mouth of the Merrimack river near Newburyport, Mass. In spite of the rapid development of this coast, in the last fifteen or twenty years, large areas of marsh and some portions of the beach, in Hampton and Seabrook, are only partly occupied and quite unprotected from the sea. The marshlands, especially, are almost as wild and desolate as when they were first seen by Champlain and Capt. John Smith, more than three centuries ago. The situation of this district within easy reach of thickly populated cities, however, and its unique attractions in midsummer make it obvious that the recent rapid growth of Hampton as a recreational center is only the small beginning of a fuller and more elaborate development.

DAMAGE FROM STORMS

The beach is fully exposed to "northeasters" and "southeasters" that sweep up the coast, especially during late fall, winter and spring. Rapid and great changes have taken place during historic time, as indicated more in detail on a later page. These changes did not attract much attention however until recently, when increased use of the shore and investment of money in property subject to destruction by the sea made the matter something of more than idle interest and emphasized the need for resisting further attacks by building artificial defenses.

Beginning about 1909, over $100,000 was spent by the town in the construction of piling and concrete breakwaters, of which only ruined fragments remain today. Because of faulty design or location or incomplete condition when struck by heavy storms, these breakwaters have not prevented nor even seriously delayed the campaign of erosion which the sea has carried on here since 1912. Several blocks of shore lots and streets and about 100 cottages have already been swept away and more are threatened during every big storm.

IMPORTANCE OF A STUDY OF THE PROBLEM

(New Hampshire possesses only about fifteen miles of seacoast. Most of it is already so largely in private hands that a state reservation anywhere else on the shore would be expensive and difficult to arrange. Beach and marshland at Hampton afford the one single opportunity for future development of a shore resort where public rights may be kept dominant and a little unspoiled natural scenery and wild life characteristic of the seacoast may be preserved for future generations.) The enlarging of the district as a recreational center and the accompanying commercial development or "improvement" of the salt marshes call for extensive planning, far-sighted vision, and restraint toward schemes that go no farther than cash profits for interested parties or immediate returns on investment. To secure natural rights for the public, there are bound to be business interests to restrain or resist, as well as sea and storms. Whatever is done to safeguard the spot from attack by the sea, on the one hand, or from capture by private interests on the other, must be done on a large scale and in a well organized way. A recognition of these principles seems to lie back of the establishment of a permanent commission, in New Hampshire, to plan and regulate the development of this shore.

It is believed that the best basis for effective development of Hampton Beach is a study of the problem of erosion, by competent engineers. From such a study we should learn the most effective location and best design for defensive structures, like breakwaters or groynes, and so avoid repeating the costly experiments that have heretofore marked this battle with the sea. If nature is allowed to sweep the sands up and down the coast, to tear out here and fill in there, as storms dictate, and to shift the mouth of Hampton River back and forth after the manner shown in Figure 2,* not much can or will be done to improve land or property in the district tributary to the Beach. So it is proposed that a scientific study of erosion and accretion at Hampton Beach be carried out by engineers designated by the National Board for the study of coast erosion, as the first step in securing this important area on the New Hampshire coast to public use.

NATURAL FORCES AT WORK ON HAMPTON BEACH

A glance at the outline maps in Figure 2 and Figure 3 will indicate the fact that erosion and accretion near the mouth of Hampton River have been complex and serious. But before running through the details of these changes, it may clarify the problem to name and briefly discuss the function of the several shore agencies that are known to shift beach material.

Storm Waves sweep sand up the beach in a general on-shore direction, but usually diagonally rather than straight, since storm winds come oftener from northeast or southeast than straight toward the shore. Near Boar's Head on both the North and the South beaches some pebbles attached to kelp are dragged up and cast ashore; but sand makes up the bulk of the beach drift. While there may be shoals off the beach, where glacial deposits lie within reach of the waves, it appears likely that this sand comes from the scour of the fore slope of the beach itself, as the sea slowly beats it inland.

Undertow tends to carry the sand back down the beach to deep water. The backwash of breakers on the beach feeds this outgoing bottom current, which moves seaward for a considerable distance through shallow water but loses strength by diffusion as it goes. During storms, when wave action is strengthened and accompanied by strong incoming surface currents, the compensating undertow, which returns this water, is likewise strengthened so that it may be able to roll pebbles down the foreslope of the beach to low tide mark. So there is an endless movement of beach materials up and down the slope, with constant wear and tear on sandgrains and pebbles. As the sediment is thus ground finer and finer it may be spread in flatter and flatter form or even float away, so that the beach slowly loses ground unless the depletion from friction is offset by fresh supplies of sand brought ashore by waves. At Hampton the net result seems to be very slow retrogression of the beach, due to slightly greater losses than gains; but changes are so slight in amount and so irregular that they are difficult to summarize.

Long-shore Currents are set up by diagonal waves. Storms usually drive the breakers ashore at an angle. Northeasters and southeasters are both common; but their frequency, intensity and duration follow no set rule, and the wind may blow from almost any easterly quarter during the climax of the storm. From hour to hour both direction and strength of wind may change. Consequently, shore currents may travel northward or southward, here, at any given time, and will vary greatly in vigor. The course which they take and the velocities they have may be influenced considerably, also, by shoals or ledges that interrupt or deflect them. Several ledges, singly and in small groups, in close proximity to Hampton Beach, especially near the mouth of Hampton River, must function thus to modify the action of shore currents. But we have no observational data on which to base a detailed statement of the part they play.

Tidal currents are not probably important at most points on this coast, but they are strong enough at the entrance of Hampton River to appear to be a factor of no little consequence. A considerable prism of water ebbs and flows across the sandy shoals that occupy the space between Hampton and Salisbury beaches, especially when a severe storm coincides with a high run of tides. Enough water passes into Hampton Harbor and up its tributary creeks to overspread several miles of marshland; and currents created by it are probably strong enough to move sands in and out. When, in a storm the tides, waves and shore currents battle for supremacy on the wide shoals of sand at Hampton River entrance, the precise balance of forces, and its record in the changed configuration of beaches is likely to be somewhat different from that of any previous case.

CONCENTRATION OF THE ATTACKING FORCES ON HAMPTON RIVER ENTRANCE

Where four such agencies as these, each one a variable, conspire to bring about alterations of the shore, the results are bound to be complex and sometimes surprising. No two storms have just the same results at a given place. Also northeasters and southeasters of different intensities come at irregular intervals and leave records of every variety. Inevitably the strongest effects will be found near the entrance of Hampton river, as already indicated, because there the tides enter into the equation of forces, and the wide deposits of sand lie insecurely anchored in relatively deep water, ready to move in or out or up or down the shore. The varying outlines shown in the maps in Figure 2 illustrate this; but we need much more detailed maps and measurements than these to really understand the operation of the combined agencies.

Other points on the New Hampshire coast, including these portions of the North and South beaches that lie near Boar's Head are relatively safe from attack. They are tied fast to the great hill of hard boulder clay, and rather closely underlain by firm ground or buttressed by ledges that outcrop through the beach. Though the chief natural supply of sand and stones for these beaches has been cut off by the building of a masonry wall all around the base of the cliffed headland, there is perhaps some material washed up from shoals of glacial drift on which the beach rests. In the course of a century or so, the slow wearing away of the fore-slope of Hampton beach may bring a measurable retrogression of the beach crest; but no sudden or violent change is to be expected. Control by breakwaters or other protective devices is relatively easy there. Northeasters have to round Boar's Head to attack the South beach and southeasters have to round it to attack the North beach. But the White island-Hampton river district lies so far south of the headland as to be beyond its protective influence. Storms from both quarters hit this shore hard. The ledges have no mantle of glacial soil for waves to gather and convert to beach drift; they are clean hard bosses of rock that rise rather steeply through the sand and are nearly awash at high tide. Although the beach seems almost to be fastened to certain ledges today, experience of the past shows that the position is anything but fixed and permanent. A given ledge that is on Hampton beach this year may be in the middle of Hampton river a few years hence, and over on Salisbury beach a little later. (Even though no such great change comes for a half century, there is no guarantee that it will not come quickly, any time, when the forces are so combined and directed as to make an assault more effective than the ordinary one. There is no such thing as steady progress here; and there are no regular cycles of change.)

CHANGES WITHIN HISTORIC TIME

The three outline maps of Hampton river entrance (Figure 2) illustrate the variety of changes which take place in rather short spaces of time. These maps are based upon actual surveys at various dates since 1855 by the U. S. Coast & Geodetic Survey and recently by the N. H. Highway Department.

The condition shown in 1855 seems to have remained without marked change for thirty or forty years; for the Newburyport quadrangle, issued by the U. S. Geological Survey in 1889 (see Figure 1) agrees pretty well with it. However, it is not at all impossible that there were many changes, not recorded, between the two dates when these similar outlines were mapped. From 1908 to 1912, we know from detailed surveys, rapid accretion was taking place at the south end of Hampton beach, whereby its outer boundary advanced seaward 1000 feet and southward an equal distance to Town rocks; and continued 1500 feet more so as to tie on to Beckman's ledges, forcing the river southward across what had previously been the north end of Salisbury beach. That beach, at the same time, had been cut back some 1200 to 1500 feet. Thus Hampton had gained some 50 acres of beach land and Salisbury had lost about the same amount. It may be that the change was due to heavy northeast storms coming with a strong outgoing tide, so that the sand swept southward along Hampton beach was dropped off the mouth of Hampton river and spread forward from it, while tidal and shore currents on the other side of the entrance ate away the front of Seabrook beach. But that is theory. If there were eye witnesses whose observations could be trusted now, they have not been found or consulted; and no attempt has been made to get light on the question from records of the weather bureau during the period of rapid change.

The climax of this growth came in 1912. Development of house lots and construction of streets, sidewalks and a sewer system quickly followed, in the new "White island" section of Hampton. But within a few years storms had commenced to cut away the beach and undermine the houses. Erosion was fast and furious at times, in spite of efforts to build an effective breakwater, first with concrete and then with piling. Erosion still continues, with real damage during each heavy storm. Approximately 100 cottages have gone and the present crest of the beach lies 5 or 6 blocks back of its 1912 position (Figure 3). Town rocks, formerly on the outer edge of the White island tract at high tide mark, now stand far out at low tide and are beaten heavily by waves and currents when the tide is up. As Hampton beach released its hold on Beckman's ledges, Seabrook-Salisbury beach grew forward, so that it now connects with Beckman's, much as it did in 1855. Should the present changes continue, Seabrook beach may reach farther out and tie on to Town rocks, while Hampton river entrance shifts through tidal scour to a position between Town rocks and Hampton beach. But this forecast is no more likely than one of opposite result. It is impossible to tell which way the next move will be.

Records and maps of earlier dates than 1855 might throw some light on the frequency and extent of such changes as those just reviewed; but search thus far has failed to bring to light much that is of consequence. There was little detailed mapping of the seaboard, in Hampton and Seabrook, since it was scarcely occupied before 1855, and property there was of little value. In view of the early history of this place, however, it seems well to mention one detail—the ledge long known as Bound rock. In 1640 Capt. Shapleigh, surveyor, ran the line between the townships of Hampton and Colchester (later Salisbury) for the colony of Massachusetts, starting at the mouth of Hampton river. It appears that the line began at a ledge in the middle of the river; for 17 years later, when Shapleigh's line was rerun, this ledge, called Bound rock, was marked with date and initial letters, as described on the accompanying sheet (Figure 4). According to the Newburyport quadrangle (Figure 1) the ledge was still in the 1640 position in 1888, though there may have been many changes of the beach in the two centuries and a half between these dates. In 1850, the date (1850) and initials HB and SH were added to the original inscription, and that was somewhat marred rather than improved by recutting. The ledge now lies completely buried by sand, in Seabrook beach, a few hundred feet south from Beckman's. It is probable that the old inscription on it is the second oldest on the continent, since the oldest known is the Endicott rock at Weirs, N. H., with the date 1652. It seems that a mark of such antiquity ought to be carefully exposed to view and protected from future loss or defacement.

SUGGESTIONS AS TO THE SCOPE OF THE STUDY

A problem as difficult as this one should of course be approached in a strictly scientific spirit, without prejudice; and ways and means for solving it should be worked out by engineers acquainted with such matters. The facts we have offered, however, suggest a few general observations.

The east of Hampton beach is more complex than those at many other places on the Atlantic coast. (Long stretches of shore on Cape Cod or New Jersey, for example, are suffering as badly from erosion as is Hampton; but the process is relatively steady, progressive, and free from temporary reversal because the geological agencies there act with greater frequency and almost always in the same direction and without very great changes in strength. This applies particularly to the operation of a dominant shore current or tidal current along successive miles of straight shore line. At Hampton, on the contrary, the markedly intermittent character of the forces, the innumerable changes in direction and strength of currents, and the mathematical possibilities of combinations of four variable factors are so many and so unlike that a long and elaborate set of measurements would appear to be needed, to understand the various forms of attack employed by the sea—or at least the extreme forms that we must reckon with.)

Shallow water contouring of the shore, especially on the sandy shoals off the river entrance, and current measurements under all the different conditions of tide, wind and sea seem fundamental to such a study, and they would probably have to be repeated after each significant alteration of the configuration of the beaches. There should be measurements or estimates of the rate of transfer of sand along those paths that seem to mean most in the problem of shore protection. Whether these might be made by direct measurement or indirectly by comparison of outline and gradient of mapped beach areas as shown on successive charts is a question for the engineer to decide.

While these observations and records would probably have to cover more than the immediate vicinity of the river entrance, if they were to fully serve their purpose, the study in its later stages would perhaps be concentrated on conditions just off the present river mouth, where government engineers have expressed the tentative opinion that relief from erosion might be secured by the construction of a substantial breakwater that would reach from the north bank of Hampton river diagonally out to ledges which lie offshore from Town rocks. In any case, as the problem now looks—without having the benefit, yet, of a detailed field study—the cure for erosion at Hampton beach is to be found in the stabilization of the mouth of Hampton river. Here, pretty surely, is the weakest spot. And here also is the key to any future development that would involve harborage and landings for excursion steamers and pleasure craft, and motor boat service for holiday and Sunday crowds arriving by rail at points inland. Once Hampton beach is fixed, and the river held in position, the full use of its strategic situation will be realized.

This was to show the limits of our (South Hampton's) possession, as I understand it.

The old marks on the stone were apparently recut, but with tools and workmen not used to the job, so the old letters and figures were hurt rather than improved."

LIENS OF HOSPITALS

38. Upon Claims for Insurance. Any hospital that has given treatment or performed services to or for a person who has suffered personal injuries and who has a claim arising from such injuries against another person shall have a lien against any sum due or which may become due from such other person to the injured person or for his benefit to the extent that such hospital may give treatment or perform services to or for such injured person in connection with or growing out of such injuries, but not exceeding the total amount due or to become due to the injured person, or for his benefit, from such other person because of such injuries. Such hospital shall have a similar lien against any sum due or which may become due from any insurance company because of or in connection with such personal injuries, whether the same be payable directly or indirectly to the person causing the injury as an indemnity for damages recovered for said injuries, or whether the same be payable directly or indirectly to the injured person or for his benefit.

41. To What Extent Valid. No settlement, whether before or after judgment, effected without the consent of any lien-holder by other interested parties shall invalidate any lien created hereunder, and if the money shall be paid in accordance with such settlement the parties who made the same shall be jointly and severally liable to the hospital, for the lien hereby created.

orderly, speedy and effective conduct of legislative business.

The Speaker appointed as members of such committee, Messrs. Wilson of Manchester, Carter of Nashua, Shaw of Chichester, Blandin of Bath and Welch of Franklin.

JOINT CONVENTION

The Senate then came in and the two branches being in convention His Excellency the Governor delivered the following address.

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS

The development of orderly government is written in the records of representative legislatures and political progress is measured largely in the wisdom of enactment, amendment or repeal of statutes. Without political partisanship and with patience and diligence you have, in my judgment, done much that was needed to be done and you have refrained from undoing that which was already well done.

You have held inviolate the right of the people to nominate and elect their own representatives by the largest vote ever recorded in this hall in support of the Direct Primary Law.

You have upheld the Prohibitory Law.

You have provided the State with a modern budget law which includes executive control of expenditures. This should insure economies and permit shorter legislative sessions.

You have made it possible to collect legally, and without constitutional doubt, Federal inheritance tax rebates levied against New Hampshire decedents. This law was no part of the New Hampshire Recess Tax Commission program. The revenue derived from it will not add one cent of tax burden. It simply permits us to receive back from the Federal Government money rightly due us. The funds derived from it should permit us to meet annual deficits that have been accruing due to outgo exceeding income and to reduce treasury deficiencies.

You have made law the franchise tax. A similar measure was recommended as equitable and reasonable by Governor Theodore Roosevelt in an address to the New York Legislature in 1900, just thirty-one years ago. It was one of the tax measures recommended by the Recess Tax Commission. The revenue collected under it will be temporarily used to meet the State debt. I hope it will later be made a part of a general tax revision plan and used to reduce taxes under a more equitable tax system.

You have reduced the State tax ten percent for the next two fiscal years.

You have ended railroad repair shop litigation with the Boston Maine Railroad and stabilized and increased employment within New Hampshire while adding approximately half a million to taxable real estate property through expansion of shop facilities.

You have for the first time delegated to the Public Service Commission adequate authority to regulate rates and to enforce reasonable charges for light and power.

You have taken the first step in solving the problem of tax exemptions granted to charitable institutions.

You have enacted carefully considered measures for the regulation of motor traffic which we hope will lessen the danger of accident and death on the highways.

You have provided funds for freeing the State from bovine tuberculosis within a two year period to protect health and for the benefit of the dairy industry of New Hampshire.

You have strengthened the State banking laws.

You have provided for the protection of our seacoast at Hampton Beach and secured the public right of access to the ocean.

You have improved the Fish and Game laws and established the right of petition and hearing on all rulings of the Fish and Game Advisory Board.

You have continued a constructive State road policy.

You have given the people of the State the right to regulate the observance of the Sabbath to conform with the conscience of communities while protecting Sunday morning against disturbance and continuing to guarantee one day of rest in seven for those engaged in industry.

You have endeavored to protect borrowers against usury in making small loans.

You have provided means for the solution of the State Prison labor problem which will soon be forced upon us.

You have attempted to expedite small accident claim settlements.

You have directed a study of County Government.

You have made possible a needed reorganization at the Industrial School by adequate appropriation.

You have permitted improvement in administration in handling accident claims against the State, liability insurance, and the collection of the gasoline tax.

You have substantially increased apportionment of highway funds to towns for rural road support.

You have adopted an enlightened and humane policy in protecting dependents through increased Mothers' Aid, the vocational rehabilitation act, the adoption of old age pensions, in providing for schooling for the blind and hospitalization for tubercular and cancer patients. You have further provided for adequate maintenance of the State institutions while recognizing the need of prevention and corrective effort to reduce the demand for institutional expansion.

You have supported education and made adequate appropriations to maintain the departmental services of the State government.

In this Capitol Building with its Hall of Flags and many memories of the past you have carried forward the hopes and aspirations of men and women who believe in free Government.

Your public service is over and you will probably be happy to return once more to your homes and your private occupations, but I cannot let you go without thanking you for the many kindnesses I have received at your hands.

It is always difficult to say good-bye, and I want you to know that in meeting and in parting you have confirmed in me a firmer faith:

“That sense and worth, o’er a’ the earth,
May bear the gree, and a’ that,
For a’ that, and a’ that,
It’s coming yet for a’ that,
That man to man, the warld o’er,
Shall brothers be for a’ that.”

The convention then rose.

HONORABLE SENATE
SPECIAL SESSION, FEBRUARY, 1930

PRINTED BY THE RUMFORD PRESS
CONCORD, N. H.

PROCLAMATION
HIS EXCELLENCY, GOV. CHARLES W. TOBEY
Calling a Special Session of the Legislature
THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE
Executive Department

A Proclamation by the Governor

In the regular session last year a series of tax measures were introduced as a result of two years' study of the tax situation in New Hampshire by the Recess Tax Commission, authorized by the Legislature of 1927.

These bills passed the House, and while under consideration in the Senate, that body at my suggestion, decided to ask the Supreme Court for an opinion as to their constitutionality. At that time I suggested the possibility that it might be advisable to recall the Legislature in Special Session on receipt of the Court's opinion.

At its January term the Court made a comprehensive and informing reply to the questions, finding some of the proposed acts in accordance with the constitution, and advising how others might be made so.

Previously the Recess Tax Commission had given much time and thought to this work. Under the circumstances this body was invited to redraft the bills on the lines suggested by the Court. This has been accomplished and the redrafted bills will be distributed shortly.

I believe that the Court's opinion has pointed the way for constructive action in the equalization of the tax burden, and that those who have given so much thought to the matter are best qualified to act on it.

Whereas the welfare of the State requires the immediate assembling of the Legislature,

I, Charles W. Tobey, Governor, with the advice of the Council, hereby summon the General Court to assemble at the State House, Tuesday, the eighteenth day of February, at eleven o'clock.

CHARLES W. TOBEY,
Governor.

With the advice of the Council.

ENOCH D. FULLER,
Secretary of State.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
SPECIAL SESSION OF 1930

PROCLAMATION OF HIS EXCELLENCY, GOVERNOR CHARLES W. TOBEY Calling a Special Session of
THE LEGISLATURE

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

A PROCLAMATION

By the Governor

In the regular session last year a series of tax measures were introduced as a result of two years' study of the tax situation in New Hampshire by the Recess Tax Commission, authorized by the Legislature of 1927.

These bills passed the House, and while under consideration in the Senate, that body at my suggestion, decided to ask the Supreme Court for an opinion as to their constitutionality. At that time I suggested the possibility that it might be advisable to recall the Legislature in Special Session on receipt of the Court's opinion.

At its January term the Court made a comprehensive and informing reply to the questions, finding some of the proposed acts in accordance with the constitution, and advising how others might be made so.

Previously the Recess Tax Commission had given much time and thought to this work. Under the circumstances this body was invited to redraft the bills on the lines suggested by the Court. This has been accomplished and the redrafted bills will be distributed shortly.

I believe that the Court's opinion has pointed the way for constructive action in the equalization of the tax burden, and that those who have given so much thought to the matter are best qualified to act on it.

Whereas, the welfare of the State requires the immediate assembling of the Legislature,

I, Charles W. Tobey, Governor, with the advice of the Council, hereby summon the General Court to assemble at the State House Tuesday, the eighteenth day of February, at eleven o'clock, A. M.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this Fifteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and fifty-fifth.

CHARLES W. TOBEY,
Governor

By His Excellency, the Governor, with the advice of the Council
ENOCH D. FULLER,
Secretary of State.

LETTER RECEIVED

The Speaker laid before the House the following letter from the Attorney-General.

Hon. George A. Foster, Speaker,
House of Representatives,
Concord, New Hampshire.

Dear Mr. Foster:

You have asked my opinion as to the interpretation of Article 15, Part Second of the Constitution of the State of New Hampshire in regard to the pay of the legislators for attendance at the special session of the Legislature to be held on February 18, 1930. Article 15 of Part Second of the Constitution is as follows:

“The presiding officers of both houses of the Legislature, shall severally receive out of the state treasury as compensation in full for their services for the term elected the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, and all other members thereof, seasonably attending and not departing without license, the sum of two hundred dollars exclusive of mileage; provided, however, that when a special session shall be called by the governor, such officers and members shall receive for attendance an additional compensation of three dollars per day for a period not exceeding fifteen days and the usual mileage.”

It is my opinion that this provision of the Constitution means that each legislator shall be paid for each day he is in actual attendance at the special session. The use of the words “for attendance” in this article of the Constitution seems to mean that compensation is for presence at the session and not for holding the office of representative or senator. An examination of the journal of the Constitutional Convention of 1889 and of the laws in effect previous to the adoption of the above article leads also to this conclusion.

You state that the custom has been for the Legislature to do its work on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the week and to hold a skeleton session on Monday and Friday because of Article 19, Part Second of the Constitution which is as follows:

“The House of Representatives shall have power to adjourn themselves, but no longer than two days at a time.”

It is my opinion that actual attendance by any legislator on any day when the Legislature is in session counts as one day's attendance for him, whether or not the Legislature actually does any work on that day. In other words, if the special session of the Legislature follows this custom a legislator could be in attendance five days during the week.

Of course, you understand that the question of the length of the session legally has nothing to do with the question of pay and that while each member may receive pay for not more than fifteen days for attendance, the length of a special session is not limited by the Constitution or by statute.

Very truly yours,

RALPH W. DAVIS,
Attorney-General.

RESOLUTIONS

On motion of Mr. Carter of Nashua:

Resolved, That each member of the House of Representatives be required to fill out, sign and deposit with the Clerk of the House, each day upon which he is in attendance at this special session of the Legislature, commencing with February 19, a card to be furnished by the Clerk, and that the Clerk be instructed to make up his roll of attendance for compensation from such cards, and that each member be paid for attendance only for those days for which he has signed and deposited such card with the Clerk, except that every member who is present at the roll call held February 18, or shall notify the Clerk of his attendance prior to adjournment on February 18, shall be entitled to compensation for that day.

On motion of Mr. Small of Rochester:

Resolved, That unless otherwise ordered, the hours for assembling of the House be at 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

On motion of Mr. Hart of Wolfeboro:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the Speaker to make the necessary assignment of rooms for committee hearings.

The Speaker appointed as members of such committee Messrs. Hart of Wolfeboro, Henderson of Durham and Blandin of Bath.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

The Speaker announced the death of Mr. Milliken of Nashua; the absence in Europe of Mr. Burns of Hopkinton, and the illness of Mr. Ward of Hanover; all members of the Committee on Ways and Means and appointed in their places Messrs. Snow of Rochester; Hutchins of Plymouth, and Clow of Wolfeboro.

RESOLUTION

Mr. Hammond of Manchester offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the clerk of the House be instructed to procure a sufficient number of copies of the Manchester Union and the Concord Daily Monitor for distribution of one copy to each member of the House on each working day of the special session.

The question being on the resolution.

(Discussion ensued)

On a viva voce vote the resolution was not adopted.

(After recess)

The Speaker appointed as members of such committee Senators Wadleigh of District No. 12 and Falconer of District No. 22 and Messrs. Hart of Wolfeboro, Mrs. Ferguson of Bristol and Blandin of Bath.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

His Excellency the Governor then appeared and laid before the convention the following message:

MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1930.

Honorable Senators and Representatives:

The convening of the Legislature in Special Session is an unusual event, and is justified in my opinion only in cases wherein an emergency exists, or when, as in this cause that you are to consider, the welfare of the State as a whole will be served thereby.

Perhaps a subconscious reason for summoning you here in Special Session lies in the fact that we have missed your presence in these halls and corridors, and welcome the opportunity to renew the fellowships that we enjoyed together a year ago in considering the State's business.

The subject that you were called together to consider is nearly as old as civilization—the subject of taxation.

For years we have talked about equalizing its burdens, but nothing definite had been accomplished until the Legislature of 1927 authorized the appointment of a Recess Tax Commission to make a study of this problem and report to you upon your taking office in 1929. Governor Spaulding appointed a commission of nine, who gave much time and effort to study of the problem, holding public hearings in various parts of the state, giving the public an opportunity to be heard for and against, and then made a report to you of their conclusions in the matter.

Bills embodying their recommendations were referred to the House Committee on Ways and Means, which held exhaustive hearings thereon, largely attended and actively participated in by both proponents and opponents. In fact, rarely has the public participated in hearings with keener interest.

So well were the measures understood and approved that when they came in to the House with unanimously favorable reports behind them, they passed by large majorities.

Just prior to action on them in the Senate, because of a Court decision in another tax case that might affect the constitutionality of the new program, you will recall that I appeared before the Senate, and in a Special message suggested that they submit the bills to the Supreme Court asking for an opinion as to their constitutionality, and I further stated that if the Court's opinion should be favorable it might be wise to call the Legislature together in a special Session, looking to the enactment of the measures into law.

The Senate so voted, and the bills and supplementary questions went to the Court, and after due consideration, supplemented by oral arguments and briefs submitted by able counsel, representing all sides, the Court rendered an opinion that in its scope and clarity may well be referred to as epoch-making.

After studying their opinion I felt that the logic of events and the best interests of the people throughout the State would be served by reconvening the Legislature to act on the tax program in the light of the Court's opinion, and with the advice of the Honorable Council the call was issued.

The Recess Tax Commission was asked to reconvene to study the opinion of the Court and to redraft the bills on the lines therein suggested. This they have accomplished, and the bills and the Commission's report were sent to you prior to your reconvening.

Their report is a thoughtful and able contribution, and is the culmination of sincere, honest and conscientious effort to act for the State as a whole, and should be considered in that light.

It is unnecessary for me to review in detail the various measures they advocate, but in my opinion they have well met the duty with which they were charged, and have "found a way of distributing the tax burden more equitably and in a manner better calculated to promote the general welfare."

It is obvious that you who constitute this present Legislature are better qualified to act in this matter of tax revision than those preceding you or that which will succeed you. In evidence of this I point out that:

This matter was particularly referred to you for your consideration, by the Legislature of 1927.

The Recess Commission made their report to you with accompanying bills.

You had the advantage of hearing the bills discussed in public hearings and in the House.

You referred them to the Supreme Court as to their constitutionality.

The Court has rendered its opinion to you.

Because of these various steps and your active participation therein, and the largely favorable opinion of the Court, I believe the time is ripe for definite constructive legislation in this tax matter and that the people of our State are justified in expecting it at your hands.

May your deliberations be marked by careful study, and a high quality of statesmanship, and may you be mindful of the fact that while you represent your own town, or ward, or district, yet you are legislating for the whole of our State, and the whole is greater than any part.

I earnestly entreat you to give these matters that will come before you now, most careful consideration. Legislation is not an abstract thing, to itself alone. Legislation is something that affects men, women and little children; those of us here in our day, and those who come after us, and because of the broad influence these tax measures will have on the general welfare, may your consideration of them transcend partisanship or individual prejudice.

At the conclusion of the delivery of his message His Excellency retired.

RESOLUTION

On motion of Mr. Cilley of Manchester:

Resolved, That the message of His Excellency, the Governor, be laid upon the table and the Clerk be directed to procure the usual number of printed copies.

On motion of Senator Rolfe of District No. 15 the Convention rose.

HOUSE

OPINION OF THE SUPREME COURT

The following opinion of the Supreme Court was laid before the House.

To the House of Representatives:

The undersigned, the justices of the Supreme Court, make the following answers to the questions submitted by you:

The three bills present three distinct plans for the taxation of growing timber, which we take up in the order of the questions propounded.

1. This bill would make size the test of taxability. A provision that timber shall be taxable or nontaxable according to its size is the application of a theory of classification that has been in use from the beginning. There are manifest reasons why small growth, like young live stock, should not be taxed. The classification being a reasonable one, the question of its adoption is purely legislative.

The further discrimination, between different species, is assumed to be based upon known facts as to rapidity of growth, marketable size, etc. If there are such distinguishing facts, the discrimination is warranted.

2. A tax upon the annual increment is proposed by this bill. This appears to be in the nature of an income tax. It is to be laid because the property has come into the possession of the owner within the year. It is laid but once. Although the property continues to be possessed in subsequent years, it is not subject to any further annual tax. Being of this nature, it must be co-ordinated with other income taxes. It cannot be laid at the local rate, and as of April first, when other income taxes are laid at a different rate and of another date.

3. The third bill would make volume per acre the test of taxability. If this were in fact a reasonable method of ascertaining the age of maturity of the growth, the proposed test would be unobjectionable. In some cases it would be so. But there must be many instances where scattered but mature growth would be exempt under this provision. The question, whether these would be so occasional and incidental that they might reasonably be disregarded in prescribing a general test, is one of fact. But with such knowledge as we have of the situation it is our opinion that they could not be so treated, and that the proposed test for taxability would therefore be invalid.

LETTER FROM ATTORNEY-GENERAL

The Speaker laid before the House the following letter from the Attorney-General.

Hon. George A. Foster,
Concord, New Hampshire.

My dear Mr. Foster:

I have your letter of February 7th relative to the question as to whether the tax bills referred by the regular session of the legislature to the Supreme Court will be pending as bills before the special session February 18.

I understand that the legislature adjourned April 19, 1929, but before adjourning submitted certain proposed legislation to the Supreme Court for an opinion as to its constitutionality. The legislature has been reconvened and will, doubtless, consider new tax legislation. In my opinion, these bills will not be before the special session unless they are reintroduced as new bills after the session convenes. You are, doubtless, familiar with the fact that all revenue measures must start in the house. They should start as new house bills.

I trust this makes the situation clear. If, during the legislature, I can be of service to you in your capacity as Speaker of the House, I know you will be free to call upon me. I shall make it my business to be available nearly all the time that the legislature is in session.

Yours very truly,

RALPH W. DAVIS,
Attorney-General.

3. Hearings. The tax commission, in determining the actual value of the franchises, property and estate of said public utilities, shall hold public hearings at times and places, notices of which shall be given in advance. Representatives of the state and of such public utilities and other persons shall be entitled to appear, be heard and offer evidence.

4. Finding. The tax commission shall receive and consider all evidence tending to show the actual value of the franchises, property and estate of said public utilities taxable hereunder, and upon all the evidence shall determine the actual value of the same.

5. Evidence of Value. It shall ascertain and consider as evidence the fair average market value of the stocks and bonds of any such public utility for one year prior to April first preceeding the assessment and the fair market value of any other funded or floating debt of any such public utility representing permanent improvements or extensions. In any case where such public utility has no transferable shares or bonds or the market value of the stocks and bonds of any such public utility cannot be ascertained for want of actual market sales, or for any other reason, the net receipts of any such public utility, which shall be the difference between the gross earnings, whether by lease or operation, and the operating expenses and taxes of the preceding year, capitalized at such per cent as appears to be equitable under all the circumstances, shall be considered as evidence of the value of the property and estate of such public utility, including its taxable franchises. In arriving at the value of the franchises, property and estate to be taxed hereunder, the tax commission shall consider any other facts which may be material in finding the actual value of such franchises, property and estate, including the number of kilowatt hours of electrical energy generated by the utility during the twelve months prior to April first preceding the assessment.

6. Proportionate Value. When only a portion of the franchises, property and estate of any such public utility is located within the state, the tax commission in determining the actual value thereof shall consider the proportionate value of all its franchises, property and estate in this state to all of the franchises, property and estate of such utility.

7. —, Facts Material. In making a proportionate valuation the commission shall take into consideration, among other things, the facts required to be reported by sections 8 and 9.

8. Statement of Utility. Every such public utility shall, on or before July first annually, deliver to the tax commission a statement under oath, showing number and par value of the shares of each class of its stock, and the market value of each share as of April first, the dividends paid per share on each class of stock during the preceding year and the dates of such payments, the date of issue, the number and denomination of each issue of its bonds, the interest paid during the preceding year and the market value of each of said bonds, the amount of its floating indebtedness with the interest paid on the same and the average market value of said floating indebtedness during said preceding year, the gross receipts from whatever source derived for said preceding year, the amount expended from said receipts for operating expenses, not including any sum expended for physical betterment or transferred to surplus or sinking funds during said preceding year, the amount expended for physical betterments, or transferred to surplus or sinking funds during the preceding year, and whence derived, and the total number of kilowatt hours generated by it during the twelve months prior to said April first.

9. Wire Mileage Every such utility shall, in addition, state its total mileage of wires whether within or without the state, and its total mileage within the state.

10. Further Information. Such utilities shall also furnish the commission such further information and evidence as the commission may require.

11. Doomage. If any such utility shall neglect seasonably to furnish such evidence, or to lay it before the commission, such utility may be doomed to pay a tax on double the value of its franchises, property and estate subject to taxation.

12. Certificate of Tax. The tax commission, prior to September thirtieth in each year, shall file with the state treasurer certificates of their decisions.

13. Re-Hearing. The state, or any such utility may at any time within thirty days from the filing of the decision move for a re-hearing. The tax commission, may, for cause shown, allow the motion, and shall have authority to give further hearing and increase or abate the tax as justice may require. Notice shall be given the state treasurer of the order of decision made upon such a motion.

14. Appeal. The state, or any utility against whom a tax is assessed, if aggrieved by the decision of the commission, may apply to the superior court for relief at any time within ninety days after the filing of the decision. Whenever a motion for a re-hearing is filed the time within which an appeal may be taken shall not begin to run until final decision upon the motion for re-hearing shall have been made by the commission. The superior court upon appeal shall give to the parties such notice and hearing and shall make such orders or decisions concerning all matters involved in or collateral to the proceedings, as justice may require.

15. —, by State. The attorney-general shall attend the hearings given by the tax commission in pursuance of section 3, and shall prosecute an appeal in behalf of the state whenever such an appeal may be necessary to protect its interests.

16. Notice of Tax; Payment. Upon receipt of said certificates of decisions, the state treasurer shall notify the parties against whom taxes have been assessed, and such taxes shall be paid to the state treasurer on or before October fifteenth of the same year.

17. Not Affected by Appeal. The pendency of proceedings under sections 13 and 14 shall not be a cause of delay in the payment of any tax.

18. Final Adjustments. If upon such proceedings a decision for the reduction of any tax shall be rendered, the state treasurer shall credit and allow such reduction upon any tax assessed against the party entitled to the same, and payable after the rendition of such decision. If upon such proceedings it shall appear that the tax against any such utility was too small, the difference shall be paid by the utility concerned as of the date of the decision.

19. Interest. If such tax is not paid when due, interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum shall be added thereto from that date until the time of payment.

20. Extent. The state treasurer shall issue his extent for the sum unpaid and interest against the utility in default; and all the property owned by such utility on April first shall be liable for the payment thereof.

21. Report of Commission. The tax commission shall incorporate in its report all facts as to the total market value of the stocks and bonds and other funded or floating debt of such utility and the capitalized value ascertained as herein provided, the assessed property valuation and the total value of the franchises, property and estate of the utility, the total wire mileage of each utility, the number of kilowatt hours generated, together with such other information as it may deem proper.

22. Definition. The word "utility" or the words "public utility," as used in this act subsequent to section 1, shall mean the person, co-partnership, corporation, company engaged in any public utility activity described in section 1 of this act.

23. Expense of Assessment. The expense of determining and assessing and collecting this tax shall be paid out of the revenue derived therefrom. Until such revenue is available, such expense shall be paid out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. The tax commission may employ such experts and investigators for the ascertainment of facts pertinent to the determination of the tax as the governor and council may approve.

24. Disposition of Revenue. The revenue derived under this act, after deducting the cost of assessment and collection, shall be covered into the special equalization fund and distributed as follows:

A. The property and estate of a utility shall be assessed by the assessing authorities in the respective towns and cities wherein is located any property and estate of said utility and the state treasurer shall pay to each town and city the amount determined by applying local rate of taxation to said valuation determined by said assessing authorities in the respective towns.

B. This balance of the revenue derived under this act shall remain in the special equalization fund and distributed in accordance with the act relating thereto.
